County's 12th victim

Young WCH man killed in crash

A young Washington C. H. man became Fayette County's twelfth traffic accident fatality this year when he was killed in a single car crash just east of Washington C. H. late Wednesday night.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies said John Michael Smith, 22, of 806 Sycamore St., was killed in the single car accident on Palmer Road at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday.

INVESTIGATING sheriff's deputies at the scene reported the car the young Washington C. H. man was driving went out of control on Palmer Road, three-tenths of a mile west of the U.S. 35 bypass while the driver was attempting to negotiate a left curve.

Officers said the auto traveled off the right side of the road, collided with an open ditch, became airborne across Palmer Road, struck an embankment and overturned three times before coming to a stop on its wheels.

The young father of two children was thrown from the car during the turbulent crash, sheriff's deputies said.

He was rushed to Fayette Memorial Hospital by Kirkpatrick's ambulance service. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

Born in Greenfield, he was employed as a foreman at Cudahy Foods Co., Washington C. H.

HE IS survived by his wife, the former Rebecca Ann Wood; a son, John Michael Smith Jr., and a daughter, Kimberly Sue, both at home; his parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, of Washington C. H. his great-grandfather, John A. Smith, Rt. 2, Greenfield, and two brothers, Thomas and Dennis Smith, both of Washington C. H. He was preceded in death by a son, Tommy James, who died March 24, 1973.

Funeral services are being arranged under the direction of the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield.

Benefit football contest Saturday

Sore muscles and aching bones not withstanding, the stage is set for the long-awaited benefit football game which will bring to life the Washington C.H. Offsides team.

Nervously waiting in the wings are nearly 100 Washington C.H. area businessmen who have suffered through sometimes painful practice sessions during the past week.

PAIN-KILLING ointments, rubbing alcohol and other items designed to relieve muscular tension have been at a premium the past four days in Washington C.H.

However, those uncomfortable feelings will be forgotten at 8:30 p.m. Saturday when the Washington C.H. Offsides meet the Paint Creek No Stars on the Gardner Park Stadium turf in a fund-raising flag football game to benefit the popular Community Education program here.

Judge seeks reversal

Contempt ruling to be appealed

The ruling in the contempt of court case involving a Washington C.H. newspaperman will be appealed, according to a petition filed in Fayette County Common Pleas Court by appointed counselor Robert L. Brubaker.

Brubaker was appointed to present Judge Evelyn W. Coffman's position that a Record-Herald reporter was in contempt of court for violating her "expressed command' not to print part of the courtroom proceedings during a kidnap-extortion trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court June 25.

On August 9, the contempt hearing was held before a capacity crowd in Fayette County Common Pleas Court with Judge Gwynn Sanders, of Union County, presiding. The judge ruled September 3 that since the discussion occurred in a court session which was open to the public, the reporter had a right, guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, to print the account.

Judge Coffman has refused to accept the judge's decision, terming the verdict of acquittal "shocking." On her behalf, Brubaker will attempt to have the Second District Court of Appeals reverse Judge Sanders' decision.

THE APPEAL can be used as precedent only, not to find Record-Herald reporter Ed Summers in contempt. He has been found not guilty, and any further prosecution against him would constitute double jeopardy. The outcome of the appeal will have no bearing on the earlier decision.

The appeal is being filed by Judge Coffman in hopes that it can have the decision reversed for reference in similar cases which might arise during future trials in Common Pleas Court.

Brubaker will have 40 days to file a transcript of the hearing and relevant court records. After these are filed, he will have another 20 days to file a brief explaining why the appeals court should consider the case.

There will then be an opportunity for defense counselors Otis R. Hess Jr., of Washington C.H., and Daniel W. Drake, of Wilmington, to cite any reasons they have to believe that an appeal hearing should not be granted, and Brubaker can respond to the defense brief.

Judge Coffman contends that when the constitutional right of a free press conflicts with the right of a fair trial, the press loses its right to report public events.

Defense attorneys and the opinion rendered by Judge Sanders agree that the court has a constitutional obligation to insure that any defendant receives a fair trial, but states that there are alternatives open to the court which preserve the constitutional guarantees of all concerned, including the press.

According to Judge Sanders' decision, "...A trial is a public event. What transpires in the courtroom is public property... Those who see and hear what transpired may report it with impunity. There is no special prerequisite of the judiciary which

Tax issue interview

How Council feels

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of seven interviews with Washington C. H. City Council members and their feelings concerning the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue.)

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Mrs. Bertha McCullough, the first woman ever elected to a seat on Washington C. H. City council, supports the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue "because this is a lovely city with first class citizens and would hate to see the city be forced into providing the citizens with second class facilities, services and personnel."

"The biggest expense is the employe payroll and in order to keep the good help people we have, we must make it possible for them to lead decent lives. If the income tax is passed we can provide more money for the police, fire and street departments and all areas of city government," Mrs. McCullough said.

Mrs. McCullough, 431 W. Circle Ave., said, "Personally, I want to keep Washington C. H. a progressive city, and don't want us to fall backwards."

The first-year City Council member says she has become better acquainted with problems involved in the city government operation since taking office last November.

"I HAD an inkling when elected of some of the city's problems, but had no idea just how serious they were until I was confronted with the basic facts," she remarked.

"City Council has a great responsibility to residents of keeping the city on even basis as far as financial matters are concerned, however, we're (City Council) using 1972 income to pay

BERTHA McCULLOUGH

1974 expenses and we're coming up short," the customer service representative at the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. here said.

"Anyone knows the tremendous force of inflation during the past year especially," Mrs. McCullough noted, "and everybody is looking for new income to run their households, businesses, or in this case the city."

Like other Council members, Mrs. McCullough is worried about the city's condition if federal revenue sharing funds were ever eliminated. The city received $88,000 in revenue sharing monies this year.

"Most other cities use revenue sharing funds for extras,;; but Washington C. H. uses the money

Euclid man winner

Winning digits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The winning three-digit number this week in the Ohio Lottery was 363, and the winning double number was 236 583, the Ohio Lottery Commission announced Thursday.

Figueria was to receive $15,000 a year for the next 20 years.

The $30,000 prize went to Arthur F. Manasia of North Olmsted, lottery officials reported.

There was no $60,000 award due to the small number of participants, a commission spokesman said. At least eight persons must be eligible to warrant its inclusion.

Three $15,000 winners were named, including one from Kentucky. They were Clarence G. Haley, Hebron, Ky.; Gretchen Hawk of Massillon and Edwin J. Blue of Springfield, both of Ohio.

Natural gas pinch eyed

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Public utilities are warning businesses across the country that they may not get natural gas for heating this winter. Some utilities are refusing to accept new customers, industrial or residential.

An Associated Press survey showed there is a shortage of natural gas in almost every area, with the East Coast apparently facing the most severe problem. Natural gas provides 31 per cent of the energy used in the country.

Spokesmen for the utilities and some state officials blame the Federal Power Commission for the shortage. They say the FPC ceiling price for natural gas is too low and discourages exploration. "The companies need more money to explore and get additional gas," said George I. Bloom, chairman of the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission.

Other officials note that as fuel oil became more expensive, many people switched to natural gas, boosting the demand over a short period of time without development of new supplies.

Last June, the FPC revised its pricing system for natural gas, replacing a series of regional limits with a single national price of 42 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for so-called "new" gas from wells that began operation after Jan. 1, 1973. Previously, the price ranged from 19.9 to 34 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and averaged 27 cents, the commission said.

The government action was expected to mean another boost in prices for consumers who already are paying more than last year. A spokesman for Minnesota Gas Co. said, for example, that rates for residential customers are 12 to 14 per cent higher than last year and industrial customers are paying 30 per cent more than they did in 1973.

The shortage will hit hardest at "interruptible" customers — large industrial users whose contracts call for them to be cut off in times of trouble. These customers make arrangements for alternate sources of energy like heating oil. Cold weather frequently has meant cutoffs for the "interruptibles" in the past and officials say the situation will be worse this year.

Most utilities said residential customers and high-priority users like hospitals and schools would not be affected by the shortage. But some companies are trying to discourage new customers.

Ohio industries will bear the brunt of a natural gas shortage this winter, as major state gas companies prepare for winter cutbacks of up to 20 per cent, a survey of several firms has shown.

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., serving 988,541 customers in Ohio, has announced a fivemonth 20 per cent cutback beginning Nov. 1 for industrial customers.

Earl Loucks, company spokesman, blames the problem on the federal government, saying prices set by the Federal Power Commission at the natural gas well heads have been too low to attract the necessary capital to drill new sources.

Loucks said residential customers shouldn't feel the effects of the shortage, as they are the last to be cut.

Dayton Power & Light Co. says it will get 14 per cent less natural gas from its wholesale supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

Dal Foreman, public information spokesman for DP&L, said the firm is receiving some synthetic gas from a plant near Fremont, but the additional supply won't make up for the cut. He said some industrial shortages will probably result.

The amount industries will be asked to trim depends on the firm's new allotment which begins Oct. 20. Foreman added.

Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. predicts a 60 to 100-day winter curtailment period beginning Nov. 1. The firm says only special contract and industrial customers will be affected, and it has alerted them to begin the search for alternate fuels.

Yule parade set Nov. 24

The 1974 Washington C.H. area Christmas parade will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, November 24, according to Edward Fisher and Charles Winkle, chairman and vice chairman of this year's event.

The event is staged annually to bring Santa Claus to the city, and designates that the Christmas season has arrived once again. Bands, queens, floats, marching units will be on hand for the festivities.

While this will mark the first time the parade has been scheduled for Sunday, it is hoped the working families and their children will be more accessible and free to attend on that day, Fisher said. Also, the event has been set for 2 p.m. to avoid conflict with morning and evening church services and to allow the many church youth groups to participate in the parade with floats and regular marching units.

Fisher said that a planning committee meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday, October 11 in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office to assign responsibilities for the many related parade activities.

Following the planning committee meeting, a parade theme will be announced as well as details for local groups interested in entering floats and participating in the parade.

Deaths, Funerals

Miss Cleo Hollingsworth

JAMESTOWN — Miss Cleo M. Hollingsworth, 57, of Jamestown, died Wednesday afternoon in the Autumn Years Nursing Home, Sabina, where she had been a patient one week.

Born in Bowersville, Miss Hollingsworth had owned and operated the Hollingsworth Nursing Home, Jamestown, for 14 years before retiring last April.

She is survived by three brothers, Traverse, of Washington C. H., and Milton and Arthur, both of Bowersville, and a sister, Mrs. Robert (Hazel) Drake, of Reesville.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Powers Funeral Home, Jamestown, with burial in Bowersville Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 2 to 4 and 7 until 9 p.m. Friday.

LAWRENCE J. JOHNSON — Services for Lawrence J. Johnson, 80, of 810 Leesburg Ave., were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert L. Barker officiating. He was assisted by the Rev. John Buck and Elder William Dawes.

Mrs. Jerita Bays sang two hymns with piano accompaniment from Miss Patty Rhoades. Mr. Johnson died Monday.

A native of Laurelville, he moved to Washington C.H. 40 years ago, and as employed for 30 years at the Old Jenson Greenhouse.

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were Art and Robert Newell, Pat Kelley, Richard Violet, Robert Hartley and John Faught. The flag of the World War I veteran which draped the casket was folded by Clarence Hackett and J. Paul Strevey and was presented to Mr. Johnson's stepson, Charles Kelley.

Gilligan, Netzley debate

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan said Wednesday night that no new taxes would be needed to finance any proposals he has recently made, but Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-7 Laura, claimed new taxes would be needed if Gilligan kept promises made over the past week.

The Democratic governor and the Republican conservation whom Gilligan once called "a complete bubblehead" made the claims as they squared off in a debate before about 80 persons at Sinclair Community College.

Both came armed with statistics, Netzley with figures attempting to show that income tax money was being squandered and Gilligan with figures to show what he has accomplished in four years.

Gilligan said his financial advisers had assured him the increase in revenues from current taxes would keep pace with any new projects he may propose.

Netzley claimed that promises he made last week would total $1.5 billion.

"There will be a tax increase if the governor fills all of his promises," said Netzley. "There is no way you can raise $1 billion without increasing taxes."

The debate was arranged by the Miami Valley Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society.

Gilligan said he was debating Netzley because his own opponent in November, former Gov. James A. Rhodes, had refused to debate.

Gilligan set up the confrontation last August when he said he would debate Netzley "on any street corner."

Netzley, who won the flip of a coin and got to give his 10-minute opening remarks first, got the debate off to a fast start.

"I've waited two years for this," he said, adding: "Governor, you are a master of the old consumer fraud game called bait and switch. You sold Ohio an income tax on the basis the money would go for education and to reduce real estate taxes.

"But you delivered skyrocketing welfare and thousands of new bureaucrats."

Gilligan said when he became governor Ohio ranked 50th in tax efforts and schools were closing throughout the state.

Schools were given a financial footing, he said.

Forty per cent of costs for schools now come from the state, Gilligan said, and property taxes declined last year, "the first time that has happened since the depths of the great depression."

Gilligan said Netzley "may not be an adequate substitute in some respects for Mr. Rhodes— he's a good deal younger, among other things, but he has said some of the same dangerous, irresponsible things during the course of this campaign and in earlier months about our revenue system in this state and the conduct of state affairs."

Gilligan said he would apologize about the "bubblehead" remark but he felt the apology might be misconstrued.

"I would beg his pardon for that except a request between politicians of that type might be misunderstood even though one of us is a Democrat," Gilligan said.

After the debate a newsman in the audience asked Gilligan if the advisors who told him no new taxes would be needed were the same ones that told him there would be no surplus in the budget of the last fiscal year. There was $80.5 million left over.

"The very same," Gilligan answered. He said the fluctuating national economy put estimates off 3 per cent, but he would rather have a surplus than a deficit.

"If that's a blunder, we blew it," he said.

Meanwhile, Rhodes said in a statement issued by his Columbus campaign headquarters that, if elected, he will begin his administration as he did when he became governor in 1963, by cutting the costs of state government.

"The fat has got to go," said Rhodes, whose austerity programs gained national attention.

Rhodes said state government is "gravely bloated" with an excessive number of state employes, while also paying millions in fees to outside consultants. Duplication and "frilly spending," he said, have blown the state budget to a level disproportionate to services provided.

In Cincinnati, Republican U.S. Senate candidate Ralph Perk discounted polls that show him far behind Democratic nominee John Glenn and predicted he will be able to "turn around" a sufficient number of votes to win in November.

The Cleveland mayor, in the Queen City to open his campaign headquarters there, said a combination of 125,000 to 150,000 "usually Democratic" votes in Cleveland and the solid Republican votes downstate will swing the election in his favor.

Nancy Brown, an independent candidate for governor, said in Cincinnati Wednesday she is "running to win" and expects support from youths, working people and women.

The 23-year-old candidate is a member of the Socialist Workers Party, which she said is calling for abolition of all taxes on income under $15,000, 100 per cent taxes on income over $30,000, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and full rights for homosexuals.

Stock list plummets

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 10.48 at 591.05, and losers outpaced gainers by close to 2-to-1 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow, which had rebounded after a brief pass below 600 Tuesday, showed little sign of resistance as it sank below it again today. The average last closed below that psychological milestone on Nov. 1, 1962.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off .40 at 61.61.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .44 to 33.00.

Frost and freeze warnings were issued for northeast Ohio tonight, but a warming trend later Friday is expected to increase temperatures to the upper 50s and 60s.

Toledo set a low record this morning at 25, coldest in the state. Cleveland was warmest with 40, due to a Lake Erie water temperature of 62.

Snow flurries fell over portions of the northeast Wednesday night. Clouds were expected to decrease today with mainly sunny, but cool weather prevailing this afternoon. High temperatures were forecast in the upper 40s and 50s.

A chance of showers Saturday and Sunday, ending Monday. Highs in the 70s. Lows in the upper 40s and the 50s.

Government plans for coal strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is preparing contingency plans to divert some coal supplies from electric utilities and to embargo coal exports in the event of a miners' strike next month.

These are among several measures outlined in a memo from the Federal Energy Administration to the Interior Department. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

The planning considers requiring electric utility companies to sell up to 40 per cent of their new coal deliveries to other industries, possibly under federal allocation and price control.

A government official involved in the planning said the moves under consideration would be unlikely to result in power brownouts or blackouts or electrical rate increases. The moves are designed to preserve jobs and to prevent production cutbacks in other industries, the official said.

The FEA also is considering seeking legislative authority to slap an excise tax on electricity "as a standby in case of an urgent need to reduce demand significantly," and to require industry to cut back production and public services.

No details were mentioned but presumably the steps would not be taken unless a strike, if it occurred, lasted several weeks.

Contract talks in the soft-coal industry began a month ago and negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the coal companies have until Nov. 12 to reach agreement before the current pact expires.

Energy experts estimate a fully effective coal strike would deny the nation three times as much energy on a daily basis as the oil embargo did last winter.

The tentative plans for coping with a possible coal strike still are being worked out by FEA Asst. Administrator Eric Zausner and others. In discussing the merits of a coal allocation program, the FEA memo noted that such a program would subject the government "to political criticism because it dampens the effect of the strike."

Government officials were reluctant to discuss the planning in part because of what they said could be the appearance of interfering in the negotiations.

A spokesman for UMW President Arnold Miller called the contingency planning counterproductive and said they "might wind up prolonging a strike if a strike takes place."

In its planning, the FEA estimates even if a strike tied up 80 per cent of the nation's coal production, nonsteel industrial shortages could be made up by diverting about a third of new coal deliveries that would still be going to utilities.

Nations must change lifestyle due to oil costs, official says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end of cheap oil will force the industrialized nations to change their lifestyles, Iran's finance minister says.

Hushang Ansary has been the only man to answer the scores of finance ministers who have complained for three days here about the disastrous effects wrought on their economies by the four-fold increase in oil prices.

"Once cheap oil is no longer available, you have to do something: either lower your standard of living, forget about excessive consumption and about waste being an important basis of your economy, or you have to increase productivity, or both," Ansary said.

"But how can you do it if you have social problems in your 'permissive society' ... with strikes every other day?" Ansary asked.

It was not known whether officials of other oil producing nations will follow him before the World Bank and International Monetary Fund meeting, which ends Friday.

Yet Ansary does not consider himself the spokesman of the oil producers. He spoke Tuesday as his country's finance minister and as governor of the World Bank for Iran, he stressed in an interview.

"The industrial countries must recognize that as cheap oil and other raw materials are no longer available, the situation calls either for a change in lifestyles or an effort to do away with social ills and increase productivity," he told a hushed audience on Tuesday.

What did he have in mind? Ansary was asked.

"It boils down to this," he replied. "Cheap oil and other raw materials made it possible for the Western countries to flourish and to make rapid economic progress.

He recalled that Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, the Shah of Iran, repeatedly said that oil prices depend on the rate of inflation, meaning that they would go up if the producers had to pay higher prices for their imports. This is now the policy of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But this would work both ways, Ansary said: "Once you link the two things, they share the same future in whatever direction they go," meaning that should the prices of manufactured goods decline, the price of oil would follow suit.

New Middle East war seen unless U.S. pushes Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheik Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's petroleum minister, warns that another Middle East war could break out in the next six months if the United States does not force Israel to pull back all the way to its 1967 borders.

"All the ingredients of another war are here if we don't have a full Israeli withdrawal," Yamani told 17 newsmen at a dinner Wednesday night.

However, if Israel yields all the land occupied during the 1967 war Saudi Arabia should be able to persuade all Arab members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to sharply reduce current oil prices, he said.

"I assure you if we can solve the (Israeli) problem the price of oil will come down," Yamani told his guests.

Together Arab states produce some 24 million barrels of petroleum a day. Yamani's theory is that Iran and Venezuela, the two top non-Arab producing nations, would not withstand a united Arab drive for lower prices.

The Harvard-educated oil minister portrayed Saudi Arabia as a friend of the United States and a steadfast advocate within oil councils of lower prices. Were it not for Saudi Arabia, he said, petroleum would now sell at $15 to $17 a barrel instead of about $11.

"It's all in America's hands," he said. "Israel's only source of power is the United States."

Yamani advanced two major reasons for Israel to settle now with its Arab neighbors by giving up all of its gains from the 1967 war.

Ordinary Americans, finding oil prices on the rise, are questioning whether the current level of U.S. support for Israel is in their interest, he said.

Also, Yamani said, the Arabs are growing ever stronger militarily.

"We're not suggesting Israel should disappear," he said. "The United States can give it security. But the Palestinians who lost their homes have to be treated as human beings."

Yamani said Saudi Arabi will continue its campaign at the next OPEC meeting in December for a price reduction of $1 a barrel.

Howard Hughes won't face court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes will not be extradited from the Bahamas to face trial in Las Vegas, a Justice Department spokesman says.

Spokesman Robert Stevenson said Wednesday that department lawyers decided against trying to extradite Hughes to face stock manipulation charges because it would be expensive and chances of success were slim.

Hughes is scheduled to be arraigned Oct. 25 in federal court on charges of wire fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy to manipulate the stock of Air West airlines.

Harsha opposes gas tax plan

WASHINGTON — Congressman William H. Harsha has announced that he is "unalterably opposed" to a proposed 10 cent per gallon tax on gasoline.

The representative to the House from the 6th District contends that the tax will do nothing to stop inflation.

"Although it will conserve energy by urging the use of mass transportation, it will do nothing for the residents of the rural 6th District where there is very little in the way of mass transit," the congressman said.

He added that people in rural districts depend heavily on automobiles as a means of getting to and from work, shopping and farming — and they are already paying nearly twice as much for gasoline as they did a year ago.

He called John Sawhill's proposal of an additional gasoline tax a "wild idea," from a man who must have "his head in the sand."

Harsha said he is certain that Congress will defeat any attempt to impose the tax and is presently preparing a letter to President Ford on the subject.

Maddox plans new restaurant

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, defeated in an attempt to regain Georgia's governorship, says he plans to open a new version of the restaurant that he closed to keep from integrating.

Maddox, 59, gained the attention that launched his political career by chasing blacks from his Pickrick Restaurant with ax handles.

He said he plans a new Pickrick in Atlanta and will open others if the first is successful. Any new restaurant would have to be integrated by law.

East Ohio Gas Co., on the other hand, anticipates no problem this winter with natural gas supplies, if pipe line curtailments don't exceed those presently forecast.

Benefit game

Those involved in the contest and other activities Saturday night, and the persons who were instrumental in the countless behind-the-scenes preparations are too numerous to mention.

The game is the brainchild of the Community Education advisory council following more than four years of abuse and wisecracks from the witty James Francis Patrick O'Neill who invented the Offsides on his early morning WLW-Radio broadcasts.

O'Neill will be appearing at Saturday night's game and will join veteran high school football announcer Max Lawrence in the Gardner Park Stadium press box to call the play-by-play action.

City officials have proclaimed Saturday as "Washington C.H. Offsides Day" and O'Neill will be honored as the "Citizen of the Day" here.

Saturday night's Pony League football games have been rescheduled with an earlier starting time to accommodate the fund-raising contest.

FANS ATTENDING the game will easily recognize a number of the participants, especially the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church in Washington C.H. and chaplain of the Cincinnati Bengals, who will be serving as the game chaplain.

Several service clubs and other area organizations will be assisting in staging the contest and special activities have been planned, including halftime performances by the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace high school marching bands.

The advanced sale of tickets has been successful at the established outlets and by members of three service clubs over the last three weeks. The tickets, priced at $1 per person, can be purchased at both the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace football games Friday night. Additionally, the tickets can be purchased at the gate Saturday night.

False arrests could multiply

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new survey by the General Accounting Office suggests that false arrests could occur more and more often as police around the nation turn to computerized crime files.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., who already has introduced legislation to limit the use of criminal records, is drafting still another restriction to prevent such occurrences.

"Obviously," Ervin said recently, "a suspect with his hands against the patrol car ... will not be able to convince that officer that an arrest record ... is inaccurate or incomplete and that he was exonerated for the arrest and should not be arrested."

In a statement entered in the Congressional Records, Ervin warned that increasing computerization of criminal records, known as rap sheets, "could enormously magnify the risk of false arrest because of instantaneous use of incomplete or inaccurate or irrelevant past arrest information."

The GAO study, commissioned by Ervin's constitutional rights subcommittee, noted the bulk of police requests for criminal records from the FBI and from state files still are handled manually.

It often takes as long as two weeks for the replies to be delivered by mail or teletype.

Consequently, "criminal history information was used primarily after an individual was arrested," said GAO investigators.

The data showed that records obtained from manual files were used prior to an arrest in fewer than 10 per cent of the cases surveyed.

But when the requests were chanelled through the computerized criminal history system maintained by the FBI, the records were used before arrest in almost one-third of the cases.

"It is reasonable to conclude that computerization of rap sheets would mean that such information would become available for making arrests," Ervin said.

The GAO study lent support to complaints that rap sheets often list arrests without reporting whether the individual was convicted or acquitted.

Officials of the three states involved in the survey — Florida, Massachusetts and California — "told us that lack of disposition data or the existence of inaccurate disposition data are serious problems," GAO investigators said.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Way It Was," a 13-week sports nostalgia series, starts tonight on public TV. If you keep track of closing credits on TV, you'll see the new series was "created by Herb Schmertz."

Who's he? The credits don't say, but he is the vice president for public affairs at the Mobil Oil Corp., which shelled out $360,000 for the half-hour series, plus the cost of newspaper ads and a press agent.

However, there's no rule against a public TV underwriter creating a show it bankrolls, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., president of the Public Broadcasting Service, which is feeding the series to PBS stations.

Furthermore, Gunn said with a chuckle, "I think he's probably maybe crediting himself with more than he did. Actually, it was an idea I may have cooked up.

"It got suggested to Herb and Herb went out and found a producer in Hollywood ... and then they came back to us. We said our rule is that it has to be supervised by one of the stations in the PBS system.

"So we got them together with KCET," he said, referring to the Los Angeles public TV station where the show was put together.

"His role was not one of supervision and production, but there's no question he had important suggestions on how the show ought to be done and its shape, because he's a sports buff.

"But there's no prohibition against that. My feeling is that a good idea or concept can come from anywhere. The key to it is who supervises the production, and it was KCET in this case."

He said when Schmertz' name appeared on the closing credits, "we said, 'Oh, that's probably going to raise some eyebrows.' But on the other hand, it's fair.

"We should acknowledge he made a creative contribution to it, as did some of the rest of us. The producer (Gerry Gross) and KCET incorporated the suggestions and wrapped it all together.

"As long as it's not on the subject of oil — or the economy — I guess we're probably all right," Gunn laughed. "I wouldn't want to get them (Mobil) anywhere near those things."

Sportscaster Curt Gowdy is host of the series. Tonight, he takes viewers back for a fond look at the famous 1951 pennant playoff between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants.

GI admits smuggling attempt

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Kettering soldier William S. Medley told The Dayton Daily News Wednesday that he did attempt to smuggle an East German couple into West Germany at Checkpoint Charlie in Berlin Sept. 10.

Medley was caught and arrested at the border by East German authorities and turned over to the Soviet officials. He was released one week later to the U.S. Army.

During an Article 15 hearing, held in West Berlin, Medley admitted that he had been guilty of attempting to smuggle the pair across the border and was given an "in-house punishment."

He was subsequently broken in rank three grades, fined $150 a month for two months and reassigned to duty in the United States.

From Ft. Stewart, Medley freely discussed the case by telephone.

"I think there was a leak somewhere," he said concerning the arrest. "When I got there (Checkpoint Charlie), they closed the place down to search my car. I knew I was in for it."

Asked if there had been money involved in the deal to smuggle out the East German couple, Medley said, "Yes, but that was minor.

"If I'd been successful and had collected money afterward, that would have been fine. That would have been gravy. But that wasn't why I did it, not really as I look back on the incident."

Medley said he did not know who made the original escape arrangements. He said he agreed to help out after the subject had been discussed a couple of times in a small bar GIs frequented.

He said he did not meet the "young couple, nice looking and well dressed" until the smuggling attempt. The couple hid in the trunk of his car.

At the border, the pair was arrested, Medley said. "I don't know what happened to them after the arrest."

Fertilizer costs zoom for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everything costs more these days, but few items have gone up as much as fertilizer needed by farmers to boost crop production.

As of Sept. 15, says the Agriculture Department, the farm price of all types of fertilizer averaged 19 per cent above last April. And compared with a year earlier, on Sept. 15, 1973, the average was up 81 per cent.

The new figures were included in USDA's monthly farm price report issued Monday. Other production items, including machinery and seed, also were up.

Anhydrous ammonia, a nitrogen source derived from natural gas, cost an average of $229 per ton as of Sept. 15, the report said. Last April 15 it was $183 and a year ago $92.50 per ton.

Mixed fertilizers, including nitrogen, phosphate and potash, also were up sharply. A mixture of 10 per cent of each — called 10-10-10 — cost a national average of $123 per ton last month, compared with $103 last April and $70.80 a year ago.

Although prices farmers pay out to meet expenses have increased generally for a long time — the index was up 17 per cent last month from Sept. 15, 1973 — fertilizer costs, machinery, feed, labor and feeder livestock have been among the leaders.

Farm machinery prices as of mid-September were up nine per cent from last June when those costs were last surveyed. Those were up 22 per cent from a year ago.

Prices of feeder livestock, mainly cattle, have dropped substantially in recent months as the result of the cost crunch on feedlot profits and a move toward more beef produced from animals fed less grain.

The Sept. 15 feeder livestock index was down 12 per cent from August and averaged 37 per cent below a year ago. Prices of feed have come down slightly but not enough in relation to depressed cattle and hog prices to trigger an expansion.

Farmers also are paying much higher prices for seed to plant winter grain, hay and forage crops this fall, the report showed.

The USDA seed price index last month was up 20 per cent over-all from Sept. 15, 1973, including sharp gains for certified alfalfa seed, up 39 per cent from a year earlier and uncertified seed up 44 per cent.

Uncertified alfalfa seed was reported at $151 per 100 pounds, compared with $105 a year ago and $54.80 on Sept. 15, 1972. Certified seed was $166 for 100 pounds, compared with $119 last years and $64.50 two years ago.

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

CIA attacked for great success

The CIA, which was started by President Harry Truman to counter the wiles of the Soviet "psywar" aparatchiks in promoting international subversion, may have had its successes (in Guatemala, for example), but, insofar as the American public can judge from the part of the iceberg that shows above the water, it has never been noteworthy for its ability to carry off a really important covert operation. It messed things up in Albania, In Indonesia, and at the Bay of Pigs in Cuba.

But now we are being told, by journalists who never minded its failures, that it has accomplished something terrible by its success in "destabilizing" the regime of Marxist President Salvador Allende in Chile.

I find this an odd commentary on the journalists involved. If you are a patriotic American who remembers that we once meant business about keeping European powers from obtaining sinister beacheads in the Western Hemisphere, you might think that the CIA, at long last, merits a little public praise. But if this is the way you do happen to think, it merely labels you as a mossback who still believes there was a good reason for the Monroe Doctrine.

What the anti-CIA claque is trying to tell us is that the day of the Monroe Doctrine has gone forever. It is no longer our business to give help to Latin Americans who want to fight back against Marxist conspiracies dominated by Moscow or Peking whose aims are to close in on the U.S. and the Panama Canal from the southern part of the hemisphere.

The New York Time's Tom Wicker tells us that it is nonsense to believe the Allende government was anything other than legit. It did not try, so Mr. Wicker insists, to destroy opposition parties or newspapers. An innocent of innocents, Tom Wicker has never read the late Garet Garrett on the subject of "revolution within the forms."

Senor Allende, a Marxist who came to power as a minority president with no real mandate to push Chile into Communism, had necessarily to proceed by working "within the forms." He had almost succeeded in his policy of eating out the substance of his opposition by closing in on their methods of earning their livelihoods. The middle class and the Chilean trade unions reacted just in time to save their necks.

If the CIA really managed to give ponderable aid to Chilean believers in individual freedom in a fight against Marxist collectivism, then all honor it. But who, in the present Washington climate, can distinguish between a good covert operation aimed at sustaining our friends in the outer world and a bad covert operation undertaken against Americans at home? Everything has been confused by Watergate, with the effect that we are now being rendered helpless against the continuing Marxist campaign to isolate Western Europe and the United States and take over the world.

Ed Hunter, the astute editor of a little magazine called Tactics, has recently reminded us of the CIA's long history of failure. Because it could not cope with superior Communist espionage, it sent men to their deaths in Albania and at the Bay of Pigs.

Skipping over the CIA's one great success in Guatemala, Mr. Hunter lists what he calls "Watergate-ITT" as another CIA bungling. We didn't act on the ITT offer to help fend off Allende in the first place. The Reds, he says, pulled off a propagandist ten-strike when they managed to link a felonious domestic Watergate with the ITT's wholly legitimate concern for the fate of its properties in Chile.

Says Mr. Hunter: "Our Central Intelligence Agency and the International Telephone and Telegraph Company should be rebuked for failure to act on behalf of free peoples everywhere, where this conincides with the survival of our own country."

Mr. Hunter wrote these words before it became known that the CIA had tried to do something to help the Chileans rid themselves of Allende. If the CIA really managed to help the Chileans along in their effort to restore the validity of the Monroe Doctrine, it deserves some kudos at long last. Odd, then, that it should be under fire.

This is one price we are paying for Watergate, and it is time that we become clear about it in our own minds.

You may not have as much leeway in carrying out your activities as you hope for, but all sincere effort will bring reward, nevertheless.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a delightful personality, great integrity and a practicality that helps you put your original and imaginative ideas over the top. You can add the touch that makes an ordinary job sparkle, put lively enthusiasm into a dull or simple undertaking. You are extremely versatile but, in using your many talents, you concentrate on the more sound and basic aspects of an opus than on its showier side. Thus, in the theater, you would be a better producer than actor; in writing, historical records would have more meaning than a flashy novel. But you do love the arts and should you decide to take one up either vocationally or avocationally, music and sculpture would be your best bets.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Today, I will mail two checks to the Leukemia Society from you dear people in Washington C.H., Fayette and surrounding counties. One check is for $375.72 which was collected in a freewill offering during our gospel sing last Friday night.

To our special singers, the Carter family, the Stritenberger family, the Revelation Singers, and the Christian Way Singers, we express our heartfelt thanks. To the many people who came to the sing, we appreciate each one of you. Thank you for your donations. It was a great success both spiritually and financially. God was surely there.

The other check is for the amount of $323.37. This money was raised at the backyard carnival in our front yard. It was the first Leukemia carnival for our area, and thanks to you people, it was a tremendous success. Who would ever think that a person could raise that amount from pennies, nickels and dimes? One person couldn't. We all did it together, children and adults both. I appreciate everyone of you who helped make this possible. You were wonderful.

The merchants in our town are the world's greatest. All I had to do was ask for a donation and they would ask how much and say to come back if you need more. Thanks so much to the following: Jeff Royal Blue, Sabina IGA, The Club, Western Auto, Mutt's, Risch's, Downtown Drug Store, Hidy's, First Federal Savings and Loan, Boylan and Cannon, Stop and Go, Watson's Office Supply, Landmark, French's Hardware, Cardinal Store, Colonel Sanders, G.C. Murphy Co., Sagar's, Frisch's, Backenstoe Market, Morrow Funeral Home, Arnold Feibelkorn for the ice, Nationwide Insurance and Boylan Jewelers, and to the many who sponsored ads in the paper, and to The Record-Herald for their most touching stories and advertising, and to all those who let us advertise in their store windows.

Special thanks to Patricia Wilson at First National Bank who spent much time counting money and making checks to send.

To the many people who brought delicious looking baked goods. We even had a basket of tomatoes donated that brought over $3.00. Thank you all.

With people like you on our side there is no reason in this world to sit back and feel sorry for ourselves. It is so encouraging to know that people will take time out of their busy lives to help such a worthy cause. We can whip leukemia-together.

A special thank you goes out to all the workers who have been canvassing the town for our drive. We have workers in Bloomingburg, (mostly teenagers), Jeffersonville (mostly Boy Scouts), Staunton, Sabina and other smaller areas. If a worker hasn't knocked on your door, you can mail your donation to me.

On behalf of the Leukemia Society, the Crabtree family and the thousands of leukemia victims everywhere, I want to personally thank each one of you for your help. Thank you seems to be so little in return for all you've done. Sometimes it is hard to express what is in your heart, but from the very depths of my heart, I do thank you all. God bless.

Leroy, Mary, Julie Beth and John Crabtree.

Ohio Perspective

State residents get high view

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— They can't watch Ohio State play football, but sightseers will get a view of Ohio Stadium from an observation deck now going up on the top office floor of the new State Office Tower in downtown Columbus.

Daniel Shields, acting director of the Ohio Building Authority, predicted the observation area-in the northeast corner of the 40th floor of the 41-story building-would open next spring.

The observation area is closed to the public now. Construction still is going on, and visitors, if they could get there, would have to wear hardhats while gawking at the scenery 592 feet below.

Shields said most construction will be completed by the end of the year, with the observation area opened to guided tours by March or April.

The observation area, fronted by 7-foot high glass windows, offers an expansive view of north Columbus. Just to the west, the sharp-eyed sports fan gets a partly obstructed view of Ohio Stadium and a clear sighting of St. John's Arena.

"I do want people to come to the top of the building," said Shields. "We can't deny them that."

Taxpayers already have been given a view of the soaring cost of the monolithic brown skyscraper. Its estimated price tag has climbed from $50 million to $76 million and may go still higher.

The observation deck atop the city's second tallest building, the 555-foot LeVeque-Lincoln Tower, closed about eight months ago to provide more office space.

Although the State Office Tower has three fewer stories than the LeVeque-Lincoln building, Shields said storage areas on the sixth and 41st stories each are equivalent to three levels in the older building.

Only the state auditor on floors 10 and 11, about half the state treasurer's office on 9 and 10, and public welfare allotted 30 through 34 and 37 and 38 remain yet to move in.

Shields has set up shop on the 40th floor, and he is fond of interrupting telephone conversations with the observation, "A helicopter just flew under me. It's kind of unusual to have one go under you."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She'll marry him for the fourth time

DEAR ABBY: I am a fairly intelligent, nice-looking woman of 33, who is getting married for the fourth time.

Before you jump to the conclusion that I am fickle or a poor judge of character, let me tell you that I am marrying the same man for the fourth time.

We don't have any kids, so that's not why we keep going back to each other.

Don't send me to a shrink. I've been to one. We've also seen marriage counselors. They have all told us the same thing. We NEED each other.

We've tried living together (without marriage) and even living with others. It didn't work. We fight a lot, but when we kiss and make up it's better than ever. When he hits me, I hit him back, and believe me, I can take care of myself.

He's not a meal ticket and neither am I. We could both make it on our own.

Abby, have you ever heard from couples who married each other more than once, and learned the secret of making that marriage work?

If so, please let me know. I can't live WITH him and I can't live WITHOUT him. Thanks.

FOURTH TIME AROUND

DEAR FOURTH: All right, I'll try. Readers? Is it really more wonderful the second time around-with the same partner, that is?

DEAR ABBY: As far back as I can remember, I've wanted to be a school teacher. Now my dream has come true.

I would like to make a lasting impression on my students. What should I stress that will be truly helpful to sixth graders? I want to inspire them to learn.

NEW TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Tell them to read, read, read and read some more! There is a treasury of knowledge-free for the taking on the shelves of our public libraries. The person who DOES NOT read has no advantage over the person who WILL NOT read.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a bride to do the Polish apron dance at her reception if neither one of the couple is Polish?

I know of one wedding where nobody was Polish, but they did the dance anyway because every little bit helps when a young couple is just starting out.

GETTING MARRIED

DEAR GETTING: If you want to take up a collection at your wedding reception, this is as good a way as any.

DEAR ABBY: When I graduated from high school, a well-to-do uncle who lived in Portland sent me a check for $100. I put it in my billfold intending to bank it. I failed to write and thank him for it immediately as I should have. I didn't get around to banking it (or trying to) until three months later.

When I tried to bank the check, I found that he had stopped payment on it! Then I received a letter from my uncle saying that since he didn't hear from me for three months, he assumed the check had been lost. In a sense, it was. I "lost" 100 bucks, but I learned a lesson about promptness I'll never forget

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 3, the 276th day of 1974. There are 89 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, the British exploded their first atomic bomb, in a test off the coast of Australia.

On this date —

In 1876, Johns Hopkins University opened in Baltimore.

In 1954, a nine-power conference in London agreed that West Germany should enter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: The threat of a strike against major U.S. railroads was averted for 60 days as President Nixon set up an emergency fact-finding board.

One year ago: Willi Stoph was replaced by Horst Sindermann as premier of East Germany. Stoph became chairman of the council of state.

Miss Sharron Kay Halliday became the bride of John Edward Meighan Sept. 28. The candlelight double-ring ceremony took place in Saint Andrew's Episcopal Church at 7:30 p.m. with Dr. Leroy Davis, rector, officiating.

Miss Halliday is the daughter of Mrs. Felix Simms Halliday of 557 Albin Ave., and the late Mr. Halliday. Mr. John William Meighan of Crystal Beach, Tex., is the father of the bridegroom.

Two silver altar vases filled with pink gladioli, blue, pink and white carnations with white bows, and two sets of seven-branch candelabra with white candles entwined with leather leaf with white bows graced the front of the church. The center aisle was adorned with brass hurricane lamps with white candles entwined with boxwood, with white bows.

Jeff Brown and Bret Longberry were the acolytes. Mrs Clarence Barger, organist, presented a selection of wedding music and the Wedding March by Mendelssohn.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Jack Halliday, the bride wore a gown of white crystal crepe with Venice lace trim, fitted empire bodice of all lace, cameo neckline. The shepherdess sleeves with lace caps over the shoulders had lace cuffs. The A-line skirt had a wide flounced bordered with Venice lace, which came to a chapel length train. Her headpiece of matching lace, trimmed in seed pearls, held the silk illusion veil. She wore a small ruby pendant encircled with diamonds, a gift from her mother and father, and carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds, stephanotis, and blue baby's breath, with streamers of white pecot ribbon. The couple also received Holy Communion following the marriage ceremony.

Maid of honor, Miss Sue Jones, college roommate from Columbus, wore a long gown with hooded jacket of romance blue maracanie knit. The gown featured a high neck with halter back and A-line skirt. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William Halliday, and Mrs. John Halliday, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Randy LeMaster, all of Washington C.H., and the Misses Linda De Matteis and Mary Lou Brown, both of Columbus, all wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. Each carried a colonial bouquet of all colors of miniature carnations, pink rosebuds, lavender statice, baby's breath, with pastel ribbon streamers.

William Meighan, brother of the groom from Crystal Beach, Tex., served as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests were William Halliday and John Halliday, brothers of the bride, from Washington C.H. The groomsmen were Joseph Kieholtz and Richard Hall, both of Columbus, and Peter Conlon of New York.

Senior hostesses for the reception which followed in Story Hall were Mrs. Buckner Burbage and Mrs. Paul Dougherty; junior hostesses, Miss Martha Roberts, Mrs. Larry Garringer, Miss Cindy Wickline, and Mrs. Jeff Garringer. Senior hostesses wore white cymbidium orchid corsages, and the junior hostesses white carnation with blue baby's breath corsages. Miss Kay Allen presided at the guest book.

The bride's table held a five tiered wedding cake topped with flowers to match the bridesmaid's bouquets. The cake and crystal punch bowl were encircled with smilax and flowers to match the attendants bouquets. The bride's table and punch table were with white lace cloths with lace overlay, and silver appointments. Pink tapers were in the candelabra. White cloths with lace overlay, silver candelabra with pink tapers, and silver appointments completed the setting.

The new Mrs. Meighan was wearing a navy blue pantsuit and corsage of red rosebuds for their wedding trip to Los Vegas, Nev. She and her husband are now residing at 1518 Kenny Rd., Columbus.

The bride, a graduate of Ohio State University, is physical education instructor at Orient State Institute. Her husband, who received a bachelor of arts and master's degree from Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., and his doctorate degree from OSU, is a member of the faculty at OSU working with the Center for Vocational and Technical Education.

The groom's father was host at dinner at the Terrace Lounge on Friday following rehearsal. The head table was centered with a large floral arrangement and candles. Individual tables were also centered with smaller matching floral arrangements.

Abbie Knutson, 169 Mays Dr., Sabina, was awarded the Mini-Royalty Award for the best flower arrangement in the Junior Division of the Miami Valley Rose Show, held Sunday, Sept. 29, at the Wegerzyn Garden Center in Dayton. Miss Knutson is a second grade student in Sabina Elementary School.

The Rose Show, an annual event, attracts exhibitors from a large portion of the state.

Howard Knutson, her father, received the award for best arrangement in the Men's Divison; he also received an award for the best specimen of old garden roses, and his lavender entry, 'Lady X', was selected as one of the top four blooms exhibited in the show. Mr. Knutson is associated with Downtown Drugs, and has given talks to several Fayette County groups on the subjects of roses and rose growing.

Money Does Matter . . .

By Robert E. English

It's Just A Simple Matter of Trust . . .

Basically, a "Trust" is a business or family arrangement whereby a "Trustee" holds and manages cash, securities, real estate, or any other kind of property for the benefit of other persons, called "beneficiaries."

Example: You turn over property to a Bank or a trust for the benefit of children. YOU are the "creator" of Trust. The Bank is the Trustee, the children are the Beneficiaries.

There are many kinds of types of Trusts - "living" trusts which function while you are alive - or those under a will which do not become operative until after your death.

Trusts can, and very often should be used for a variety of estate needs. There are many varieties designed for a variety of needs. No mysteries. Your Banker knows the answers.

Best wishes to Fred B. Conley on his new painting business adventure in the Washington Square Shopping Center.

Best of luck to Glendon Yerian upon his retirement from the Washington Court House Post Office after 35 years of service.

Much money or property does NOT have to be involved in order to make the establishment of a Trust practical. Every situation is unique in itself. Let's do some talking, down at our Bank, Your Friendly First National Bank of Washington Court House.

Xenia studies tornado disaster lessons

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Bob Stewart sat at the head table and watched slides of the tornado that destroyed 40 per cent of his city exactly six months ago.

He listened as a recorder played a tape which had been left running as the tornado approached the city. The roar of the wind grew louder and louder until it sounded like a train. Then Stewart heard a roof rip off a building and then silence as the power which ran the recorder suddenly went dead.

"If that had been any louder, I might have run out of the room," Stewart said later.

Stewart is city manager of the city which gained prominence when the tornado struck April 3.

"They called it the day of the hundred tornados," Stewart said. "I'm not sure why Xenia came out with the most national exposure. There were other places hit hard by tornados that day.

"It must have been the magnitude of the disaster."

The tornado killed 30 persons and destroyed more than 1,400 homes in the community.

Stewart, here Wednesday to speak at a meeting of the Ohio Environmental Health Association's Southwest District, said Xenia had advance warning of the tornado.

"Many people have asked me 'why didn't you run right for cover?'" Stewart said.

"I remember we had plenty of warning and as the tornado approached, there was a crowd of people watching it. Even my family was out in the street."

The problems that the tornado brought showed basic flaws in traditional disaster planning, he said.

"I had a beautiful book with a disaster plan in it," Stewart said.

"But who could find it when my office was in a shambles. And how could I carry a book underneath my arm when I went out in the street.

"After the tornado, we had people coming up to us with hammers and we had people coming up to us with bulldozers. We had to listen to everyone, because we didn't know who was who," he said.

The city was also inundated by well-meaning people offering things that the city really didn't need, he added.

"We still have warehouses full of clothing that were donated after the tornado," Stewart said. "And people are always coming and asking us 'What can we fix?'

"Everything that was broken has been torn down and is at the bottom of a quarry near the town. What we need now is to upgrade the sewers and schools and build more houses so Xenia can once again support industry."

Disposing of the more than million cubic yards of tornado debris is one of the problems Stewart has solved.

"The Army Corps of Engineers first thought it could be burned, but if we followed through on that, we would still be burning four years from now," Stewart said.

"What we've done is put some in a nearby quarry and some has been sold to farmers for fill."

Stewart said his city is accutely aware that it may need a tornado disaster plan again some day. What will be needed then, according to Stewart is knowledge of where to go for help, and what options to take.

"The true test will be to see how fast we correct the mistakes we have made in the past," Stewart said. "Otherwise, what we have gone through will have been an exercise in futility."

Junior Achievement program is launched

The Junior Achievement program in Washington C.H. was launched during a meeting of the board of directors Wednesday night in the Junior Achievement center on N. Fayette Street.

It was reported during the meeting that recruiting sessions have been conducted at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools and officials have been quite pleased with the response from students. A recruiting meeting will be held Monday at the Laurel Oaks Career Development campus at Wilmington.

The number of students who will be participating in the Junior Achievement program here this year is almost doubled from the number who took part a year ago.

Three companies will be operating under the Junior Achievement program this year.

DURING Wednesday night's meeting, Regina Roush, a Miami Trace High School senior, presented a report on the national JA convention she attended in August at Indiana University. Over 2,700 students from throughout the nation attended the convention.

Miss Roush attended the convention after she was selected as the "Outstanding Junior Girl" in the Central Ohio Junior Achievement program area last year. She also served as one of the company presidents here a year ago.

Manhole bandits sought

Detectives are scouring the city's scrap yards today looking for some of the 23 manhole covers that have vanished from the streets in the past three days.

Wednesday, officers were out hunting the manhole bandit. Police said no covers were found, but a 23-year-old youth with a heavy hook in his car was brought in for questioning.

Police say 200 of the heavy, iron covers disappeared last year, and the same number have been taken already this year.

City councilmen considered the problem serious enough last spring to adopt an ordinance making unlawful possession of a manhole cover punishable by a six-month jail sentence or a $500 fine.

That ordinance was passed following the death of a 4-year-old girl who fell into an open manhole at a playground.

Subdivision sketch plans are approved

A sketch plan for a proposed residential subdivision to be located on the northeast side of Washington C.H. was approved by members of the City Planning Commission at their regular monthly meeting in the City Office Building Wednesday night.

City Manager Dan Wolford said Robert E. Lewis, a Washington C.H. real estate developer doing business as Silver Dollar, Inc., 1017 Clinton Ave., submitted the application for approval of a sketch plan regarding the proposed subdivision.

Planning commission members approved the concept for the residential subdivision which has been proposed on a 12.5-acre tract of land on Gregg Street.

THE PROPOSED subdivision will be called Wagon Wheel Estates, according to the application submitted by Lewis.

The site is bounded on the south by Gregg Street, on the east by Lewis Street and on the north by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

A total of 34 lots will be involved in the proposed subdivision.

A preliminary plat application will now be submitted to the City Planning Commission by the developer.

According to Wolford, the application for approval of the sketch plan for the proposed subdivision was the only matter considered by the city's planners at the meeting.

Menancing charge brings suspended sentence in court

A Washington C.H. man appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday and was found guilty by acting Judge Omar Schwart of aggravated menacing. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1,000, most of which was suspended pending future good behavior.

Dennis L. Lowe, 26, of 113 W. Temple St., pleaded no contest to the menacing charge and was found guilty. All of the jail time and $950 of the $1,000 fine was suspended. He was fined another $50 after pleading guilty to a charge of resisting arrest.

The menacing charge was filed on a private warrant; the resisting arrest by city police.

FOOTBALL OFFICIAL PREDICTS W.C.H. OFFSIDES

WILL WIN BY 20 POINTS???

Dave Ogan, one of the officials for Saturday Night's bang-up contest between the Washington Court House Offsides pro football team and The Paint Creek No-Stars, went on record as saying the "Offsides" is the "team to beat."

Ogan, long a controversial decision maker in sports circles, might figure heavily in the outcome of Saturday's big game. Upon questioning Ogan on his ability to officiate a football game, his remark was, "What, me worry?" The last game Ogan officiated, sent some 20 players and spectators to the hospital.

Incidentally, this game will be played Saturday, October 5th at 8:30 p.m. at the Gardner Park Stadium with the proceeds going to the Community Education. This bit of readership enlightment provided by French Hardware.

Preliminary hearings waived by two burglary defendants

Two men, one of whom is from Washington C.H., appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday and waived preliminary hearing on an assortment of charges filed by Washington C.H. police officers and Fayette County Sheriff's deputies.

Forsythe is charged with burglary, possession of burglary tools and possession of marijuana. Spence is charged with two counts of burglary, possession of burglary tools, grand theft and safecracking.

Assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann represented the state at the preliminary appearance, and will present the evidence against the two when their case is considered by the grand jury.

Dumford opposes gun control registration

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, of Washington C.H., Democratic candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th District, announced today that if elected, he will strongly oppose any attempt to enact gun registration laws in Ohio.

Dumford stated he is not opposed to all forms of gun control. He noted that the 107th General Assembly had passed a bill strictly controlling the sale and ownership of sawed-off shotguns without a dissenting vote in either house.

He voiced support of legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of convicted felons, drug addicts, alcoholics, and those not mentally competent to exercise responsible ownership of firearms.

In voicing his opposition to the registration of firearms, Dumford stated, "Many of the proposals in this field have included such schemes as the fingerprinting and photographing of firearm registrants. I feel that such a program would constitute a serious invasion of privacy and a threat to individual freedom." Dumford also pointed out that in view of the Fourth Amendment guarantee of the right of the citizen to bear arms, the constitutionality of a comprehensive firearms registration law could be seriously questioned.

Dumford concluded his remarks by stating that there were millions of law-abiding, responsible owners of firearms in the United States who used their guns for hunting, sport and protection. There are the people who would bear the burden imposed by gun registration laws.

The House candidate feels that one possible solution to the problem would be to drastically increase the penalties for any crime wherein a firearm is used. This would tend to deter the illegal use of guns by the criminal element, he said.

Greek elections slated Nov. 17

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece's first parliamentary elections in a decade are scheduled for Nov. 17, and a referendum to decide whether the monarchy will be restored is promised by Jan. 1.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis' government announced the return of democratic elections Wednesday night. It said a new caretaker government headed by Caramanlis would be formed in the next few days to replace the "government of national salvation" formed last July after the collapse of the military dictatorship that overthrew the last parliamentary government in 1967.

The date of the referendum on the monarchy is to be announced within 15 days after the election, and the vote is to be held within 30 days of the announcement.

The government did not say whether Greece's last king, 34-year-old Constantine, would be allowed to return to Greece prior to the referendum to plead the case for restoration of the monarchy. He fled to Italy in December 1967 after an unsuccessful attempt to oust the military junta and now lives in Britain.

George Papadopoulos, the leader of the 1967 military coup, abolished the monarchy in July 1973 and declared Greece a republic. He also held a referendum to ratify his action, and the vote, according to the government, was 3,870,124 in favor to 1,064,320 opposed, with about 920,000 not voting.

The military dictatorship collapsed under the weight of last summer's Cyprus crisis. After Caramanlis took over on July 23, he promised elections, declared a general amnesty for political prisoners and restored Greek citizenship to those who had lost it because of their opposition to the dictatorship.

In a preliminary to elections, the government on Sept. 23 lifted the ban on the Greek Communist party that had been in effect since 1936. It also announced that civilians and technicians who worked for the military government could be candidates for parliament.

Metzenbaum votes with losing side

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D—Ohio, voted with the losing side Wednesday as the Senate approved 41-39 a move to recommit the foreign aid authorization bill.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R— Ohio, was not recorded as voting.

Incentives for farmers said needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz agree that farmers need financial incentives to boost production, but as usual each speaks a different language.

Butz told a National Town Meeting here Wednesday that free markets, full production and unfettered exports are the answers. Humphrey, D-Minn., said farmers need financial backstops, including higher price supports and a national food reserve held in part by the government.

Moreover, Humphrey said he thought Butz' predictions that food prices would go up 8 to 10 per cent next year were wrong. "I think it will be substantially larger," he said.

As he has many times, Butz insisted grain reserves should be held by farmers and the private trade and not by the federal government.

Besides urging adoption of his grain reserve plan—two-thirds held by the private trade and one-third by the government — Humphrey said federal officials should monitor farm exports more closely.

The idea, he said, is to prevent huge sales such as the 1972 Russian grain deal from catching everyone unaware again. But Humphrey said he was not in favor of export controls.

"If we don't have the brains and intelligence in this country to protect ourselves with an adequate supply of food and, hopefully, of energy, we're going to be in unbelievable economic trouble," Humphrey said.

The cost of social welfare continues to be the largest item in the Canadian federal government budget.

Traffic Court

Two persons forfeited bond in Municipal Court Wednesday on traffic charges, including a New Holland man cited by Sheriff's deputies for driving while intoxicated.

Roger L. Walters, 23, New Holland, forfeited $500 bond on the DWI charge and another $25 on a charge of failing to drive on the right half of the roadway.

Camp Fire Girls to conduct Community Chest campaign

Various area Camp Fire Girl councils will conduct the annual city residential drive for the Community Chest campaign, it was announced during a meeting of the Community Chest board of directors Wednesday night in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office.

According to Mrs. Ralph Tate, Community Chest director, the city will be canvassed from 1 until 4 p.m. Sunday, October 13. The Washington Junior High School cafeteria will be a focal point for the drive, with the troops picking up various campaign materials at the cafeteria prior to the drive, and turning in monies there following the campaign.

Four ward leaders have been selected to arrange collection assignments in conjunction with the drive. They are Mrs. Jean Yarger, first ward; Mrs. Tate, second ward; Mrs. Leo Shepler, third ward, and Mrs. Dorothy Sanderson, fourth ward.

The Camp Fire Girls organization is one of 10 agencies benefiting from the Community Chest, and approximately 200 girls and their leaders will be assisting with the drive on October 13.

Construction plans reduced by DP&L

The Dayton Power and Light Co. has reduced its construction plans for the next five years by $92 million from $728 million to $636 million.

Generation and transmission facilities to be constructed and held in common ownership with the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. are now being scheduled for later completion.

The construction is being delayed because estimates of the rate of increase of future consumer demand for electricity have been revised downward; many customers are conserving electricity, primarily because of higher rates; and record high interest rates and escalating cost of new construction have caused serious difficulty in financing these projects, many of which cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

The installed electric generation reserves will be lowered from 18 per cent to 15 per cent. The electric reserve is the installed capacity above the projected peak electric usage.

In August, DP&L announced that the 1974 construction budget was reduced from $109 million to approximately $94 million and the 1975 budget was cut from $133 million to $121 million. Completion of the second 1.1 million kilowatt unit at the Zimmer Nuclear Station was postponed from 1982 to 1984.

Humble's father, Robert Sr., of Amelia, said his son's wife, Nettie, was scheduled to undergo surgery at a Cincinnati hospital today.

The couple's two children were at home at the time of the accident. Two men in the other car were hospitalized.

Semi mishap checked; calf killed by sheriff's cruiser

The Sheriff's Department reported an accident in which they were immediately on the scene.

Impact propelled the calf 222 feet into the air and severely damaged the sheriff's cruiser.

The mishap which occurred at 2 a.m. Thursday, instantly killed the calf, but left Deputy Camp unhurt.

The Washington C.H. Police Department reported an accident Wednesday morning and the Ohio Highway Patrol investigated a collision between a semi and a pickup truck Wednesday afternoon, which injured two people.

The mishap occurred on I-71, just north of the U.S. 35 interchange. Whiteside had been working with the Van Camp Construction Co., of Circleville, on the northbound berm when his truck was struck.

Impact from the collision propelled the Whiteside truck into the median strip where it overturned onto its side. The semi also traveled into the median area where the cab angled downward and the trailer portion remained upright partially blocking the interstate.

Both drivers were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital. Partridge was admitted with a neck injury and Whiteside was treated for fractured ribs and later released.

Partridge was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. Damage was estimated as severe to the semi and moderate to the pickup truck.

Washington C.H. police reported an accident at 10:33 a.m. Wednesday, in which an auto driven by Virginia A. Hargis, 29, New Holland, struck a parked car belonging to Gary F. Magary, Robinson Road, in the left rear, while she was attempting to back from a parking space in Fayette Center.

Damage was slight to the Hargis auto and moderate to the Magary car. No one was cited or injured.

Ohio's clean air efforts bog down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's efforts to scrub its air even cleaner than the federal government demands have bogged down in a legal morass that could delay action until 1979.

That is the deadline for limiting industrial smoke to 80 micrograms of sulfur oxide per cubic meter of air recommended by three hearing examiners.

The state once wanted pollution cut to 60 micrograms with a 1975 deadline.

"We've got the worst sulfur oxide problem in the nation," said Noreen Wills, a spokeswoman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. "More than 90 per cent of the energy generated in Ohio comes from burning coal, mostly high sulfur coal."

Since 1972 Ohio has been a leader among states seeking cleaner air, she said.

"No other state has held an adjudication hearing such as the examiners conducted here," said Miss Wills.

Heavy industry and electric utilities won over the examiners by arguing that the equipment needed to clean up the air to 60 micrograms would cost $2 billion and that it had not been proved successful.

In a 400-page report, the examiners — all EPA staff members — also suggested that industries use taller smoke stacks and temporary pollution controls during periods of stagnant air, another swing to industry.

The EPA contended these methods advocated by power companies would spread pollution over a wider area.

Unleaded gasoline sales needed

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

New car owners apparently won't have to worry about finding unleaded gasoline for their 1975 models this fall. But some service stations are worrying about finding enough customers for the new grade.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press indicates that at least half the stations in most states already carry unleaded gasoline and many more, mostly in rural areas, plan to stock it later this fall.

Virtually all American-made cars will require unleaded fuel.

The only 1975 models which can use leaded gasoline are Chryslers equipped with either of two optional V-8 engines, the 318 cubic inch displacement power plant available in compacts and intermediates and the 360 c.i.d. engine, an option on larger Chrysler Corp. cars.

And while about 80 per cent of the new cars will have antipollution converters, even those autos which do not come equipped with the devices must use unleaded gas.

This is because the Environmental Protection Agency gave the cars a production go-ahead after testing models which used lead-free fuel.

Even if a car is not equipped with a converter, which would be ruined if leaded gas is used, it still must use no-lead, exclusive of Chryslers with the special order 318 and 360 c.i.d engines. Autos requiring leadfree have special gas tank filler necks which can take only special lead-free fuel nozzles.

In addition, the autos will be marked near the filler cap and on the dashboard as requring lead-free gas. Federal regulations call for a fine of $10,000 per day for stations which, except in emergencies, put leaded fuel in the new, specially marked autos.

All General Motors cars, about 75 per cent of Ford and Chrysler cars and 30 per cent of American Motors cars will have converters.

Thus, about 95 per cent of the new models will require unleaded fuel. But few of the 8.5 million cars Detroit's auto makers expect to sell in the 1975-model year are on the road. And so far, that has meant slow business at many pumps for unleaded gas.

"All the stations required to carry unleaded gas have stocks of it," says Gerald Kroll, president of the Missouri Service Station Dealers Association. "Our only problem has been getting customers for it."

The head of the Pennsylvania-Delaware station dealers association says up to 70 per cent of the two states' stations now carry unleaded gasoline. But he adds, "It's the slowest-selling."

The North Dakota Auto Club reports one Fargo dealer spent up to $15,000 to provide unleaded fuel at nine area stations. But in a recent 10-day period he sold only 10 gallons of the grade.

Many smaller stations have complained that federal regulations requiring them to sell unleaded gasoline have forced them to replace premium grades with unleaded because the stations only had two pumps and couldn't afford a third.

Bob expands home zoo

"HEY, SAVE SOME FOR THE FISH!" — Ben the black bear, seems to be saying to his mate, Susie, while patting her on the back to hurry up and finish so it can be his turn for a drink. Bob Huff, who is providing the drink, owns the bears and is presently building them "sleep boxes" in anticipation of their expected winter hibernation.

As I was moseying along to the police station one morning to do police beat, a red pickup truck pulled to the curb and the voice within excitedly announced, "My new animals came in!"

The voice belonged to Bob Huff who lives on Mark Road and is by occupation a livestock breeder and trader, specializing in horses and cattle. I had done a feature story in late June on his unique hobby of collecting strange animals and what he told me perpetuated another feature article; for he recently acquired three black bears, a bobcat, an llama, two buffalo, a longhorn cow, two Sica deer and a Brahman bull.

By MARK THELLMANN

Bob Huff's "home zoo" has come a long way from the day a couple years ago, he purchased a male and female Rhesus monkey at $100 apiece. The monkeys came from a friend of Huff's in Xenia, who collected unusual animals and got Huff interested in doing the same.

"My wife Reva and I have always been animal lovers," Huff explained and continued, "Before I expanded my menagerie to the extent it is now, I was feeding and caring for six dogs and six cats, about 20 head of horses and some cattle."

HUFF FIRST introduced his three black bears; Ben, Susie and an unnamed cub. The bears, which are valued at $300 apiece were purchased from a dealer in eastern Ohio. Ben was originally with a sideshow and billed "the biggest bear in Ohio." It's no wonder, weighing some 600 pounds and reaching over six feet in length.

With the cold weather setting in, Huff is building what his wife calls a "sleep box," in which the bears can hibernate. Presently they are stocking their bellies with dog food, fruits, eggs, vegetables and milk in preparation for the long nap.

"Bobbie the Bobcat," also known as a wildcat or lynx, is about two and one-half feet in length (not counting his tail), 14 inches in height and weighs around 25 pounds. He is nocturnal, which in his natural habitat is his time for hunting rabbits, snakes and small rodents, but on the Huff farm he is happy with his diet of chicken backs, necks and raw meat.

Bobbie is worth $200, was also purchased in eastern Ohio and is a natural at climbing trees, although his cage curtails this talent.

"Jamie," Huff's llama, is a real character. He may not mean to be, but Mother Nature shaped his little mouth into a natural mischievous grin; for good reason though - llamas are known to think nothing about spitting on one's face when they're upset.

The llama is noted for being the only American animal used as a beast of burden. The South American Indians first domesticated the animal in 1,000 B.C. to help them carry their loads over steep mountain ranges. The llama is capable of carrying 100 pounds on its back without trouble, but if he's overloaded or tired he may sit down and become quite stubborn. Forcing the issue will only get you wet.

Huff displayed Jamie at the Fayette County Fair after his purchase a couple days previous in eastern Ohio. He is valued at $600-$700, but a female can easily bring $1,000, according to Huff.

Llamas are often described as camels without humps and feed on wheat and hay and in Jamie's case, whatever the horses are munching on.

"Susie" and "Bruce" are often mistakenly called buffalo. Buffaloes originate in India, South America and some parts of Africa. Susie and Bruce are "bison" and have the distinction of being the largest animal native to the Western Hemisphere. Bison reach a height of five and one-half to six feet, a length of eight and one-half to ten feet and a weight of 1,800 to 2,400 pounds. The female of the species is usually smaller though.

Bison are also noted for always facing into a storm with their heads pointed into the wind. They are also fierce fighters and prove themselves to be so when summer brings the mating season.

Fossil evidence dates the bison walking the earth a million years ago, but Susie and Bruce have been on the Huff farm for a month. They are valued at $750 apiece and were purchased in Xenia.

"Lizzie" the long-horn cow, had her ancestors in Spain. Her breed was introduced into the United States in 1500 by the Spaniards. She has lived on the Huff farm since summer, eats grain, is valued at $400-$500 and was purchased in Xenia.

They are gifted with a good sense of smell and are fast runners, but they have very poor eyesight. Their top speed of 30 miles per hour and agility comes in handy when side-stepping their natural enemy, the wolf. Huff stated he thought the Sica deer were originally from Japan. He has had his since April, feeds them grain and hay and values them at $125 apiece. They were purchased from his friend in Xenia.

"GEORGE," Huff's Brahman bull, is an unusual looking animal with a hump on its shoulders, large drooping ears and drooping skin under its throat. The Braham breed of cattle were one of the first to be domesticated in their homeland of India. The bull is noted for its highly developed sweat glands which prevents the summer heat from making him uncomfortable. The Braham breed was imported from India in 1849, but was purchased by Huff, who originally owned George's mother and father, in northern Ohio at the age of two days. Huff had to wait until George was through the weaning stage before relocating him at his farm. Now George is big enough to need a little persuasion now and then and this is the reason for the ring in George's sensitive nose. Huff eventually plans on breaking George, who feeds primarily on grains, has been with Huff a year now and is valued at $500, for riding.

Thus was the extent of Huff's new additions, but it shouldn't be surprising if another shipment in the near future creates another story, for until Huff obtains his license, he can only buy.

State funding of schools eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The complexities of various approaches to state funding of public schools has slowed the work of a temporary legislative committee charged with preparing recommendations for the General Assembly next year.

The Education Review Committee heard several proposals for drastic changes in the present school foundation formula during a plodding all-day meeting Wednesday.

But discussion of an "equal yield" approach, favored by many educators, broke off almost before it began when some committee members disagreed with a research team's approach to property reappraisal.

The equal yield concept is meant to equalize the revenue raising ability of school districts by guaranteeing a minimum level of state dollars for each mill of locally determined tax rate.

The present deductible millage formula works on a sliding scale with state money going to schools based on the amount of local funding from property taxes.

The formula is supposed to give higher amounts of state aid to poor districts but a consensus of educators agrees the program is not working. This is evidenced by the fact that almost none of Ohio's 620 school districts is operating under the basic formula.

Consultants from the Syracuse University Research Corp. had intended to approach the equal yield formula, assuming reappraisal of all taxable property in school districts. In fact, only 18 of Ohio's 88 counties have completed reappraisal.

The researchers had been given tentative approval at the committee's last meeting to study the possibility of reappraising taxable property in school districts by classification—residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural.

At Wednesday's meeting, however, the committee decided the research team should also study state aid to schools based on the actual current observed value of property in school districts.

And that is how the meeting ended late in the afternoon, with the consultants returning to their computer and the legislators resigned to starting again at their next meeting after the Nov. 5 election.

The senate-house committee, chaired by Sen. Clara Weisenborn, R-5 Dayton, heard earlier from John R. Meckstroth, president of the state Board of Education, and Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville.

Meckstroth said local districts should receive equal amount of state funding for every mill of local tax money voted.

Johnson plumped for a bill he introduced last year calling for a common tax rate of 25 mills levied for education on real and personal tangible property in every school district in the state.

"The method of supporting education in Ohio places too much reliance on the real property tax and thus, too much of a tax burden on the real property owner," he said. "The past practice of coupling state money to an unequally concentrated real property tax base has caused many school districts to ask their home owners to shoulder an ever increasing tax burden."

Chief Justice undergoes therapy

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — U.S. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is receiving daily therapy at Williamsburg Community Hospital for injuries he received when his bicycle was struck last month by a drag racing auto.

Burger, 67, suffered a shoulder separation, five broken ribs and a broken finger in the accident near his home in Arlington, Va.

The Supreme Court justice said Arlington police told him he was hit by drag racers. He said the driver of one of the autos was apparently trying to see how close he could come to the bicycle.

'Latins are loaded' in Florida

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A $16,000 silver Mercedes Benz sports car tooling around the Miami suburb of Coral Gables displays a sticker saying, "Latins are Loaded."

While the whimsical slogan may not be quite true for all 350,000 Latin Americans estimated to be living in the Miami area, it certainly applies to at least 50 millionaires and hundreds of others of slightly less modest means in South Florida.

Seven of the city's bank presidents are Cuban refugees.

The elderly Cuban-born boss of the world's largest rum-making firm, Jose "Pepin" Bosch, is a parttime resident of Miami, where much of Bacardi's administrative operations are located.

Across the causeway on Miami Beach, Carlos Prio Socarras, the last constitutional president of Cuba, looks after vast real estate holdings and investments which continue to pile up the pesos.

Latins, in fact, have come to be the "nouveau riche" of South Florida in the past few years.

A Latin "Millionaires Row" stretches from Palm Beach down the Gold Coast through Miami and its luxurious satellite communities of Key Biscayne and Coral Gables.

Despite the inflation-recession syndrome gripping the country, Cubans in particular have acquired a local reputation for keeping the money moving— working hard to make it, but spending it easily—for clothes, cars, homes, furnishings and entertainment. You name it.

"These people don't know what inflation means," says the manager of a large downtown department store. "We love them. I'd say 60 to 75 per cent of our shoppers are Cubans. We've seen no drop in business from last year. In fact, we may be up."

While there are many rags-to-riches stories involving Latins, a number of the well-heeled manager to bring their fortunes with them and bould upon them over the years.

For the Cubans, how much they have now may depend on when they got here and how much money they had outside the country—or were able to bring out—once Fidel Castro started "redistributing" their wealth.

With one out of every four Miami area residents being of Latin descent, they have a total annual income of about $1 billion, according to Richard Tobin of Strategy Research Corp., which recently completed a Dade County Latin market study. The estimate has doubled since 1970.

Profit on housing mostly illusory?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest components in the selling price of a new, single-family house are generally considered to be the cost of construction materials, 32 per cent, land, 25 per cent, and labor, about 15 per cent.

Since the price of all three has risen sharply in the past few years, so has the sales price of the average new house—from $30,500 in 1972, to $35,500 last year, according to The Conference Board.

Over a 10-year period to 1973, states the board, a business and economic research organization, the price of comparable new homes rose 84 per cent. It cites Federal Home Loan Bank Board figures to indicate that the price tags on existing homes doubled in the same period.

But now the catch. With mortgage money tight and with many families unable to come up with the substantial down payments required, the housing market has shriveled almost to nothingness in many areas.

This means the proud homeowner who brags about his hedge against inflation — "I can get double what I paid for my house" — may be living in an illusory world. If there isn't a market, how can there be a selling price?

True, when the market comes alive again, he might obtain double his money. But if he were to sell today, he might find that big price tag cannot be converted into dollar bills.

Even before the economic summitry of the past month, the subject of credit allocation was being discussed in banking and housing circles, among others.

Advocates of allocation claimed that some deserving sections of the economy, such as housing, were being starved for funds because they couldn't pay the price. Allocation of credit by price alone was unfair, they said.

The arguments against allocation by other criteria, such as social good or greater productivity, were immediately attacked by economists and financial men. Controls on credit, they claimed, would only make matters worse.

What they really were saying, however, was that controls by government would be bad but that controls by private industry, that is, the bankers, would be permissible. The fact is, that banks must control their distribution of credit.

Rodino enjoys new popularity

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter W. Rodino Jr., who used to be just a face in the political crowd, says he's enjoying the spotlight that was generated by presiding over the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry.

"Face it, I'm a human being," the New Jersey congressman said in an interview. "These plaudits are satisfying."

Rodino, 65 and serving his 13th term as representative of New Jersey's 10th congressional district, vaulted from relative obscurity to national prominence as chairman of the televised committee hearings on the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon.

Now speaking invitations pile up at his Capitol Hill office, Democratic colleagues want him to campaign for them and his name is recognized across the country.

It was not always so. Two years ago, when his name was placed in vice presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention many delegates had never heard of him. He got 62 votes.

"I never sought the glare of the spotlight," Rodino said. "I never looked forward to any of this. My objective was to contribute something good to the system. I never sought it, but I guess in politics survival depends on letting people know what you have done."

He takes special pride in the fact that "people keep telling me that 'you and your committee restored faith in our system.'"

The committee recommended the impeachment of Nixon, but the former president resigned before the issue went to the House.

"The system is working," Rodino declared. "What better way to celebrate the bicentennial than to point out that the Constitution is a living thing — that we met the test?"

This fall, he is to campaign in Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas, Oregon, and New York. The party has asked him to address a meeting of the Democratic National Committee next month.

Before he chaired the impeachment hearings, out-of-town speaking invitations came mostly from ethnic groups, particularly Italian-American organizations.

His new fame has meant personal sacrifices such as giving up family dinner outings on weekends. And it has cut into his paddleball, opera and reading time.

Now the Judiciary Committee is gearing up for hearings on the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president. And Rodino has to worry about his own political survival.

Riverfront Stadium to be lit again

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Riverfront Stadium's ring of lights will again illuminate the city's skyline. City officials have decided the energy-saving measure that put the lights out is no longer necessary.

Wallace M. Power, city utilities director, advised Cincinnati City Council Wednesday that he will resume the practice of turning on the lights for six hours nightly.

The city ordered the lights out a year ago. Power said there have been many complaints about darkness in the riverfront area.

Radio communication between ground and aircraft was virtually nonexistent until 1930, when two-way radio-telephones arrived.

Solons named to assembly housing panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five members of the Ohio House were named Wednesday to serve on a Legislative Service Commission panel to determine if Ohio must complete action on a pending housing bill before the end of the year.

Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, appointed the bill's main sponsor, Rep. Edward Feighan, D-8 Cleveland, along with Reps. Michael Stinziano, D-30 Columbus; John Thompson, D-15 Cleveland; James Luken, D-24 Cincinnati, and Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield.

It will be up to Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, and Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, to designate senators who will serve on the panel. There were indications the committee will not meet for two weeks.

Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, designated earlier as chairman of the LSC committee, was reported by his office Wednesday to be away on vacation, not planning to return until Oct. 14.

Gov. John J. Gilligan wants Gray and Lancione to call the lawmakers into session to complete action on a House-passed bill to create a new state housing financing agency. The governor said it is needed to take full advantage of the 1974 Federal Housing and Community Development Act.

Gilligan's request received the backing earlier this week of a 23-member ad hoc committee of industry officials and labor leaders who said the law is needed to alleviate a crisis in the state's building industry.

Gray and Lancione both said they wanted the LSC committee to study the federal statute and the pending bill to determine what must be done to make them "dovetail," and if immediate action is called for.

WSHS seniors commended

Two seniors at Washington Senior High School have been named merit program commended students by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Principal Fred Jones and counselor Don Gibbs announced that Doug Wheat, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat, 220 N. Hinde St., and Jim Vess, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vess, 370 Carolyn Road, have received letters of commendation form the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

These two students are among the 38,000 commended students named on the basis of their high performance of the 1973 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Commended students are in the upper two per cent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1973. Although the commended students ranked high on the PSAT-NMSQT, their scores were just below those of the 15,000 semifinalists who were announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation; commended students do not continue in the merit scholarship competition.

Edward C. Smith, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, said, "The high standing of commended students in the merit program shows their great promise, and their attainment in this nationwide program deserves public recognition. The commended students should be encouraged to continue their education. Both these students and our nation will benefit from their further educational and personal development."

To increase their scholarship opportunities NMSC reports the commended students' names to the regionally accredited colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the PSAT-NMSQT in October, 1973. The reports include home addresses, test scores, and anticipated college major and career intentions of the commended students.

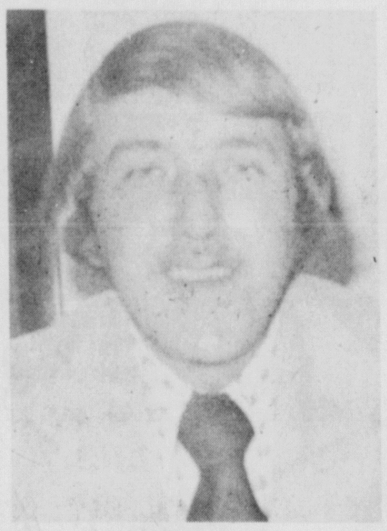
COMMENDED STUDENTS — Two WSHS seniors have been honored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation by receiving letters of commendation. Fred Jones, left, WSHS principal, is pictured presenting the letter of commendation to Doug Wheat and Jim Vess is receiving the honor from counselor Don Gibbs.

A $25-million convention center under construction in Kansas City will more than double the city's current $30-million annual convention business volume by 1976, says Mayor Charles Wheeler.

Former county man heading youth rehabilitation center

A former Fayette County resident, who was named by the state Jaycees as one of five "Outstanding Young Men in Ohio" this year, is the new director of the Hollywood Community Center, Franklin.

Wayne Earley, 24, of Trenton, formerly of Fayette County, who had been a counselor at the youth rehabilitation center since June, was recently appointed to serve as the center's director.



WAYNE EARLEY

HE WAS the choice of the council's executive committee and replaces Martin Lotz, who earlier this year announced he would resign his two-year directorship and leave the center after four years' service to make room for "new blood."

Earley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robinette, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, is a 1968 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

Last March, the native Fayette Countian was honored by the Jaycees, thus becoming a nominee for the ranks of the 10 Outstanding Young Men in the nation to be named next January.

Earley, who attended Ohio State University for two years and is presently working toward his degree in social welfare at Miami University's Middletown campus, outlined some ideas that cause his new blood to race.

"In the past, the Hollywood Community Center was looked upon as a place for kids to go for recreation in the summer and after school in the winter. . . .The basic idea is prevention of delinquency, to give the kids a place to go. I'm not arguing against that. But the thing I want to try to change — I see us as a social agency, for counseling, for programs for the senior citizens to give something for the men to do. I want to get that point across to the people of Franklin and the surrounding area."

Drugs, unwed mothers, venereal disease, legal aid, medical problems — these are some of the areas of possible attention he rattles off.

"I plan to start a crisis intervention phone, a hot line, where people can express their needs, and if we cannot help directly, we can act as a referral agency — welfare, food stamps, Social Security checks, workmen's compensation, runaways, whatever. It's a very important part of our serving."

"I'll invite all the organizations I possibly can, to come here and have their meetings, see what the center is all about from the inside, possibly run some of their programs for youth through here, become a part of the center."

He plans on volunteers, trained with the help of the Warren County counseling service, to man the aforementioned hot line offering advice to runaways, counseling on drugs, and home problems, talking with elderly persons, potential suicides, and anyone needing help and "someone to talk it over with."

"We will certainly not advertise as having all the answers or that we have the final word. Rather, we will operate as a referral and general counseling service," Earley said.

He is sergeant of the Trenton rescue squad, and a member of the Middletown Jaycees. He is vice president of Ohio Jaycees, in charge of all Jaycee chapters in Butler and Warren counties, as well as special consultant to the Jaycees nationally on criminal justice and juvenile delinquency. Jaycees have set the field of corrections as their priority for 1974-76, noted Earley, who was state chairman for prison Jaycee chapters before becoming state vice president.

Washington needs to be mentally prepared

Defensive-minded Tigers visit Lions

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

No longer can the team from down U.S. 41 be looked upon lightly. In carrying a 3-1 season record into Gardner Park Stadium this Friday, Greenfield has more than proven itself to be a solid contender for this year's South Central Ohio League crown.

All three of the Tigers' victories have been shutouts. Last week, Greenfield halted Circleville 6-0 on an interception by linebacker Jim Ganger in the fourth quarter. Most oddsmakers had picked Circleville as the eventual SCOL champion prior to the season.

Greenfield's only loss came when Chillicothe scored with 15 seconds remaining to hand the Tigers a 13-12 loss. Washington Court House defeated the same Cavalier unit 8-6.

"With three shutouts, their defense must really be great," remarked Lion coach Maurice Pfeifer. "They are very difficult to run against because of their quick and agile linebackers. Although they play an eightman line on defense, they can also protect very well against the pass. The secret to Greenfield's success has been that they have been playing together as a unit."

Offensively, the Tigers' attack is built around their outstanding tailback Gary Barr, who is 6-foot-1 and weighs 190 pounds. In scoring 26 points, Barr has already carried the ball 123 times yards last year for the most yards by an opponent against the Lions.
opponent against the Lions.

"Barr is a very durable runner," Pfeifer pointed out. "If I had their ball club, I would probably run the same type of offense. When you have a workhorse like Barr, you use him."

"Barr is a strong and consistent runner, but he is not a breakaway threat," Pfeifer added. "Greenfield uses him like Buffalo uses O.J. Simpson. If you run him enough, he will do you some good."

Although Greenfield runs mainly sweeps on offense, the passing of Tiger quarterback Kevin Kensinger could catch the Lions' defenders off guard. Kensinger has already completed 15 of 33 passes for 221 yards.

Except for the Tigers' two big tackles Jack Kinzer, who is 5-foot-10 and weighs 227 pounds, and Chuck Conley, who is 6-foot-2 and weighs 246 pounds, the Tigers and Lions are nearly similar in size. Greenfield's defense out-weighs Washington's offense by four pounds per player. The Tigers' offense holds a 20-pound advantage per player over the Lions' defense.

"Although we defeated them 34-0 last year, we were very impressed by their team," commented Pfeifer, who has only lost once in nine seasons to the Tigers. "Greenfield is in tremendous physical condition and they are well-coached."

"There is no way we can afford to look beyond the Greenfield game," Pfeifer said. "In defeating Unioto 31-13, the boys learned they have to be mentally prepared. We were not mentally prepared for the Shermans and they took advantage of it on their first touchdown."

The highlight of the game with Unioto was the improvement of the Lions' offense. Gradually, the offensive unit continues to improve with each game. The line is starting to open up holes, but Washington still can not afford to run the same play back to back.

Offensive tackle Dan Dean, a 6-foot, 181-pound junior, was named the offensive lineman of the week from the Unioto contest. It was mainly behind the blocking of Dean that the Lions finally got their off-tackle play working this season.

Backup quarterback Greg Marti, who is a 5-foot-8, 144-pound junior, was named the offensive back of the week. Marti, who played the entire second half after regular quarterback Jeff Brown was injured, completed three of four passes for 62 yards. One of his passes was a 51-yard scoring pass to Mark Lamberson. He also kicked the extra point following the touchdown and received a grade of 100 per cent on his offensive efficiency.

It is still not known whether or not Brown will be playing this week. He received a back injury while scrambling with a bad snap from center on a punt. Brown has completed 16 of 32 passes for 241 yards this year.

In the first three games, the Lions' defense looked very sharp. However, in the Unioto contest, there were several occasions when the defense appeared quite sluggish.

Although a defensive lineman of the week was not chosen defensive halfback Jim Vess was selected as the team's defensive back of the week. In receiving an 80 per cent efficiency rating, Vess knocked down five passes and had two individual tackles while playing the entire game on a severely sprained ankle.

"Offensively, we have a few surprises in store for Greenfield," added Pfeifer. "However, this has to be our best defensive effort of the season."

"By playing younger kids in the lineup, a team tends to lose its mental edge. The big question is whether we can be mentally prepared to play week after week."

Greenfield ranked ninth

Computer grid ratings released

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Middletown Fenwick has a much better chance of defending its Ohio high school football playoff title than do Youngstown Mooney and Cleveland Benedictine.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association weekly computerized ratings, released for the first time Wednesday, showed the Middletown power as one of the Class A leaders.

Fenwick compiled 25.50 points to lead Region 12. The other Class A leaders were Windham 26.00 in Region 9, Montpelier 18.50 in Region 10 and Johnstown Northridge 14.00 in Region 11.

Fenwick grabbed the 1973 Class A playoff crown by thumping Montpelier 27-7 in the title game. The Falcons were 11-1 last year and are 3-0-1 in 1974.

Youngstown Mooney, the 1973 Class AAA playoff champion, was tied for sixth in its own region and Cleveland Benedictine, the winner in Class AA, was deadlocked for 4th in its region.

Aaron ponders return for '75 baseball season

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, has the option of retiring in style, after belting another one on his final at-bat of the 1974 season.

There are, however, strong indications from the 40-year-old slugger that he is seriously considering playing another season in another uniform, because he said Wednesday, "I am sure it is my last day in a Brave uniform."

"I'm hoping that's not my last home run," Aaron said after smashing the 733rd of his illustrious 21-year career off rookie reliever Rawly Eastwick in Atlanta's 13-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. "I might hit my last one against Cleveland or in Chicago or somewhere."

Aaron thus ended the year just as he began, by homering. It was in Cincinnati last April 4 that Aaron cracked No. 714 to tie Babe Ruth's record on his first cut of the season. Wednesday's blast, his 20th this year, came on his final trip in the seventh inning on a 1-0 inside fastball that he just barely managed to get over the 330-foot marker down the left field line.

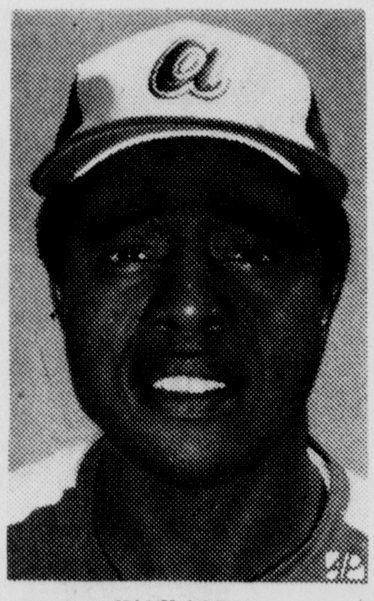
"I planned it that way," Aaron said, joking with a cluster of newsmen gathered around his locker after the game. "No," he added, in case some took him seriously, "it just happened to happen."

It was on his first swing in Atlanta Stadium this year that he drilled a pitch from Al Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers over the fence to move ahead of Ruth last April 8.

Aaron said he won't decide for another 10 days or so whether he will retire or consider playing somewhere else.

"I'm planning to think over a lot of things," he said. "No one else is going to do the thinking for me."

He said any future records he might add to the 18 major league and 27 National League marks he already holds "doesn't enter into it at all."



HANK AARON

Then, talking of his 21-year association with the Braves, including the last nine in Atlanta, Aaron said, "I enjoyed playing here and I'm going to miss it tremendously. You get to a point where you get to be 40 years old and the youth movement catches you.

"I'm sure it's going to be my last game in Atlanta. I can't see where I could probably came back another year. I don't have a contract. That's all."

"The Braves haven't talked to me about playing next year. They have a youth movement under way and I don't want to stand in their way. On the other hand, I do not want them to stand in mine."

Robinson in, Mileti out with tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson was to make major league baseball's biggest breakthrough today since Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in 1947.

Frank Robinson, one of the game's greatest stars, was expected to be named manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first black manager in the major leagues.

Robinson's choice to pilot Cleveland was to coincide with a front office shakeup that included the removal of club president Nick Miletti.

The Indians had scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. (EDT), but they refused to officially confirm that Robinson, the 39-year-old superstar, would be named to replace the fired Ken Aspromonte.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail attended the news conference.

Robinson, the only person to be named Most Valuable Player in both leagues, smashed the 574th home run of his career in Cleveland's season finale at Boston Wednesday. He stands fourth on the all-time home run list behind Hank Aaron, Babe Ruth and Willie Mays.

He left the team in Boston, flew to New York to meet with his agent, Ed Keating, and then both flew to Cleveland, arriving late Wednesday night.

"The odds are in favor that I will be there," Robinson said when asked if he would be in attendance at the news conference. Like the others, he refused to confirm that he would become the new Cleveland manager.

Passed ball aids Bucs' victory

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

"I really think the Lord had something to do with this ball game," said Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. "I just thank God we were able to do it."

The Lord may have helped but Chicago catcher Steve Swisher didn't hurt either as the Pirates clinched the National League East Division championship Wednesday night with a wild 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Cubs.

Chicago had the game won with two out and a man on third in the bottom of the ninth. Cubs' right-hander Rick Reuschel struck out pinch hitter Bob Robertson for what would have been the final out but Swisher let the pitch get away from him for a passed ball and Sanguillen raced home from third to send the game into overtime.

One inning later Sanguillen drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded infield single and the Bucs were on their way to the National League playoffs. They wind up 1½ games ahead of the runnerup St. Louis Cardinals who were rained out at Montreal. That game will not be made up.

The Pirates start the best-of-five NL playoffs Saturday afternoon against Los Angeles in Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles edged Houston 5-4 in 10 innings; Atlanta bombed Cincinnati 13-0; Philadelphia shaded New York 3-2 in 10 innings and San Diego dumped San Francisco 9-5.

Chicago unloaded on Pirate starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first and the Bucs spent the rest of the night playing catch-up.

Robertson, who celebrated his 28th birthday Wednesday by turning in the game's big play — the clutch ninth-inning strikeout — drenched Manager Danny Murtaugh, a non-drinker, with a gallon of milk.

Braves 13, Reds 0

Hank Aaron closed out his eventful season with his 20th homer, No. 733 lifetime, but refused to say it was his last game. He said earlier in the season this would be his last campaign, but has been having second thoughts lately.

Dodgers 5, Astros 4, 10 innings

John Hale singled and Lee Lacy doubled him home in the 10th to give reliever Charlie Hough, 9-4, the win.

Phillies 3, Mets 2, 10 innings

Padres 9, Giants 5

No fear by Brown

CINCINNATI (AP)—Buoyed by the performance of subs in last week's 21-3 victory over San Francisco, Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown looks without fear at this week's game with the Washington Redskins.

"There is more depth on this team than any we've had so far," said Brown of the franchise he started in 1968.

"We haven't gone to pieces with devastating injuries as we used to do . . . its the depth thing."

Brown relied heavily on Stan Walters, who missed all of last season with hepatitis, to replace offensive tackle stalwart Vernon Holland last week. Holland suffered a broken leg the week before.

Brown went with more reserves on defense against the 49ers and gave up only three points. They included Ken Johnson at defensive end, Doug Adams at center linebacker and Bernard Jackson at strong safety.

Brown said defensive end Royce Berry and reserve linebacker Ken Avery will be back this week as will safety Lyle Blackwood, probably.

But Cincinnati is not out of the woods yet. Running back Essex Johnson, who hasn't played because of his off season knee surgery, is not ready yet and linebackers Jim LeClair and Even Jolitz remain on the injured list.

Schedule changed

Because of this week's benefit game between the Washington Offsides and the Paint Creek No-Stars, the Pony League football games will begin at 5 p.m. In the first game, the Dividends will play the Interns and the second game will pit the Big Boys against the Marksmen.

Cards, Pats picked to win

By BEN THOMAS
AP Sports Writer

Aw, c'mon now! This can't be correct. It must be a misprint in the National Football League standings!

St. Louis and New England leading their respective divisions, both with 3-0 records?

And what's more, the Cardinals are very likely to still be first in the National Conference East and the Patriots No. 1 in the American Conference East after the fourth weekend of NFL action.

Of course the fact that the Cards and Pats are leading hasn't helped the old Pro Pigskin Picker's average. Last week, however, the picks climbed to 9-4 — most respectable showing so far this season. Over-all, it's now 23-15-1 and the average is .605.

And on to this weekend:

St. Louis (3-0) at San Francisco (2-1): The oddmakers like St. Louis by a field goal, but Coach Don Coryell should do better, so ... CARDINALS 24, 49ERS 17.

Baltimore (0-3) at New England (3-0): This was one of the few games the Patriots were expected to win in the preseason guessing ... PATRIOTS 31, COLTS 14.

Minnesota (3-0) at Dallas (12): The Vikings are favored by a mere two points in this replay of the 1973 NFC Championship game ... VIKINGS 17, COWBOYS 14.

Washington (2-1) at Cincinnati (2-1): The Bengals are favored by 4½ but the Redskins are No. 1 in the NFC in total defense and No. 2 in total offense. Let's call for a mild upset ... REDSKINS 19, BENGALS 17.

Buffalo (2-1) at Green Bay (2-1): The oddsmakers like Buffalo, but only by four points. Look for O.J. Simpson to handle the situation with ease. BILLS 24, PACKERS 17.

Denver (0-2-1) at Kansas City (2-1): The odds favor Denver by 1½ points, and the Chiefs are getting old. BRONCOS 17, CHIEFS 12.

Oakland (2-1) at Cleveland (1-2): Oakland hasn't given up a point in the first quarter for nine games ... RAIDERS 27, BROWNS 13.

Detroit (0-3) at Los Angeles (2-1): This game features the oddsmakers' biggest spread of the weekend, 15 points. But the 15 points could be worthwhile ... RAMS 27, LIONS 14.

Pittsburgh (1-1-1) at Houston (1-2): Another big-spread game — 14 points. But against Houston, the Steelers should roll to the tune of ... STEELERS 30, OILERS 10.

Philadelphia (2-1) at San Diego (1-2): The odds say Philadelphia will win by five points. It should be more. EAGLES 28, CHARGERS 7.

New Orleans (1-2) at Chicago (1-2): The Bears have lost some close ones and should win this one, close. BEARS 21, SAINTS 17.

Atlanta (0-3) vs. New York Giants (1-2) at New Haven: The Giants are favored by four points and that's really not too surprising when you consider how the Falcons have played lately ... GIANTS 21, FALCONS 12.

New York Jets (1-2) at Miami (2-1): Remember when Broadway Joe led the Jets to a Super Bowl triumph? Well, this isn't the Super Bowl and besides, the Dolphins are favored by 13 points ... DOLPHINS 27, JETS 14.

Southmen batter Jacksonville, 47-19

J.J. Jennings of the Memphis Southmen broke the World Football League's 1,000-yard rushing barrier, but running mate Willie Spencer shattered the Jacksonville Sharks with five touchdowns.

Memphis, winning its ninth straight game, crushed the visiting Sharks 47-19 Wednesday night with its two explosive rookies.

Elsewhere, Shreveport beat Detroit 14-11, Southern California edged Portland 26-22, Florida defeated Philadelphia 30-7 and the Hawaiians downed Birmingham 14-8. In the nationally televised WFL game tonight, Charlotte plays at Chicago.

"It was just a matter of time," said Jennings, who became the WFL's first 1,000-yard runner, gaining 80 yards in 18 carries to boost his season total to 1,036.

Spencer ran 21 times for 141 yards, scoring on four short bursts — three in the first half — and a 19-yard fourth-quarter blast. He

The Memphis defense had a big hero, too. A pair of Spencer's first half touchdowns were set up by tackle William Stevenson's two fumble recoveries. His key interception also stopped a Sharks' drive.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

A hometown crowd of 22,012 watched Shreveport snap a five-game losing streak — started when the franchise was known as the Houston Texans — with its first victory since arriving in Louisiana.

Reserve quarterback David Mays fired a decisive eightyard touchdown pass to Willie Frazier late in the fourth quarter, capping an 11-play, 78-yard drive for the winning points.

Blazers 30, Bell 17

The Blazers, with their pay checks two weeks overdue, traveled to Philadelphia and made the Bell pay for the financial woes.

Blazer Tommy Reamon scored touchdowns on a fouryard run and a 10-yard pass from Bob Davis, who also threw to Matt Maslowski for another Florida touchdown.

Sun 26, Storm 22

With 1:56 left in the game, quarterback Tony Adams hit receiver Keith Denson on a 36-yard scoring pass for the Suns' victory.

The late scoring pass overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Portland's Rufus Ferguson, who tallied on runs of six, three and five yards in the first half for the Storm.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Randy Johnson, released last month by the New York Giants of the National Football League, guided the Hawaiians on 95-and 39-yard touchdown marches to avenge a 39-0 setback to the Americans earlier this season.

Phillies win golf title

In defeating the Indians 12½-3½, the Phillies captured the Wednesday Night Golf League title. L.A., which finished second in the league, beat the Pirates 12-4 and the Reds stopped the Cardinals 9½-6½.

The player turning in the best score in each group was awarded a prize last night. Robert Rine of the Reds carded a 41 to take honors for the first man golfers on each team. Second man honors went to S.E. Vaughn of the Phillies, who turned in a 46. Gordon McCarty of the Phillies fired a 46 to take third man low score. Fourth man honors went to Lindy Sharrett of the Phillies with a round of 47.

Three other special events were held on the final day. Rine hit his drive 255 yards for the longest drive on the third hole. Ralph Hyer's drive on the eighth hole came the closest to the cup. On the ninth green, Paul Metzger sank the longest putt.

Few turn out for AL finales

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The fans said goodbye.

They said goodbye to Al Kaline, finishing 22 illustrious seasons. And they booed ferociously when the goodbye came prematurely.

They said goodbye to Ken Aspromonte, about to be replaced by Frank Robinson, major league baseball's first black manager.

And they said goodbye to the season.

There were 24,812 fans on hand. Not a bad crowd for a baseball game. The only problem was, it was the crowd that showed up for the entire American League Wednesday.

But then, that's what happens when everything's tied up in a couple of neat little bundles, when nothing counts — except for the record books, the drives for the post-season awards, the pushes for next year's salary boost ... and for those hardcore fans.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Enos Cabell, whose two-run, tie-breaking double in the seventh inning enabled the Orioles to conclude the regular-season with their ninth consecutive triumph.

Kaline was happy to see his career concluded. "I'm glad it's over. I really am. I don't think I'll miss it."

He got ovations in the first and third innings when he batted. In the fifth, the crowd started booing loudly. They had spotted Ben Oglivie in the ondeck circle instead of Kaline.

It turned out that Kaline's shoulder was bothering him. "I didn't know if I should play or not ... Everybody wanted to have me hit my 400th home run, but no way could I swing hard enough to hit a home run. I could have played but I could only punch the ball."

Angels 3, A's 2

California's Denny Doyle singled with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning, capping a two-run burst that finished Oakland's season on a low note.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

"I think either Jim Hunter, Mike Cuellar or I will win the Cy Young Award," Ferguson Jenkins said after finishing the season with a 25-12 record by winning 18 of his last 24 decisions. "I'd like to win it, sure, but those other guys certainly deserve it too.

Indians 8, Red Sox 6

Cleveland will break a racial barrier once again with Robinson's appointment. It was the Indians who, in 1947, had the American League's first black player, Larry Doby.

Robinson said goodbye to his 1974 playing days with a bang, driving in two runs, one of them with his 22nd homer of the year and 574th of his career.

But it was Rusty Torres' homer, opening a two-run ninth, that enabled Gaylord Perry to finish at 21-13.

Yankees 2, Brewers 1

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Chicago scored a run in the 12th inning without a hit, Kansas City reliever Bruce Dal Canton wild-pitching in the winning run.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

A plan of play that offers declarer a 75 per cent chance of success is of course not as good a plan as one that offers a 100 per cent chance.

Consider this deal where South won the club lead with the ace, drew three rounds of trumps, ruffed a club, cashed the king of diamonds and continued with a diamond to the ace. West showing out, South was faced with the problem of trying to avoid the loss of a spade as well as a diamond.

So, rather than stake the outcome on simply a spade finesse, South cashed a third round of diamonds and put East on lead with a fourth diamond.

East was now forced to return a spade and South of course followed low. This method of play would have been delightfully successful had East held the ten or the queen, but with the spades divided as they were, South finished down one.

Actually, the odds were 3 to 1 in favor of East's having the ten or queen, and from that standpoint South's line of play had much to recommend it. But the fact is that his course of play was incorrect because he failed to spot a 100 per cent chance for the slam.

After leading the king of diamonds, South should have played the A-K and another spade. This would have made the contract certain regardless of how the spades or diamonds were divided.

It could not matter which defender held the queen of spades, for that player would be forced to return a diamond or yield a ruff and discard. Either play was sure to eliminate the potential diamond loser and thus hand South his twelfth trick.

The Wonders of the Eyes

Can you explain the difference between nearsightedness and farsightedness?

Miss D.L.K., N.J.

Dear Miss K.:

I'll try, but first I want to emphasize that the mechanism by which we see reflects the perfection of one of the great wonders of the body.

Rays of light enter the eye from all directions. As they pass through the opening of the lens an image is formed on the retina. The retina is a highly sensitive inner lining of the back of the eyeball.

When these light waves land on the retina they are converted into electrical waves and carried to the brain. Here, by experience, the person recognizes the image and learns to differentiate between a house, a human, an animal, or any of the myriad images we see daily.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, results when the eyeball becomes less round and more oval. Now the light rays strike in front of the retina rather than directly on it. This causes disturbance of vision.

In nearsightedness, vision is better for near objects than for distant objects.

Farsightedness, or hyperopia, is a condition in which the eyeball is shorter than normal. The result is that the light rays passing through the lens hit beyond the normal retina.

With this disorder, vision is better for distant images than it is for near ones.

Is it always necessary to remove impacted teeth?

Mr. H.H., Va.

Dear Mr. H.:

If impacted teeth are a source of infection, or if they impinge on nerves and cause distress, the dentist gives consideration to their removal.

If, however, impacted teeth do not cause any symptoms there seems to be no reason for undertaking the removal of the impacted teeth only because they are there.

When impacted teeth interfere with the growth structure of the jaw or affect the normal bite, dentists, afer careful evaluation, may come to the conclusion that they should be removed.

Surgical removal is not a routine decision. Rather it is suggested only after all factors have been thoroughly investigated.

Watergate trial moves slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors have linked one new name and may add others to the conspiracy case that has brought five Nixon loyalists to trial on Watergate-related criminal charges.

The claim of "newly discovered evidence" was made to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who was engaged for the third straight day today in the painstaking procedure of trying to select an unbiased jury for the months of trial to come.

The five defendants, John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman, John N. Mitchell, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian, appeared to take the snail's pace in stride.

With the jury selection process not half completed, it appeared that the first testimony in the trial will not come until the middle of next week at the earliest.

Richard M. Nixon's lawyers were expected to ask Sirica to excuse the former president from testifying at the trial on grounds that his health will not permit it.

And Ehrlichman posed a new problem for the judge: a claim that trial for conspiracy and obstruction of justice will place him in double jeopardy since Ehrlichman already stands convicted in the plumbers case.

The prosecutors' memorandum said the new evidence made it necessary to add one co-conspirator to the list drawn up by the Watergate grand jury. It did not name the person.

But a source close to the case confirmed the man is Richard A. Moore, the former special counsel to Nixon, who testified at the Senate Watergate hearings that he urged John W. Dean III to tell the cover-up story to the president.

Moore, who had been a holdover in the Ford administration, resigned Wednesday. The prosecutor's office had included Moore on its list of 44 prospective witnesses, largely because he was involved in some of the taped conversations that will be introduced into evidence.

At the time of his Senate appearance in July a year ago, the white-haired Moore was represented by Herbert J. Miller, retained by Nixon after his resignation.

The addition brought the number of unindicted co-conspirators to 20, according to sources. The only name that has surfaced officially is Nixon's.

The prosecutors indicated the list may be extended further, saying:

"The government may prove at trial that individuals other than those named as defendants or identified as co-conspirators by the grand jury were in fact members of the conspiracy charged in the indictment."

By the end of Wednesday's court day, Sirica had finished preliminary questioning of 315 prospective jurors, in public and private, and had excused 171 who said they could not be sequestered for the 3 to 4 months the trial might take.

The remaining 144 were to undergo more thorough, private questioning in the coming days. If a sufficient number survive questioning for possible bias, lawyers will have a chance to eliminate a specified number until 12 jurors and 6 alternates are seated.

Eastern half of nation in icebox

By The Associated Press

The eastern half of the nation shivered under a record-breaking blanket of early cold and snow today.

Milwaukee, Wis., set an Oct. 3 record with a low predawn temperature of 27 degrees. New lows for the date also were recorded in Indianapolis, Ind.; Buffalo, N.Y., and Birmingham, Ala.

An Oct. 3, 1886, low of 32 degrees was surpassed in Chicago, marking the third straight day of record low temperatures there.

Pittsburgh, Pa., had its earliest snowfall in a century along with record cold for the date.

An inch of snow whitened Syracuse, N.Y., and there were scattered snowfalls in the lower Great Lakes region, the upper Ohio Valley and the northern Appalachians.

Oct. 2 cold records were broken Wednesday in Charleston, W.Va.; Binghamton, N.Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich., and South Bend, Ind.

Thundershowers that dumped an inch of rain on Bakersfield, Calif., Wednesday, moved eastward.

The northern corners of both coasts were cloudy.

Black snake makes home in cruiser

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A four-foot black snake which spent three weeks in the trunk of a police cruiser and a briefer stint in the home of a 10-year-old is destined to return to the wild.

"He's sorta mean," said Adam Chacksfield, son of a suburban Norwood police executive. "He's been sleeping with my king snake but my mom says she doesn't want him around the house."

Evendale Patrolman Harold Vonderhaar put the snake in his cruiser trunk Sept. 17 after capturing it in a resident's yard. Vonderhaar finally got it out three weeks later with the help of a local exterminator using bug spray.

Before that police tried a varity of "snake removers" including gasoline, tear gas and loud noises.

Vandalism, theft reports probed

An incident of vandalism was reported by the Washington C.H. Police Department and a larceny is under investigation by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Some one threw a soft drink can from a blue Chevrolet and struck the windshield of a car owned by Charles Wilson, 816 John St., which was parked in front of his residence between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Four two-way radios valued at $2,600 were stolen from the Basic Construction Materials Co., 933 Old Chillicothe Rd., sometime between 5 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. The radios were removed from four different company trucks and an investigation is in progress.

Deputies file shoplift charge

A 39-year-old New Holland man has been arrested and charged with petty theft by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department for an alleged shoplifting incident at Seaway, CCC Highway-W, which occurred at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies reported Lawrence A. Snyder, attempted to leave the store with an auto thermostat and gasket valued at $1.43, concealed in his clothing.

Snyder is presently incarcerated in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Judge seeks reversal

Contempt ruling to be appealed

The ruling in the contempt of court case involving a Washington C.H. newspaperman will be appealed, according to a petition filed in Fayette County Common Pleas Court by appointed counselor Robert L. Brubaker.

Brubaker was appointed to present Judge Evelyn W. Coffman's position that a Record-Herald reporter was in contempt of court for violating her "expressed command' not to print part of the courtroom proceedings during a kidnap-extortion trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court June 25.

On August 9, the contempt hearing was held before a capacity crowd in Fayette County Common Pleas Court with Judge Gwynn Sanders, of Union County, presiding. The judge ruled September 3 that since the discussion occurred in a court session which was open to the public, the reporter had a right, guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, to print the account.

Judge Coffman has refused to accept the judge's decision, terming the verdict of acquittal "shocking." On her behalf, Brubaker will attempt to have the Second District Court of Appeals reverse Judge Sanders' decision.

THE APPEAL can be used as precedent only, not to find Record-Herald reporter Ed Summers in contempt. He has been found not guilty, and any further prosecution against him would constitute double jeopardy. The outcome of the appeal will have no bearing on the earlier decision.

The appeal is being filed by Judge Coffman in hopes that it can have the decision reversed for reference in similar cases which might arise during future trials in Common Pleas Court.

Brubaker will have 40 days to file a transcript of the hearing and relevant court records. After these are filed, he will have another 20 days to file a brief explaining why the appeals court should consider the case.

There will then be an opportunity for defense counselors Otis R. Hess Jr., of Washington C.H., and Daniel W. Drake, of Wilmington, to cite any reasons they have to believe that an appeal hearing should not be granted, and Brubaker can respond to the defense brief.

Judge Coffman contends that when the constitutional right of a free press conflicts with the right of a fair trial, the press loses its right to report public events.

Defense attorneys and the opinion rendered by Judge Sanders agree that the court has a constitutional obligation to insure that any defendant receives a fair trial, but states that there are alternatives open to the court which preserve the constitutional guarantees of all concerned, including the press.

According to Judge Sanders' decision, "...A trial is a public event. What transpires in the courtroom is public property... Those who see and hear what transpired may report it with impunity. There is no special prerequisite of the judiciary which

How Council feels

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of seven interviews with Washington C. H. City Council members and their feelings concerning the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue.)

BY MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

Mrs. Bertha McCullough, the first woman ever elected to a seat on Washington C. H. City council, supports the proposed 1.25 per cent income tax issue "because this is a lovely city with first class citizens and would hate to see the city be forced into providing the citizens with second class facilities, services and personnel."

"The biggest expense is the employe payroll and in order to keep the good help people we have, we must make it possible for them to lead decent lives. If the income tax is passed we can provide more money for the police, fire and street departments and all areas of city government," Mrs. McCullough said.

Mrs. McCullough, 431 W. Circle Ave., said, "Personally, I want to keep Washington C. H. a progressive city, and don't want us to fall backwards."

The first-year City Council member says she has become better acquainted with problems involved in the city government operation since taking office last November.

"I HAD an inkling when elected of some of the city's problems, but had no idea just how serious they were until I was confronted with the basic facts," she remarked.

"City Council has a great responsibility to residents of keeping the city on even basis as far as financial matters are concerned, however, we're (City Council) using 1972 income to pay

BERTHA McCULLOUGH

1974 expenses and we're coming up short," the customer service representative at the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. here said.

"Anyone knows the tremendous force of inflation during the past year especially," Mrs. McCullough noted, "and everybody is looking for new income to run their households, businesses, or in this case the city."

Like other Council members, Mrs. McCullough is worried about the city's condition if federal revenue sharing funds were ever eliminated. The city received $88,000 in revenue sharing monies this year.

"Most other cities use revenue sharing funds for extras,;; but Washington C. H. uses the money

County's 12th victim

Young WCH man killed in crash

A young Washington C. H. man became Fayette County's twelfth traffic accident fatality this year when he was killed in a single car crash just east of Washington C. H. late Wednesday night.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies said John Michael Smith, 22, of 806 Sycamore St., was killed in the single car accident on Palmer Road at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday.

INVESTIGATING sheriff's deputies at the scene reported the car the young Washington C. H. man was driving went out of control on Palmer Road, three-tenths of a mile west of the U.S. 35 bypass while the driver was attempting to negotiate a left curve.

Officers said the auto traveled off the right side of the road, collided with an open ditch, became airborne across Palmer Road, struck an embankment and overturned three times before coming to a stop on its wheels.

The young father of two children was thrown from the car during the turbulent crash, sheriff's deputies said.

He was rushed to Fayette Memorial Hospital by Kirkpatrick's ambulance service. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

Born in Greenfield, he was employed as a foreman at Cudahy Foods Co., Washington C. H.

HE IS survived by his wife, the former Rebecca Ann Wood; a son, John Michael Smith Jr., and a daughter, Kimberly Sue, both at home; his parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, of Washington C. H. his great-grandfather, John A. Smith, Rt. 2, Greenfield, and two brothers, Thomas and Dennis Smith, both of Washington C. H. He was preceded in death by a son, Tommy James, who died March 24, 1973.

Funeral services are being arranged under the direction of the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield.

Benefit football contest Saturday

Sore muscles and aching bones not withstanding, the stage is set for the long-awaited benefit football game which will bring to life the Washington C.H. Offsides team.

Nervously waiting in the wings are nearly 100 Washington C.H. area businessmen who have suffered through sometimes painful practice sessions during the past week.

PAIN-KILLING ointments, rubbing alcohol and other items designed to relieve muscular tension have been at a premium the past four days in Washington C.H.

However, those uncomfortable feelings will be forgotten at 8:30 p.m. Saturday when the Washington C.H. Offsides meet the Paint Creek No Stars on the Gardner Park Stadium turf in a fund-raising flag football game to benefit the popular Community Education program here.

Natural gas pinch eyed

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Public utilities are warning businesses across the country that they may not get natural gas for heating this winter. Some utilities are refusing to accept new customers, industrial or residential.

An Associated Press survey showed there is a shortage of natural gas in almost every area, with the East Coast apparently facing the most severe problem. Natural gas provides 31 per cent of the energy used in the country.

Spokesmen for the utilities and some state officials blame the Federal Power Commission for the shortage. They say the FPC ceiling price for natural gas is too low and discourages exploration. "The companies need more money to explore and get additional gas," said George I. Bloom, chairman of the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission.

Other officials note that as fuel oil became more expensive, many people switched to natural gas, boosting the demand over a short period of time without development of new supplies.

Last June, the FPC revised its pricing system for natural gas, replacing a series of regional limits with a single national price of 42 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for so-called "new" gas from wells that began operation after Jan. 1, 1973. Previously, the price ranged from 19.9 to 34 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and averaged 27 cents, the commission said.

The government action was expected to mean another boost in prices for consumers who already are paying more than last year. A spokesman for Minnesota Gas Co. said, for example, that rates for residential customers are 12 to 14 per cent higher than last year and industrial customers are paying 30 per cent more than they did in 1973.

The shortage will hit hardest at "interruptible" customers — large industrial users whose contracts call for them to be cut off in times of trouble. These customers make arrangements for alternate sources of energy like heating oil. Cold weather frequently has meant cutoffs for the "interruptibles" in the past and officials say the situation will be worse this year.

Most utilities said residential customers and high-priority users like hospitals and schools would not be affected by the shortage. But some companies are trying to discourage new customers.

Ohio industries will bear the brunt of a natural gas shortage this winter, as major state gas companies prepare for winter cutbacks of up to 20 per cent, a survey of several firms has shown.

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., serving 988,541 customers in Ohio, has announced a fivemonth 20 per cent cutback beginning Nov. 1 for industrial customers.

Earl Loucks, company spokesman, blames the problem on the federal government, saying prices set by the Federal Power Commission at the natural gas well heads have been too low to attract the necessary capital to drill new sources.

Loucks said residential customers shouldn't feel the effects of the shortage, as they are the last to be cut.

Dayton Power & Light Co. says it will get 14 per cent less natural gas from its wholesale supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

Dal Foreman, public information spokesman for DP&L, said the firm is receiving some synthetic gas from a plant near Fremont, but the additional supply won't make up for the cut. He said some industrial shortages will probably result.

The amount industries will be asked to trim depends on the firm's new allotment which begins Oct. 20. Foreman added.

Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. predicts a 60 to 100-day winter curtailment period beginning Nov. 1. The firm says only special contract and industrial customers will be affected, and it has alerted them to begin the search for alternate fuels.

Euclid man winner

Winning digits

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The winning three-digit number this week in the Ohio Lottery was 363, and the winning double number was 236 583, the Ohio Lottery Commission announced Thursday.

Figueria was to receive $15,000 a year for the next 20 years.

The $30,000 prize went to Arthur F. Manasia of North Olmsted, lottery officials reported.

There was no $60,000 award due to the small number of participants, a commission spokesman said. At least eight persons must be eligible to warrant its inclusion.

Three $15,000 winners were named, including one from Kentucky. They were Clarence G. Haley, Hebron, Ky.; Gretchen Hawk of Massillon and Edwin J. Blue of Springfield, both of Ohio.

Yule parade set Nov. 24

The 1974 Washington C.H. area Christmas parade will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, November 24, according to Edward Fisher and Charles Winkle, chairman and vice chairman of this year's event.

The event is staged annually to bring Santa Claus to the city, and designates that the Christmas season has arrived once again. Bands, queens, floats, marching units will be on hand for the festivities.

While this will mark the first time the parade has been scheduled for Sunday, it is hoped the working families and their children will be more accessible and free to attend on that day, Fisher said. Also, the event has been set for 2 p.m. to avoid conflict with morning and evening church services and to allow the many church youth groups to participate in the parade with floats and regular marching units.

Fisher said that a planning committee meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday, October 11 in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office to assign responsibilities for the many related parade activities.

Following the planning committee meeting, a parade theme will be announced as well as details for local groups interested in entering floats and participating in the parade.

Deaths, Funerals

Miss Cleo Hollingsworth

JAMESTOWN — Miss Cleo M. Hollingsworth, 57, of Jamestown, died Wednesday afternoon in the Autumn Years Nursing Home, Sabina, where she had been a patient one week.

Born in Bowersville, Miss Hollingsworth had owned and operated the Hollingsworth Nursing Home, Jamestown, for 14 years before retiring last April.

She is survived by three brothers, Traverse, of Washington C. H., and Milton and Arthur, both of Bowersville, and a sister, Mrs. Robert (Hazel) Drake, of Reesville.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Powers Funeral Home, Jamestown, with burial in Bowersville Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 2 to 4 and 7 until 9 p.m. Friday.

LAWRENCE J. JOHNSON — Services for Lawrence J. Johnson, 80, of 810 Leesburg Ave., were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert L. Barker officiating. He was assisted by the Rev. John Buck and Elder William Dawes.

Mrs. Jerita Bays sang two hymns with piano accompaniment from Miss Patty Rhoades. Mr. Johnson died Monday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were Art and Robert Newell, Pat Kelley, Richard Violet, Robert Hartley and John Faught. The flag of the World War I veteran which draped the casket was folded by Clarence Hackett and J. Paul Strevey and was presented to Mr. Johnson's stepson, Charles Kelley.

Gilligan, Netzley debate

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan said Wednesday night that no new taxes would be needed to finance any proposals he has recently made, but Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-7 Laura, claimed new taxes would be needed if Gilligan kept promises made over the past week.

The Democratic governor and the Republican conservation whom Gilligan once called "a complete bubblehead" made the claims as they squared off in a debate before about 80 persons at Sinclair Community College.

Both came armed with statistics, Netzley with figures attempting to show that income tax money was being squandered and Gilligan with figures to show what he has accomplished in four years.

Gilligan said his financial advisers had assured him the increase in revenues from current taxes would keep pace with any new projects he may propose.

Netzley claimed that promises he made last week would total $1.5 billion.

"There will be a tax increase if the governor fills all of his promises," said Netzley. "There is no way you can raise $1 billion without increasing taxes."

The debate was arranged by the Miami Valley Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society.

Gilligan said he was debating Netzley because his own opponent in November, former Gov. James A. Rhodes, had refused to debate.

Gilligan set up the confrontation last August when he said he would debate Netzley "on any street corner."

Netzley, who won the flip of a coin and got to give his 10-minute opening remarks first, got the debate off to a fast start.

"I've waited two years for this," he said, adding: "Governor, you are a master of the old consumer fraud game called bait and switch. You sold Ohio an income tax on the basis the money would go for education and to reduce real estate taxes.

"But you delivered skyrocketing welfare and thousands of new bureaucrats."

Gilligan said when he became governor Ohio ranked 50th in tax efforts and schools were closing throughout the state.

Schools were given a financial footing, he said.

Forty per cent of costs for schools now come from the state, Gilligan said, and property taxes declined last year, "the first time that has happened since the depths of the great depression."

Gilligan said Netzley "may not be an adequate substitute in some respects for Mr. Rhodes— he's a good deal younger, among other things, but he has said some of the same dangerous, irresponsible things during the course of this campaign and in earlier months about our revenue system in this state and the conduct of state affairs."

Gilligan said he would apologize about the "bubblehead" remark but he felt the apology might be misconstrued.

"I would beg his pardon for that except a request between politicians of that type might be misunderstood even though one of us is a Democrat," Gilligan said.

After the debate a newsman in the audience asked Gilligan if the advisors who told him no new taxes would be needed were the same ones that told him there would be no surplus in the budget of the last fiscal year. There was $80.5 million left over.

"The very same," Gilligan answered. He said the fluctuating national economy put estimates off 3 per cent, but he would rather have a surplus than a deficit.

"If that's a blunder, we blew it," he said.

Meanwhile, Rhodes said in a statement issued by his Columbus campaign headquarters that, if elected, he will begin his administration as he did when he became governor in 1963, by cutting the costs of state government.

"The fat has got to go," said Rhodes, whose austerity programs gained national attention.

Rhodes said state government is "gravely bloated" with an excessive number of state employes, while also paying millions in fees to outside consultants. Duplication and "frilly spending," he said, have blown the state budget to a level disproportionate to services provided.

In Cincinnati, Republican U.S. Senate candidate Ralph Perk discounted polls that show him far behind Democratic nominee John Glenn and predicted he will be able to "turn around" a sufficient number of votes to win in November.

The Cleveland mayor, in the Queen City to open his campaign headquarters there, said a combination of 125,000 to 150,000 "usually Democratic" votes in Cleveland and the solid Republican votes downstate will swing the election in his favor.

Nancy Brown, an independent candidate for governor, said in Cincinnati Wednesday she is "running to win" and expects support from youths, working people and women.

The 23-year-old candidate is a member of the Socialist Workers Party, which she said is calling for abolition of all taxes on income under $15,000, 100 per cent taxes on income over $30,000, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and full rights for homosexuals.

Stock list plummets

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 10.48 at 591.05, and losers outpaced gainers by close to 2-to-1 in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow, which had rebounded after a brief pass below 600 Tuesday, showed little sign of resistance as it sank below it again today. The average last closed below that psychological milestone on Nov. 1, 1962.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was off .40 at 61.61.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .44 to 33.00.

Frost and freeze warnings were issued for northeast Ohio tonight, but a warming trend later Friday is expected to increase temperatures to the upper 50s and 60s.

Toledo set a low record this morning at 25, coldest in the state. Cleveland was warmest with 40, due to a Lake Erie water temperature of 62.

Snow flurries fell over portions of the northeast Wednesday night. Clouds were expected to decrease today with mainly sunny, but cool weather prevailing this afternoon. High temperatures were forecast in the upper 40s and 50s.

A chance of showers Saturday and Sunday, ending Monday. Highs in the 70s. Lows in the upper 40s and the 50s.

Nations must change lifestyle due to oil costs, official says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end of cheap oil will force the industrialized nations to change their lifestyles, Iran's finance minister says.

Hushang Ansary has been the only man to answer the scores of finance ministers who have complained for three days here about the disastrous effects wrought on their economies by the four-fold increase in oil prices.

"Once cheap oil is no longer available, you have to do something: either lower your standard of living, forget about excessive consumption and about waste being an important basis of your economy, or you have to increase productivity, or both," Ansary said.

"But how can you do it if you have social problems in your 'permissive society' ... with strikes every other day?" Ansary asked.

It was not known whether officials of other oil producing nations will follow him before the World Bank and International Monetary Fund meeting, which ends Friday.

Yet Ansary does not consider himself the spokesman of the oil producers. He spoke Tuesday as his country's finance minister and as governor of the World Bank for Iran, he stressed in an interview.

"The industrial countries must recognize that as cheap oil and other raw materials are no longer available, the situation calls either for a change in lifestyles or an effort to do away with social ills and increase productivity," he told a hushed audience on Tuesday.

What did he have in mind? Ansary was asked.

"It boils down to this," he replied. "Cheap oil and other raw materials made it possible for the Western countries to flourish and to make rapid economic progress.

He recalled that Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, the Shah of Iran, repeatedly said that oil prices depend on the rate of inflation, meaning that they would go up if the producers had to pay higher prices for their imports. This is now the policy of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But this would work both ways, Ansary said: "Once you link the two things, they share the same future in whatever direction they go," meaning that should the prices of manufactured goods decline, the price of oil would follow suit.

Government plans for coal strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is preparing contingency plans to divert some coal supplies from electric utilities and to embargo coal exports in the event of a miners' strike next month.

These are among several measures outlined in a memo from the Federal Energy Administration to the Interior Department. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

The planning considers requiring electric utility companies to sell up to 40 per cent of their new coal deliveries to other industries, possibly under federal allocation and price control.

A government official involved in the planning said the moves under consideration would be unlikely to result in power brownouts or blackouts or electrical rate increases. The moves are designed to preserve jobs and to prevent production cutbacks in other industries, the official said.

The FEA also is considering seeking legislative authority to slap an excise tax on electricity "as a standby in case of an urgent need to reduce demand significantly," and to require industry to cut back production and public services.

No details were mentioned but presumably the steps would not be taken unless a strike, if it occurred, lasted several weeks.

Contract talks in the soft-coal industry began a month ago and negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the coal companies have until Nov. 12 to reach agreement before the current pact expires.

Energy experts estimate a fully effective coal strike would deny the nation three times as much energy on a daily basis as the oil embargo did last winter.

The tentative plans for coping with a possible coal strike still are being worked out by FEA Asst. Administrator Eric Zausner and others. In discussing the merits of a coal allocation program, the FEA memo noted that such a program would subject the government "to political criticism because it dampens the effect of the strike."

Government officials were reluctant to discuss the planning in part because of what they said could be the appearance of interfering in the negotiations.

A spokesman for UMW President Arnold Miller called the contingency planning counterproductive and said they "might wind up prolonging a strike if a strike takes place."

In its planning, the FEA estimates even if a strike tied up 80 per cent of the nation's coal production, nonsteel industrial shortages could be made up by diverting about a third of new coal deliveries that would still be going to utilities.

New Middle East war seen unless U.S. pushes Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheik Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's petroleum minister, warns that another Middle East war could break out in the next six months if the United States does not force Israel to pull back all the way to its 1967 borders.

"All the ingredients of another war are here if we don't have a full Israeli withdrawal," Yamani told 17 newsmen at a dinner Wednesday night.

However, if Israel yields all the land occupied during the 1967 war Saudi Arabia should be able to persuade all Arab members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to sharply reduce current oil prices, he said.

"I assure you if we can solve the (Israeli) problem the price of oil will come down," Yamani told his guests.

Together Arab states produce some 24 million barrels of petroleum a day. Yamani's theory is that Iran and Venezuela, the two top non-Arab producing nations, would not withstand a united Arab drive for lower prices.

The Harvard-educated oil minister portrayed Saudi Arabia as a friend of the United States and a steadfast advocate within oil councils of lower prices. Were it not for Saudi Arabia, he said, petroleum would now sell at $15 to $17 a barrel instead of about $11.

"It's all in America's hands," he said. "Israel's only source of power is the United States."

Yamani advanced two major reasons for Israel to settle now with its Arab neighbors by giving up all of its gains from the 1967 war.

Ordinary Americans, finding oil prices on the rise, are questioning whether the current level of U.S. support for Israel is in their interest, he said.

Also, Yamani said, the Arabs are growing ever stronger militarily.

"We're not suggesting Israel should disappear," he said. "The United States can give it security. But the Palestinians who lost their homes have to be treated as human beings."

Yamani said Saudi Arabi will continue its campaign at the next OPEC meeting in December for a price reduction of $1 a barrel.

East Ohio Gas Co., on the other hand, anticipates no problem this winter with natural gas supplies, if pipe line curtailments don't exceed those presently forecast.

The company's storage of gas is at an alltime high, and the only other factor which could seriously alter the situation is a severe winter, the spokesman said. The firm serves northeast Ohio.

The newest City Council member agrees with her fellow city legislators in adopting a plan — providing the income tax is approved — which would not place a contingency on the revenue sharing funds, and using them for the so-called "extras."

"Everyday something comes up in which money has to be spent to insure the safety and security of Washington C. H. residents, and we must have enough money to provide these items," she said.

In closing, Mrs. McCullough said, "We're planning public meetings in various parts of the city so that the people can ask questions about the income tax or other matters pertaining to the operation of city government."

The first public meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at Eastside Elementary School.

Those involved in the contest and other activities Saturday night, and the persons who were instrumental in the countless behind-the-scenes preparations are too numerous to mention.

The game is the brainchild of the Community Education advisory council following more than four years of abuse and wisecracks from the witty James Francis Patrick O'Neill who invented the Offsides on his early morning WLW-Radio broadcasts.

O'Neill will be appearing at Saturday night's game and will join veteran high school football announcer Max Lawrence in the Gardner Park Stadium press box to call the play-by-play action.

City officials have proclaimed Saturday as "Washington C.H. Offsides Day" and O'Neill will be honored as the "Citizen of the Day" here.

Saturday night's Pony League football games have been rescheduled with an earlier starting time to accommodate the fund-raising contest.

FANS ATTENDING the game will easily recognize a number of the participants, especially the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church in Washington C.H. and chaplain of the Cincinnati Bengals, who will be serving as the game chaplain.

Several service clubs and other area organizations will be assisting in staging the contest and special activities have been planned, including halftime performances by the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace high school marching bands.

The advanced sale of tickets has been successful at the established outlets and by members of three service clubs over the last three weeks. The tickets, priced at $1 per person, can be purchased at both the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace football games Friday night. Additionally, the tickets can be purchased at the gate Saturday night.

Howard Hughes won't face court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes will not be extradited from the Bahamas to face trial in Las Vegas, a Justice Department spokesman says.

Spokesman Robert Stevenson said Wednesday that department lawyers decided against trying to extradite Hughes to face stock manipulation charges because it would be expensive and chances of success were slim.

Hughes is scheduled to be arraigned Oct. 25 in federal court on charges of wire fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy to manipulate the stock of Air West airlines.

Harsha opposes gas tax plan

WASHINGTON — Congressman William H. Harsha has announced that he is "unalterably opposed" to a proposed 10 cent per gallon tax on gasoline.

The representative to the House from the 6th District contends that the tax will do nothing to stop inflation.

"Although it will conserve energy by urging the use of mass transportation, it will do nothing for the residents of the rural 6th District where there is very little in the way of mass transit," the congressman said.

He added that people in rural districts depend heavily on automobiles as a means of getting to and from work, shopping and farming — and they are already paying nearly twice as much for gasoline as they did a year ago.

He called John Sawhill's proposal of an additional gasoline tax a "wild idea," from a man who must have "his head in the sand."

Harsha said he is certain that Congress will defeat any attempt to impose the tax and is presently preparing a letter to President Ford on the subject.

Maddox plans new restaurant

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, defeated in an attempt to regain Georgia's governorship, says he plans to open a new version of the restaurant that he closed to keep from integrating.

Maddox, 59, gained the attention that launched his political career by chasing blacks from his Pickrick Restaurant with ax handles.

He said he plans a new Pickrick in Atlanta and will open others if the first is successful. Any new restaurant would have to be integrated by law.

False arrests could multiply

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new survey by the General Accounting Office suggests that false arrests could occur more and more often as police around the nation turn to computerized crime files.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., who already has introduced legislation to limit the use of criminal records, is drafting still another restriction to prevent such occurrences.

"Obviously," Ervin said recently, "a suspect with his hands against the patrol car ... will not be able to convince that officer that an arrest record ... is inaccurate or incomplete and that he was exonerated for the arrest and should not be arrested."

In a statement entered in the Congressional Records, Ervin warned that increasing computerization of criminal records, known as rap sheets, "could enormously magnify the risk of false arrest because of instantaneous use of incomplete or inaccurate or irrelevant past arrest information."

The GAO study, commissioned by Ervin's constitutional rights subcommittee, noted the bulk of police requests for criminal records from the FBI and from state files still are handled manually.

It often takes as long as two weeks for the replies to be delivered by mail or teletype.

Consequently, "criminal history information was used primarily after an individual was arrested," said GAO investigators.

The data showed that records obtained from manual files were used prior to an arrest in fewer than 10 per cent of the cases surveyed.

But when the requests were chanelled through the computerized criminal history system maintained by the FBI, the records were used before arrest in almost one-third of the cases.

"It is reasonable to conclude that computerization of rap sheets would mean that such information would become available for making arrests," Ervin said.

The GAO study lent support to complaints that rap sheets often list arrests without reporting whether the individual was convicted or acquitted.

Officials of the three states involved in the survey — Florida, Massachusetts and California — "told us that lack of disposition data or the existence of inaccurate disposition data are serious problems," GAO investigators said.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Way It Was," a 13-week sports nostalgia series, starts tonight on public TV. If you keep track of closing credits on TV, you'll see the new series was "created by Herb Schmertz."

Who's he? The credits don't say, but he is the vice president for public affairs at the Mobil Oil Corp., which shelled out $360,000 for the half-hour series, plus the cost of newspaper ads and a press agent.

However, there's no rule against a public TV underwriter creating a show it bankrolls, according to Hartford Gunn Jr., president of the Public Broadcasting Service, which is feeding the series to PBS stations.

Furthermore, Gunn said with a chuckle, "I think he's probably maybe crediting himself with more than he did. Actually, it was an idea I may have cooked up.

"It got suggested to Herb and Herb went out and found a producer in Hollywood ... and then they came back to us. We said our rule is that it has to be supervised by one of the stations in the PBS system.

"So we got them together with KCET," he said, referring to the Los Angeles public TV station where the show was put together.

"His role was not one of supervision and production, but there's no question he had important suggestions on how the show ought to be done and its shape, because he's a sports buff.

"But there's no prohibition against that. My feeling is that a good idea or concept can come from anywhere. The key to it is who supervises the production, and it was KCET in this case."

He said when Schmertz' name appeared on the closing credits, "we said, 'Oh, that's probably going to raise some eyebrows.' But on the other hand, it's fair.

"We should acknowledge he made a creative contribution to it, as did some of the rest of us. The producer (Gerry Gross) and KCET incorporated the suggestions and wrapped it all together.

"As long as it's not on the subject of oil — or the economy — I guess we're probably all right," Gunn laughed. "I wouldn't want to get them (Mobil) anywhere near those things."

Sportscaster Curt Gowdy is host of the series. Tonight, he takes viewers back for a fond look at the famous 1951 pennant playoff between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants.

GI admits smuggling attempt

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Kettering soldier William S. Medley told The Dayton Daily News Wednesday that he did attempt to smuggle an East German couple into West Germany at Checkpoint Charlie in Berlin Sept. 10.

Medley was caught and arrested at the border by East German authorities and turned over to the Soviet officials. He was released one week later to the U.S. Army.

During an Article 15 hearing, held in West Berlin, Medley admitted that he had been guilty of attempting to smuggle the pair across the border and was given an "in-house punishment."

He was subsequently broken in rank three grades, fined $150 a month for two months and reassigned to duty in the United States.

From Ft. Stewart, Medley freely discussed the case by telephone.

"I think there was a leak somewhere," he said concerning the arrest. "When I got there (Checkpoint Charlie), they closed the place down to search my car. I knew I was in for it."

Asked if there had been money involved in the deal to smuggle out the East German couple, Medley said, "Yes, but that was minor.

"If I'd been successful and had collected money afterward, that would have been fine. That would have been gravy. But that wasn't why I did it, not really as I look back on the incident."

Medley said he did not know who made the original escape arrangements. He said he agreed to help out after the subject had been discussed a couple of times in a small bar GIs frequented.

He said he did not meet the "young couple, nice looking and well dressed" until the smuggling attempt. The couple hid in the trunk of his car.

At the border, the pair was arrested, Medley said. "I don't know what happened to them after the arrest."

Fertilizer costs zoom for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everything costs more these days, but few items have gone up as much as fertilizer needed by farmers to boost crop production.

As of Sept. 15, says the Agriculture Department, the farm price of all types of fertilizer averaged 19 per cent above last April. And compared with a year earlier, on Sept. 15, 1973, the average was up 81 per cent.

The new figures were included in USDA's monthly farm price report issued Monday. Other production items, including machinery and seed, also were up.

Anhydrous ammonia, a nitrogen source derived from natural gas, cost an average of $229 per ton as of Sept. 15, the report said. Last April 15 it was $183 and a year ago $92.50 per ton.

Mixed fertilizers, including nitrogen, phosphate and potash, also were up sharply. A mixture of 10 per cent of each — called 10-10-10 — cost a national average of $123 per ton last month, compared with $103 last April and $70.80 a year ago.

Although prices farmers pay out to meet expenses have increased generally for a long time — the index was up 17 per cent last month from Sept. 15, 1973 — fertilizer costs, machinery, feed, labor and feeder livestock have been among the leaders.

Farm machinery prices as of mid-September were up nine per cent from last June when those costs were last surveyed. Those were up 22 per cent from a year ago.

Prices of feeder livestock, mainly cattle, have dropped substantially in recent months as the result of the cost crunch on feedlot profits and a move toward more beef produced from animals fed less grain.

The Sept. 15 feeder livestock index was down 12 per cent from August and averaged 37 per cent below a year ago. Prices of feed have come down slightly but not enough in relation to depressed cattle and hog prices to trigger an expansion.

Farmers also are paying much higher prices for seed to plant winter grain, hay and forage crops this fall, the report showed.

The USDA seed price index last month was up 20 per cent over-all from Sept. 15, 1973, including sharp gains for certified alfalfa seed, up 39 per cent from a year earlier and uncertified seed up 44 per cent.

Uncertified alfalfa seed was reported at $151 per 100 pounds, compared with $105 a year ago and $54.80 on Sept. 15, 1972. Certified seed was $166 for 100 pounds, compared with $119 last years and $64.50 two years ago.

Opinion And Comment

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

CIA attacked for great success

The CIA, which was started by President Harry Truman to counter the wiles of the Soviet "psywar" aparatchiks in promoting international subversion, may have had its successes (in Guatemala, for example), but, insofar as the American public can judge from the part of the iceberg that shows above the water, it has never been noteworthy for its ability to carry off a really important covert operation. It messed things up in Albania, In Indonesia, and at the Bay of Pigs in Cuba.

But now we are being told, by journalists who never minded its failures, that it has accomplished something terrible by its success in "destabilizing" the regime of Marxist President Salvador Allende in Chile.

I find this an odd commentary on the journalists involved. If you are a patriotic American who remembers that we once meant business about keeping European powers from obtaining sinister beacheads in the Western Hemisphere, you might think that the CIA, at long last, merits a little public praise. But if this is the way you do happen to think, it merely labels you as a mossback who still believes there was a good reason for the Monroe Doctrine.

What the anti-CIA claque is trying to tell us is that the day of the Monroe Doctrine has gone forever. It is no longer our business to give help to Latin Americans who want to fight back against Marxist conspiracies dominated by Moscow or Peking whose aims are to close in on the U.S. and the Panama Canal from the southern part of the hemisphere.

The New York Time's Tom Wicker tells us that it is nonsense to believe the Allende government was anything other than legit. It did not try, so Mr. Wicker insists, to destroy opposition parties or newspapers. An innocent of innocents, Tom Wicker has never read the late Garet Garrett on the subject of "revolution within the forms."

Senor Allende, a Marxist who came to power as a minority president with no real mandate to push Chile into Communism, had necessarily to proceed by working "within the forms." He had almost succeeded in his policy of eating out the substance of his opposition by closing in on their methods of earning their livelihoods. The middle class and the Chilean trade unions reacted just in time to save their necks.

If the CIA really managed to give ponderable aid to Chilean believers in individual freedom in a fight against Marxist collectivism, then all honor it. But who, in the present Washington climate, can distinguish between a good covert operation aimed at sustaining our friends in the outer world and a bad covert operation undertaken against Americans at home? Everything has been confused by Watergate, with the effect that we are now being rendered helpless against the continuing Marxist campaign to isolate Western Europe and the United States and take over the world.

Ed Hunter, the astute editor of a little magazine called Tactics, has recently reminded us of the CIA's long history of failure. Because it could not cope with superior Communist espionage, it sent men to their deaths in Albania and at the Bay of Pigs.

Skipping over the CIA's one great success in Guatemala, Mr. Hunter lists what he calls "Watergate-ITT" as another CIA bungling. We didn't act on the ITT offer to help fend off Allende in the first place. The Reds, he says, pulled off a propagandist ten-strike when they managed to link a felonious domestic Watergate with the ITT's wholly legitimate concern for the fate of its properties in Chile.

Says Mr. Hunter: "Our Central Intelligence Agency and the International Telephone and Telegraph Company should be rebuked for failure to act on behalf of free peoples everywhere, where this conincides with the survival of our own country."

Mr. Hunter wrote these words before it became known that the CIA had tried to do something to help the Chileans rid themselves of Allende. If the CIA really managed to help the Chileans along in their effort to restore the validity of the Monroe Doctrine, it deserves some kudos at long last. Odd, then, that it should be under fire.

This is one price we are paying for Watergate, and it is time that we become clear about it in our own minds.

Much activity indicated, and excellent stellar influences favor any number of good endeavors—including new undertakings you may be planning to launch.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a delightful personality, great integrity and a practicality that helps you put your original and imaginative ideas over the top. You can add the touch that makes an ordinary job sparkle, put lively enthusiasm into a dull or simple undertaking. You are extremely versatile but, in using your many talents, you concentrate on the more sound and basic aspects of an opus than on its showier side. Thus, in the theater, you would be a better producer than actor; in writing, historical records would have more meaning than a flashy novel. But you do love the arts and should you decide to take one up either vocationally or avocationally, music and sculpture would be your best bets.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Today, I will mail two checks to the Leukemia Society from you dear people in Washington C.H., Fayette and surrounding counties. One check is for $375.72 which was collected in a freewill offering during our gospel sing last Friday night.

To our special singers, the Carter family, the Stritenberger family, the Revelation Singers, and the Christian Way Singers, we express our heartfelt thanks. To the many people who came to the sing, we appreciate each one of you. Thank you for your donations. It was a great success both spiritually and financially. God was surely there.

The other check is for the amount of $323.37. This money was raised at the backyard carnival in our front yard. It was the first Leukemia carnival for our area, and thanks to you people, it was a tremendous success. Who would ever think that a person could raise that amount from pennies, nickels and dimes? One person couldn't. We all did it together, children and adults both. I appreciate everyone of you who helped make this possible. You were wonderful.

The merchants in our town are the world's greatest. All I had to do was ask for a donation and they would ask how much and say to come back if you need more. Thanks so much to the following: Jeff Royal Blue, Sabina IGA, The Club, Western Auto, Mutt's, Risch's, Downtown Drug Store, Hidy's, First Federal Savings and Loan, Boylan and Cannon, Stop and Go, Watson's Office Supply, Landmark, French's Hardware, Cardinal Store, Colonel Sanders, G.C. Murphy Co., Sagar's, Frisch's, Backenstoe Market, Morrow Funeral Home, Arnold Feibelkorn for the ice, Nationwide Insurance and Boylan Jewelers, and to the many who sponsored ads in the paper, and to The Record-Herald for their most touching stories and advertising, and to all those who let us advertise in their store windows.

Special thanks to Patricia Wilson at First National Bank who spent much time counting money and making checks to send.

To the many people who brought delicious looking baked goods. We even had a basket of tomatoes donated that brought over $3.00. Thank you all.

With people like you on our side there is no reason in this world to sit back and feel sorry for ourselves. It is so encouraging to know that people will take time out of their busy lives to help such a worthy cause. We can whip leukemia-together.

A special thank you goes out to all the workers who have been canvassing the town for our drive. We have workers in Bloomingburg, (mostly teenagers), Jeffersonville (mostly Boy Scouts), Staunton, Sabina and other smaller areas. If a worker hasn't knocked on your door, you can mail your donation to me.

On behalf of the Leukemia Society, the Crabtree family and the thousands of leukemia victims everywhere, I want to personally thank each one of you for your help. Thank you seems to be so little in return for all you've done. Sometimes it is hard to express what is in your heart, but from the very depths of my heart, I do thank you all. God bless.

Leroy, Mary, Julie Beth and John Crabtree.

Ohio Perspective

State residents get high view

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— They can't watch Ohio State play football, but sightseers will get a view of Ohio Stadium from an observation deck now going up on the top office floor of the new State Office Tower in downtown Columbus.

Daniel Shields, acting director of the Ohio Building Authority, predicted the observation area-in the northeast corner of the 40th floor of the 41-story building-would open next spring.

The observation area is closed to the public now. Construction still is going on, and visitors, if they could get there, would have to wear hardhats while gawking at the scenery 592 feet below.

Shields said most construction will be completed by the end of the year, with the observation area opened to guided tours by March or April.

The observation area, fronted by 7-foot high glass windows, offers an expansive view of north Columbus. Just to the west, the sharp-eyed sports fan gets a partly obstructed view of Ohio Stadium and a clear sighting of St. John's Arena.

"I do want people to come to the top of the building," said Shields. "We can't deny them that."

Taxpayers already have been given a view of the soaring cost of the monolithic brown skyscraper. Its estimated price tag has climbed from $50 million to $76 million and may go still higher.

The observation deck atop the city's second tallest building, the 555-foot LeVeque-Lincoln Tower, closed about eight months ago to provide more office space.

Although the State Office Tower has three fewer stories than the LeVeque-Lincoln building, Shields said storage areas on the sixth and 41st stories each are equivalent to three levels in the older building.

Only the state auditor on floors 10 and 11, about half the state treasurer's office on 9 and 10, and public welfare allotted 30 through 34 and 37 and 38 remain yet to move in.

Shields has set up shop on the 40th floor, and he is fond of interrupting telephone conversations with the observation, "A helicopter just flew under me. It's kind of unusual to have one go under you."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She'll marry him for the fourth time

DEAR ABBY: I am a fairly intelligent, nice-looking woman of 33, who is getting married for the fourth time.

Before you jump to the conclusion that I am fickle or a poor judge of character, let me tell you that I am marrying the same man for the fourth time.

We don't have any kids, so that's not why we keep going back to each other.

Don't send me to a shrink. I've been to one. We've also seen marriage counselors. They have all told us the same thing. We NEED each other.

We've tried living together (without marriage) and even living with others. It didn't work. We fight a lot, but when we kiss and make up it's better than ever. When he hits me, I hit him back, and believe me, I can take care of myself.

He's not a meal ticket and neither am I. We could both make it on our own.

Abby, have you ever heard from couples who married each other more than once, and learned the secret of making that marriage work?

If so, please let me know. I can't live WITH him and I can't live WITHOUT him. Thanks.

FOURTH TIME AROUND

DEAR FOURTH: All right, I'll try. Readers? Is it really more wonderful the second time around-with the same partner, that is?

DEAR ABBY: As far back as I can remember, I've wanted to be a school teacher. Now my dream has come true.

I would like to make a lasting impression on my students. What should I stress that will be truly helpful to sixth graders? I want to inspire them to learn.

NEW TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Tell them to read, read, read and read some more! There is a treasury of knowledge-free for the taking on the shelves of our public libraries. The person who DOES NOT read has no advantage over the person who WILL NOT read.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a bride to do the Polish apron dance at her reception if neither one of the couple is Polish?

I know of one wedding where nobody was Polish, but they did the dance anyway because every little bit helps when a young couple is just starting out.

GETTING MARRIED

DEAR GETTING: If you want to take up a collection at your wedding reception, this is as good a way as any.

DEAR ABBY: When I graduated from high school, a well-to-do uncle who lived in Portland sent me a check for $100. I put it in my billfold intending to bank it. I failed to write and thank him for it immediately as I should have. I didn't get around to banking it (or trying to) until three months later.

When I tried to bank the check, I found that he had stopped payment on it! Then I received a letter from my uncle saying that since he didn't hear from me for three months, he assumed the check had been lost. In a sense, it was. I "lost" 100 bucks, but I learned a lesson about promptness I'll never forget

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 3, the 276th day of 1974. There are 89 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, the British exploded their first atomic bomb, in a test off the coast of Australia.

On this date —

In 1876, Johns Hopkins University opened in Baltimore.

In 1935, Italian forces invaded Ethiopia.

In 1954, a nine-power conference in London agreed that West Germany should enter the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: The threat of a strike against major U.S. railroads was averted for 60 days as President Nixon set up an emergency fact-finding board.

One year ago: Willi Stoph was replaced by Horst Sindermann as premier of East Germany. Stoph became chairman of the council of state.

Miss Sharron Kay Halliday became the bride of John Edward Meighan Sept. 28. The candlelight double-ring ceremony took place in Saint Andrew's Episcopal Church at 7:30 p.m. with Dr. Leroy Davis, rector, officiating.

Miss Halliday is the daughter of Mrs. Felix Simms Halliday of 557 Albin Ave., and the late Mr. Halliday. Mr. John William Meighan of Crystal Beach, Tex., is the father of the bridegroom.

Two silver altar vases filled with pink gladioli, blue, pink and white carnations with white bows, and two sets of seven-branch candelabra with white candles entwined with leather leaf with white bows graced the front of the church. The center aisle was adorned with brass hurricane lamps with white candles entwined with boxwood, with white bows.

Jeff Brown and Bret Longberry were the acolytes. Mrs Clarence Barger, organist, presented a selection of wedding music and the Wedding March by Mendelssohn.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Jack Halliday, the bride wore a gown of white crystal crepe with Venice lace trim, fitted empire bodice of all lace, cameo neckline. The shepherdess sleeves with lace caps over the shoulders had lace cuffs. The A-line skirt had a wide flounced bordered with Venice lace, which came to a chapel length train. Her headpiece of matching lace, trimmed in seed pearls, held the silk illusion veil. She wore a small ruby pendant encircled with diamonds, a gift from her mother and father, and carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds, stephanotis, and blue baby's breath, with streamers of white pecot ribbon. The couple also received Holy Communion following the marriage ceremony.

Maid of honor, Miss Sue Jones, college roommate from Columbus, wore a long gown with hooded jacket of romance blue maracanie knit. The gown featured a high neck with halter back and A-line skirt. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William Halliday, and Mrs. John Halliday, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Randy LeMaster, all of Washington C.H., and the Misses Linda De Matteis and Mary Lou Brown, both of Columbus, all wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. Each carried a colonial bouquet of all colors of miniature carnations, pink rosebuds, lavender statice, baby's breath, with pastel ribbon streamers.

William Meighan, brother of the groom from Crystal Beach, Tex., served as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests were William Halliday and John Halliday, brothers of the bride, from Washington C.H. The groomsmen were Joseph Kieholtz and Richard Hall, both of Columbus, and Peter Conlon of New York.

Mrs. Halliday chose for her daughter's wedding a formal length gown of frosted apricot double polyester knit with fitted bodice, sheer long sleeves and soft skirt, with which she combined matching accessories. She wore a yellow-throated white orchid.

Senior hostesses for the reception which followed in Story Hall were Mrs. Buckner Burbage and Mrs. Paul Dougherty; junior hostesses, Miss Martha Roberts, Mrs. Larry Garringer, Miss Cindy Wickline, and Mrs. Jeff Garringer. Senior hostesses wore white cymbidium orchid corsages, and the junior hostesses white carnation with blue baby's breath corsages. Miss Kay Allen presided at the guest book.

The bride's table held a five tiered wedding cake topped with flowers to match the bridesmaid's bouquets. The cake and crystal punch bowl were encircled with smilax and flowers to match the attendants bouquets. The bride's table and punch table were with white lace cloths with lace overlay, and silver appointments. Pink tapers were in the candelabra. White cloths with lace overlay, silver candelabra with pink tapers, and silver appointments completed the setting.

The bride, a graduate of Ohio State University, is physical education instructor at Orient State Institute. Her husband, who received a bachelor of arts and master's degree from Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky., and his doctorate degree from OSU, is a member of the faculty at OSU working with the Center for Vocational and Technical Education.

Howard Knutson, her father, received the award for best arrangement in the Men's Divison; he also received an award for the best specimen of old garden roses, and his lavender entry, 'Lady X', was selected as one of the top four blooms exhibited in the show. Mr. Knutson is associated with Downtown Drugs, and has given talks to several Fayette County groups on the subjects of roses and rose growing.

Money Does Matter . . .

By Robert E. English

It's Just A Simple Matter of Trust . . .

Basically, a "Trust" is a business or family arrangement whereby a "Trustee" holds and manages cash, securities, real estate, or any other kind of property for the benefit of other persons, called "beneficiaries."

Example: You turn over property to a Bank or a trust for the benefit of children. YOU are the "creator" of Trust. The Bank is the Trustee, the children are the Beneficiaries.

There are many kinds of types of Trusts - "living" trusts which function while you are alive - or those under a will which do not become operative until after your death.

Trusts can, and very often should be used for a variety of estate needs. There are many varieties designed for a variety of needs. No mysteries. Your Banker knows the answers.

Best of luck to Glendon Yerian upon his retirement from the Washington Court House Post Office after 35 years of service.

Much money or property does NOT have to be involved in order to make the establishment of a Trust practical. Every situation is unique in itself. Let's do some talking, down at our Bank, Your Friendly First National Bank of Washington Court House.

Xenia studies tornado disaster lessons

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Bob Stewart sat at the head table and watched slides of the tornado that destroyed 40 per cent of his city exactly six months ago.

He listened as a recorder played a tape which had been left running as the tornado approached the city. The roar of the wind grew louder and louder until it sounded like a train. Then Stewart heard a roof rip off a building and then silence as the power which ran the recorder suddenly went dead.

"If that had been any louder, I might have run out of the room," Stewart said later.

Stewart is city manager of the city which gained prominence when the tornado struck April 3.

"They called it the day of the hundred tornados," Stewart said. "I'm not sure why Xenia came out with the most national exposure. There were other places hit hard by tornados that day. "It must have been the magnitude of the disaster."

The tornado killed 30 persons and destroyed more than 1,400 homes in the community.

Stewart, here Wednesday to speak at a meeting of the Ohio Environmental Health Association's Southwest District, said Xenia had advance warning of the tornado.

"Many people have asked me 'why didn't you run right for cover?'" Stewart said.

"I remember we had plenty of warning and as the tornado approached, there was a crowd of people watching it. Even my family was out in the street."

The problems that the tornado brought showed basic flaws in traditional disaster planning, he said.

"I had a beautiful book with a disaster plan in it," Stewart said.

"But who could find it when my office was in a shambles. And how could I carry a book underneath my arm when I went out in the street.

"After the tornado, we had people coming up to us with hammers and we had people coming up to us with bulldozers. We had to listen to everyone, because we didn't know who was who," he said.

The city was also inundated by well-meaning people offering things that the city really didn't need, he added.

"We still have warehouses full of clothing that were donated after the tornado," Stewart said. "And people are always coming and asking us 'What can we fix?'

"Everything that was broken has been torn down and is at the bottom of a quarry near the town. What we need now is to upgrade the sewers and schools and build more houses so Xenia can once again support industry."

Disposing of the more than million cubic yards of tornado debris is one of the problems Stewart has solved.

"The Army Corps of Engineers first thought it could be burned, but if we followed through on that, we would still be burning four years from now," Stewart said.

"What we've done is put some in a nearby quarry and some has been sold to farmers for fill."

Stewart said his city is accutely aware that it may need a tornado disaster plan again some day. What will be needed then, according to Stewart is knowledge of where to go for help, and what options to take.

"The true test will be to see how fast we correct the mistakes we have made in the past," Stewart said. "Otherwise, what we have gone through will have been an exercise in futility."

Junior Achievement program is launched

The Junior Achievement program in Washington C.H. was launched during a meeting of the board of directors Wednesday night in the Junior Achievement center on N. Fayette Street.

It was reported during the meeting that recruiting sessions have been conducted at Washington Senior and Miami Trace high schools and officials have been quite pleased with the response from students. A recruiting meeting will be held Monday at the Laurel Oaks Career Development campus at Wilmington.

The number of students who will be participating in the Junior Achievement program here this year is almost doubled from the number who took part a year ago.

Three companies will be operating under the Junior Achievement program this year.

DURING Wednesday night's meeting, Regina Roush, a Miami Trace High School senior, presented a report on the national JA convention she attended in August at Indiana University. Over 2,700 students from throughout the nation attended the convention.

Miss Roush attended the convention after she was selected as the "Outstanding Junior Girl" in the Central Ohio Junior Achievement program area last year. She also served as one of the company presidents here a year ago.

Subdivision sketch plans are approved

A sketch plan for a proposed residential subdivision to be located on the northeast side of Washington C.H. was approved by members of the City Planning Commission at their regular monthly meeting in the City Office Building Wednesday night.

City Manager Dan Wolford said Robert E. Lewis, a Washington C.H. real estate developer doing business as Silver Dollar, Inc., 1017 Clinton Ave., submitted the application for approval of a sketch plan regarding the proposed subdivision.

Planning commission members approved the concept for the residential subdivision which has been proposed on a 12.5-acre tract of land on Gregg Street.

THE PROPOSED subdivision will be called Wagon Wheel Estates, according to the application submitted by Lewis.

The site is bounded on the south by Gregg Street, on the east by Lewis Street and on the north by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

A total of 34 lots will be involved in the proposed subdivision.

A preliminary plat application will now be submitted to the City Planning Commission by the developer.

According to Wolford, the application for approval of the sketch plan for the proposed subdivision was the only matter considered by the city's planners at the meeting.

Paper drive

JEFFERSONVILLE — Boy Scout Troop No. 67 will hold its monthly paper drive from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday.

Scoutmaster Fred Doyle said persons should bring all bundled papers and magazines to the scout hall which is located directly across from the Jeffersonville Fire Department.

Manhole bandits sought

Detectives are scouring the city's scrap yards today looking for some of the 23 manhole covers that have vanished from the streets in the past three days.

Wednesday, officers were out hunting the manhole bandit. Police said no covers were found, but a 23-year-old youth with a heavy hook in his car was brought in for questioning.

Police say 200 of the heavy, iron covers disappeared last year, and the same number have been taken already this year.

City councilmen considered the problem serious enough last spring to adopt an ordinance making unlawful possession of a manhole cover punishable by a six-month jail sentence or a $500 fine.

That ordinance was passed following the death of a 4-year-old girl who fell into an open manhole at a playground.

Menancing charge brings suspended sentence in court

A Washington C.H. man appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday and was found guilty by acting Judge Omar Schwart of aggravated menacing. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1,000, most of which was suspended pending future good behavior.

Dennis L. Lowe, 26, of 113 W. Temple St., pleaded no contest to the menacing charge and was found guilty. All of the jail time and $950 of the $1,000 fine was suspended. He was fined another $50 after pleading guilty to a charge of resisting arrest.

The menacing charge was filed on a private warrant; the resisting arrest by city police.

FOOTBALL OFFICIAL PREDICTS W.C.H. OFFSIDES

WILL WIN BY 20 POINTS???

Dave Ogan, one of the officials for Saturday Night's bang-up contest between the Washington Court House Offsides pro football team and The Paint Creek No-Stars, went on record as saying the "Offsides" is the "team to beat."

Ogan, long a controversial decision maker in sports circles, might figure heavily in the outcome of Saturday's big game. Upon questioning Ogan on his ability to officiate a football game, his remark was, "What, me worry?" The last game Ogan officiated, sent some 20 players and spectators to the hospital.

Incidentally, this game will be played Saturday, October 5th at 8:30 p.m. at the Gardner Park Stadium with the proceeds going to the Community Education. This bit of readership enlightment provided by French Hardware.

Preliminary hearings waived by two burglary defendants

Two men, one of whom is from Washington C.H., appeared in Municipal Court Wednesday and waived preliminary hearing on an assortment of charges filed by Washington C.H. police officers and Fayette County Sheriff's deputies.

Forsythe is charged with burglary, possession of burglary tools and possession of marijuana. Spence is charged with two counts of burglary, possession of burglary tools, grand theft and safecracking.

Assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann represented the state at the preliminary appearance, and will present the evidence against the two when their case is considered by the grand jury.

Dumford opposes gun control registration

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, of Washington C.H., Democratic candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives from the 77th District, announced today that if elected, he will strongly oppose any attempt to enact gun registration laws in Ohio.

Dumford stated he is not opposed to all forms of gun control. He noted that the 107th General Assembly had passed a bill strictly controlling the sale and ownership of sawed-off shotguns without a dissenting vote in either house.

He voiced support of legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of convicted felons, drug addicts, alcoholics, and those not mentally competent to exercise responsible ownership of firearms.

In voicing his opposition to the registration of firearms, Dumford stated, "Many of the proposals in this field have included such schemes as the fingerprinting and photographing of firearm registrants. I feel that such a program would constitute a serious invasion of privacy and a threat to individual freedom." Dumford also pointed out that in view of the Fourth Amendment guarantee of the right of the citizen to bear arms, the constitutionality of a comprehensive firearms registration law could be seriously questioned.

Dumford concluded his remarks by stating that there were millions of law-abiding, responsible owners of firearms in the United States who used their guns for hunting, sport and protection. There are the people who would bear the burden imposed by gun registration laws.

The House candidate feels that one possible solution to the problem would be to drastically increase the penalties for any crime wherein a firearm is used. This would tend to deter the illegal use of guns by the criminal element, he said.

Greek elections slated Nov. 17

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece's first parliamentary elections in a decade are scheduled for Nov. 17, and a referendum to decide whether the monarchy will be restored is promised by Jan. 1.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis' government announced the return of democratic elections Wednesday night. It said a new caretaker government headed by Caramanlis would be formed in the next few days to replace the "government of national salvation" formed last July after the collapse of the military dictatorship that overthrew the last parliamentary government in 1967.

The date of the referendum on the monarchy is to be announced within 15 days after the election, and the vote is to be held within 30 days of the announcement.

The government did not say whether Greece's last king, 34-year-old Constantine, would be allowed to return to Greece prior to the referendum to plead the case for restoration of the monarchy. He fled to Italy in December 1967 after an unsuccessful attempt to oust the military junta and now lives in Britain.

George Papadopoulos, the leader of the 1967 military coup, abolished the monarchy in July 1973 and declared Greece a republic. He also held a referendum to ratify his action, and the vote, according to the government, was 3,870,124 in favor to 1,064,320 opposed, with about 920,000 not voting.

The military dictatorship collapsed under the weight of last summer's Cyprus crisis. After Caramanlis took over on July 23, he promised elections, declared a general amnesty for political prisoners and restored Greek citizenship to those who had lost it because of their opposition to the dictatorship.

In a preliminary to elections, the government on Sept. 23 lifted the ban on the Greek Communist party that had been in effect since 1936. It also announced that civilians and technicians who worked for the military government could be candidates for parliament.

Metzenbaum votes with losing side

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D—Ohio, voted with the losing side Wednesday as the Senate approved 41-39 a move to recommit the foreign aid authorization bill.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R— Ohio, was not recorded as voting.

Incentives for farmers said needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz agree that farmers need financial incentives to boost production, but as usual each speaks a different language.

Butz told a National Town Meeting here Wednesday that free markets, full production and unfettered exports are the answers. Humphrey, D-Minn., said farmers need financial backstops, including higher price supports and a national food reserve held in part by the government.

Moreover, Humphrey said he thought Butz' predictions that food prices would go up 8 to 10 per cent next year were wrong. "I think it will be substantially larger," he said.

As he has many times, Butz insisted grain reserves should be held by farmers and the private trade and not by the federal government.

Besides urging adoption of his grain reserve plan—two-thirds held by the private trade and one-third by the government — Humphrey said federal officials should monitor farm exports more closely.

The idea, he said, is to prevent huge sales such as the 1972 Russian grain deal from catching everyone unaware again. But Humphrey said he was not in favor of export controls.

"If we don't have the brains and intelligence in this country to protect ourselves with an adequate supply of food and, hopefully, of energy, we're going to be in unbelievable economic trouble," Humphrey said.

The cost of social welfare continues to be the largest item in the Canadian federal government budget.

Traffic Court

Two persons forfeited bond in Municipal Court Wednesday on traffic charges, including a New Holland man cited by Sheriff's deputies for driving while intoxicated.

Camp Fire Girls to conduct Community Chest campaign

Various area Camp Fire Girl councils will conduct the annual city residential drive for the Community Chest campaign, it was announced during a meeting of the Community Chest board of directors Wednesday night in the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce office.

According to Mrs. Ralph Tate, Community Chest director, the city will be canvassed from 1 until 4 p.m. Sunday, October 13. The Washington Junior High School cafeteria will be a focal point for the drive, with the troops picking up various campaign materials at the cafeteria prior to the drive, and turning in monies there following the campaign.

Four ward leaders have been selected to arrange collection assignments in conjunction with the drive. They are Mrs. Jean Yarger, first ward; Mrs. Tate, second ward; Mrs. Leo Shepler, third ward, and Mrs. Dorothy Sanderson, fourth ward.

The Camp Fire Girls organization is one of 10 agencies benefiting from the Community Chest, and approximately 200 girls and their leaders will be assisting with the drive on October 13.

Construction plans reduced by DP&L

The Dayton Power and Light Co. has reduced its construction plans for the next five years by $92 million from $728 million to $636 million.

Generation and transmission facilities to be constructed and held in common ownership with the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. are now being scheduled for later completion.

The construction is being delayed because estimates of the rate of increase of future consumer demand for electricity have been revised downward; many customers are conserving electricity, primarily because of higher rates; and record high interest rates and escalating cost of new construction have caused serious difficulty in financing these projects, many of which cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

The installed electric generation reserves will be lowered from 18 per cent to 15 per cent. The electric reserve is the installed capacity above the projected peak electric usage.

In August, DP&L announced that the 1974 construction budget was reduced from $109 million to approximately $94 million and the 1975 budget was cut from $133 million to $121 million. Completion of the second 1.1 million kilowatt unit at the Zimmer Nuclear Station was postponed from 1982 to 1984.

Humble's father, Robert Sr., of Amelia, said his son's wife, Nettie, was scheduled to undergo surgery at a Cincinnati hospital today.

The couple's two children were at home at the time of the accident. Two men in the other car were hospitalized.

Semi mishap checked; calf killed by sheriff's cruiser

The Sheriff's Department reported an accident in which they were immediately on the scene.

Impact propelled the calf 222 feet into the air and severely damaged the sheriff's cruiser.

The Washington C.H. Police Department reported an accident Wednesday morning and the Ohio Highway Patrol investigated a collision between a semi and a pickup truck Wednesday afternoon, which injured two people.

The mishap occurred on I-71, just north of the U.S. 35 interchange. Whiteside had been working with the Van Camp Construction Co., of Circleville, on the northbound berm when his truck was struck.

Impact from the collision propelled the Whiteside truck into the median strip where it overturned onto its side. The semi also traveled into the median area where the cab angled downward and the trailer portion remained upright partially blocking the interstate.

Both drivers were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital. Partridge was admitted with a neck injury and Whiteside was treated for fractured ribs and later released.

Partridge was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead. Damage was estimated as severe to the semi and moderate to the pickup truck.

Washington C.H. police reported an accident at 10:33 a.m. Wednesday, in which an auto driven by Virginia A. Hargis, 29, New Holland, struck a parked car belonging to Gary F. Magary, Robinson Road, in the left rear, while she was attempting to back from a parking space in Fayette Center.

Damage was slight to the Hargis auto and moderate to the Magary car. No one was cited or injured.

Ohio's clean air efforts bog down

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's efforts to scrub its air even cleaner than the federal government demands have bogged down in a legal morass that could delay action until 1979.

That is the deadline for limiting industrial smoke to 80 micrograms of sulfur oxide per cubic meter of air recommended by three hearing examiners.

"We've got the worst sulfur oxide problem in the nation," said Noreen Wills, a spokeswoman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. "More than 90 per cent of the energy generated in Ohio comes from burning coal, mostly high sulfur coal."

Since 1972 Ohio has been a leader among states seeking cleaner air, she said.

"No other state has held an adjudication hearing such as the examiners conducted here," said Miss Wills.

Heavy industry and electric utilities won over the examiners by arguing that the equipment needed to clean up the air to 60 micrograms would cost $2 billion and that it had not been proved successful.

In a 400-page report, the examiners — all EPA staff members — also suggested that industries use taller smoke stacks and temporary pollution controls during periods of stagnant air, another swing to industry.

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

New car owners apparently won't have to worry about finding unleaded gasoline for their 1975 models this fall. But some service stations are worrying about finding enough customers for the new grade.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press indicates that at least half the stations in most states already carry unleaded gasoline and many more, mostly in rural areas, plan to stock it later this fall.

The only 1975 models which can use leaded gasoline are Chryslers equipped with either of two optional V-8 engines, the 318 cubic inch displacement power plant available in compacts and intermediates and the 360 c.i.d. engine, an option on larger Chrysler Corp. cars.

And while about 80 per cent of the new cars will have antipollution converters, even those autos which do not come equipped with the devices must use unleaded gas.

Even if a car is not equipped with a converter, which would be ruined if leaded gas is used, it still must use no-lead, exclusive of Chryslers with the special order 318 and 360 c.i.d engines. Autos requiring leadfree have special gas tank filler necks which can take only special lead-free fuel nozzles.

In addition, the autos will be marked near the filler cap and on the dashboard as requring lead-free gas. Federal regulations call for a fine of $10,000 per day for stations which, except in emergencies, put leaded fuel in the new, specially marked autos.

All General Motors cars, about 75 per cent of Ford and Chrysler cars and 30 per cent of American Motors cars will have converters.

Thus, about 95 per cent of the new models will require unleaded fuel. But few of the 8.5 million cars Detroit's auto makers expect to sell in the 1975-model year are on the road. And so far, that has meant slow business at many pumps for unleaded gas.

"All the stations required to carry unleaded gas have stocks of it," says Gerald Kroll, president of the Missouri Service Station Dealers Association. "Our only problem has been getting customers for it."

The head of the Pennsylvania-Delaware station dealers association says up to 70 per cent of the two states' stations now carry unleaded gasoline. But he adds, "It's the slowest-selling."

The North Dakota Auto Club reports one Fargo dealer spent up to $15,000 to provide unleaded fuel at nine area stations. But in a recent 10-day period he sold only 10 gallons of the grade.

Many smaller stations have complained that federal regulations requiring them to sell unleaded gasoline have forced them to replace premium grades with unleaded because the stations only had two pumps and couldn't afford a third.

Bob expands home zoo

"HEY, SAVE SOME FOR THE FISH!" — Ben the black bear, seems to be saying to his mate, Susie, while patting her on the back to hurry up and finish so it can be his turn for a drink. Bob Huff, who is providing the drink, owns the bears and is presently building them "sleep boxes" in anticipation of their expected winter hibernation.

As I was moseying along to the police station one morning to do police beat, a red pickup truck pulled to the curb and the voice within excitedly announced, "My new animals came in!"

The voice belonged to Bob Huff who lives on Mark Road and is by occupation a livestock breeder and trader, specializing in horses and cattle. I had done a feature story in late June on his unique hobby of collecting strange animals and what he told me perpetuated another feature article; for he recently acquired three black bears, a bobcat, an llama, two buffalo, a longhorn cow, two Sica deer and a Brahman bull.

By MARK THELLMANN

Bob Huff's "home zoo" has come a long way from the day a couple years ago, he purchased a male and female Rhesus monkey at $100 apiece. The monkeys came from a friend of Huff's in Xenia, who collected unusual animals and got Huff interested in doing the same.

"My wife Reva and I have always been animal lovers," Huff explained and continued, "Before I expanded my menagerie to the extent it is now, I was feeding and caring for six dogs and six cats, about 20 head of horses and some cattle."

HUFF FIRST introduced his three black bears; Ben, Susie and an unnamed cub. The bears, which are valued at $300 apiece were purchased from a dealer in eastern Ohio. Ben was originally with a sideshow and billed "the biggest bear in Ohio." It's no wonder, weighing some 600 pounds and reaching over six feet in length.

With the cold weather setting in, Huff is building what his wife calls a "sleep box," in which the bears can hibernate. Presently they are stocking their bellies with dog food, fruits, eggs, vegetables and milk in preparation for the long nap.

"Bobbie the Bobcat," also known as a wildcat or lynx, is about two and one-half feet in length (not counting his tail), 14 inches in height and weighs around 25 pounds. He is nocturnal, which in his natural habitat is his time for hunting rabbits, snakes and small rodents, but on the Huff farm he is happy with his diet of chicken backs, necks and raw meat.

Bobbie is worth $200, was also purchased in eastern Ohio and is a natural at climbing trees, although his cage curtails this talent.

"Jamie," Huff's llama, is a real character. He may not mean to be, but Mother Nature shaped his little mouth into a natural mischievous grin; for good reason though - llamas are known to think nothing about spitting on one's face when they're upset.

The llama is noted for being the only American animal used as a beast of burden. The South American Indians first domesticated the animal in 1,000 B.C. to help them carry their loads over steep mountain ranges. The llama is capable of carrying 100 pounds on its back without trouble, but if he's overloaded or tired he may sit down and become quite stubborn. Forcing the issue will only get you wet.

Huff displayed Jamie at the Fayette County Fair after his purchase a couple days previous in eastern Ohio. He is valued at $600-$700, but a female can easily bring $1,000, according to Huff.

Llamas are often described as camels without humps and feed on wheat and hay and in Jamie's case, whatever the horses are munching on.

"Susie" and "Bruce" are often mistakenly called buffalo. Buffaloes originate in India, South America and some parts of Africa. Susie and Bruce are "bison" and have the distinction of being the largest animal native to the Western Hemisphere. Bison reach a height of five and one-half to six feet, a length of eight and one-half to ten feet and a weight of 1,800 to 2,400 pounds. The female of the species is usually smaller though.

Bison are also noted for always facing into a storm with their heads pointed into the wind. They are also fierce fighters and prove themselves to be so when summer brings the mating season.

Fossil evidence dates the bison walking the earth a million years ago, but Susie and Bruce have been on the Huff farm for a month. They are valued at $750 apiece and were purchased in Xenia.

"Lizzie" the long-horn cow, had her ancestors in Spain. Her breed was introduced into the United States in 1500 by the Spaniards. She has lived on the Huff farm since summer, eats grain, is valued at $400-$500 and was purchased in Xenia.

They are gifted with a good sense of smell and are fast runners, but they have very poor eyesight. Their top speed of 30 miles per hour and agility comes in handy when side-stepping their natural enemy, the wolf. Huff stated he thought the Sica deer were originally from Japan. He has had his since April, feeds them grain and hay and values them at $125 apiece. They were purchased from his friend in Xenia.

"GEORGE," Huff's Brahman bull, is an unusual looking animal with a hump on its shoulders, large drooping ears and drooping skin under its throat. The Braham breed of cattle were one of the first to be domesticated in their homeland of India. The bull is noted for its highly developed sweat glands which prevents the summer heat from making him uncomfortable. The Braham breed was imported from India in 1849, but was purchased by Huff, who originally owned George's mother and father, in northern Ohio at the age of two days. Huff had to wait until George was through the weaning stage before relocating him at his farm. Now George is big enough to need a little persuasion now and then and this is the reason for the ring in George's sensitive nose. Huff eventually plans on breaking George, who feeds primarily on grains, has been with Huff a year now and is valued at $500, for riding.

Thus was the extent of Huff's new additions, but it shouldn't be surprising if another shipment in the near future creates another story, for until Huff obtains his license, he can only buy.

State funding of schools eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The complexities of various approaches to state funding of public schools has slowed the work of a temporary legislative committee charged with preparing recommendations for the General Assembly next year.

The Education Review Committee heard several proposals for drastic changes in the present school foundation formula during a plodding all-day meeting Wednesday.

But discussion of an "equal yield" approach, favored by many educators, broke off almost before it began when some committee members disagreed with a research team's approach to property reappraisal.

The equal yield concept is meant to equalize the revenue raising ability of school districts by guaranteeing a minimum level of state dollars for each mill of locally determined tax rate.

The present deductible millage formula works on a sliding scale with state money going to schools based on the amount of local funding from property taxes.

The formula is supposed to give higher amounts of state aid to poor districts but a consensus of educators agrees the program is not working. This is evidenced by the fact that almost none of Ohio's 620 school districts is operating under the basic formula.

Consultants from the Syracuse University Research Corp. had intended to approach the equal yield formula, assuming reappraisal of all taxable property in school districts. In fact, only 18 of Ohio's 88 counties have completed reappraisal.

The researchers had been given tentative approval at the committee's last meeting to study the possibility of reappraising taxable property in school districts by classification—residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural.

At Wednesday's meeting, however, the committee decided the research team should also study state aid to schools based on the actual current observed value of property in school districts.

And that is how the meeting ended late in the afternoon, with the consultants returning to their computer and the legislators resigned to starting again at their next meeting after the Nov. 5 election.

The senate-house committee, chaired by Sen. Clara Weisenborn, R-5 Dayton, heard earlier from John R. Meckstroth, president of the state Board of Education, and Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville.

Meckstroth said local districts should receive equal amount of state funding for every mill of local tax money voted.

Johnson plumped for a bill he introduced last year calling for a common tax rate of 25 mills levied for education on real and personal tangible property in every school district in the state.

"The method of supporting education in Ohio places too much reliance on the real property tax and thus, too much of a tax burden on the real property owner," he said. "The past practice of coupling state money to an unequally concentrated real property tax base has caused many school districts to ask their home owners to shoulder an ever increasing tax burden."

Chief Justice undergoes therapy

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — U.S. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is receiving daily therapy at Williamsburg Community Hospital for injuries he received when his bicycle was struck last month by a drag racing auto.

The Supreme Court justice said Arlington police told him he was hit by drag racers. He said the driver of one of the autos was apparently trying to see how close he could come to the bicycle.

'Latins are loaded' in Florida

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A $16,000 silver Mercedes Benz sports car tooling around the Miami suburb of Coral Gables displays a sticker saying, "Latins are Loaded."

While the whimsical slogan may not be quite true for all 350,000 Latin Americans estimated to be living in the Miami area, it certainly applies to at least 50 millionaires and hundreds of others of slightly less modest means in South Florida.

Seven of the city's bank presidents are Cuban refugees.

The elderly Cuban-born boss of the world's largest rum-making firm, Jose "Pepin" Bosch, is a parttime resident of Miami, where much of Bacardi's administrative operations are located.

Across the causeway on Miami Beach, Carlos Prio Socarras, the last constitutional president of Cuba, looks after vast real estate holdings and investments which continue to pile up the pesos.

Latins, in fact, have come to be the "nouveau riche" of South Florida in the past few years.

A Latin "Millionaires Row" stretches from Palm Beach down the Gold Coast through Miami and its luxurious satellite communities of Key Biscayne and Coral Gables.

Despite the inflation-recession syndrome gripping the country, Cubans in particular have acquired a local reputation for keeping the money moving— working hard to make it, but spending it easily—for clothes, cars, homes, furnishings and entertainment. You name it.

"These people don't know what inflation means," says the manager of a large downtown department store. "We love them. I'd say 60 to 75 per cent of our shoppers are Cubans. We've seen no drop in business from last year. In fact, we may be up."

While there are many rags-to-riches stories involving Latins, a number of the well-heeled manager to bring their fortunes with them and bould upon them over the years.

For the Cubans, how much they have now may depend on when they got here and how much money they had outside the country—or were able to bring out—once Fidel Castro started "redistributing" their wealth.

With one out of every four Miami area residents being of Latin descent, they have a total annual income of about $1 billion, according to Richard Tobin of Strategy Research Corp., which recently completed a Dade County Latin market study. The estimate has doubled since 1970.

Profit on housing mostly illusory?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest components in the selling price of a new, single-family house are generally considered to be the cost of construction materials, 32 per cent, land, 25 per cent, and labor, about 15 per cent.

Since the price of all three has risen sharply in the past few years, so has the sales price of the average new house—from $30,500 in 1972, to $35,500 last year, according to The Conference Board.

Over a 10-year period to 1973, states the board, a business and economic research organization, the price of comparable new homes rose 84 per cent. It cites Federal Home Loan Bank Board figures to indicate that the price tags on existing homes doubled in the same period.

But now the catch. With mortgage money tight and with many families unable to come up with the substantial down payments required, the housing market has shriveled almost to nothingness in many areas.

This means the proud homeowner who brags about his hedge against inflation — "I can get double what I paid for my house" — may be living in an illusory world. If there isn't a market, how can there be a selling price?

True, when the market comes alive again, he might obtain double his money. But if he were to sell today, he might find that big price tag cannot be converted into dollar bills.

Even before the economic summitry of the past month, the subject of credit allocation was being discussed in banking and housing circles, among others.

Advocates of allocation claimed that some deserving sections of the economy, such as housing, were being starved for funds because they couldn't pay the price. Allocation of credit by price alone was unfair, they said.

The arguments against allocation by other criteria, such as social good or greater productivity, were immediately attacked by economists and financial men. Controls on credit, they claimed, would only make matters worse.

What they really were saying, however, was that controls by government would be bad but that controls by private industry, that is, the bankers, would be permissible. The fact is, that banks must control their distribution of credit.

Rodino enjoys new popularity

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peter W. Rodino Jr., who used to be just a face in the political crowd, says he's enjoying the spotlight that was generated by presiding over the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry.

"Face it, I'm a human being," the New Jersey congressman said in an interview. "These plaudits are satisfying."

Rodino, 65 and serving his 13th term as representative of New Jersey's 10th congressional district, vaulted from relative obscurity to national prominence as chairman of the televised committee hearings on the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon.

Now speaking invitations pile up at his Capitol Hill office, Democratic colleagues want him to campaign for them and his name is recognized across the country.

It was not always so. Two years ago, when his name was placed in vice presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention many delegates had never heard of him. He got 62 votes.

"I never sought the glare of the spotlight," Rodino said. "I never looked forward to any of this. My objective was to contribute something good to the system. I never sought it, but I guess in politics survival depends on letting people know what you have done."

He takes special pride in the fact that "people keep telling me that 'you and your committee restored faith in our system.'"

The committee recommended the impeachment of Nixon, but the former president resigned before the issue went to the House.

"The system is working," Rodino declared. "What better way to celebrate the bicentennial than to point out that the Constitution is a living thing — that we met the test?"

This fall, he is to campaign in Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas, Oregon, and New York. The party has asked him to address a meeting of the Democratic National Committee next month.

Before he chaired the impeachment hearings, out-of-town speaking invitations came mostly from ethnic groups, particularly Italian-American organizations.

His new fame has meant personal sacrifices such as giving up family dinner outings on weekends. And it has cut into his paddleball, opera and reading time.

Now the Judiciary Committee is gearing up for hearings on the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president. And Rodino has to worry about his own political survival.

Riverfront Stadium to be lit again

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Riverfront Stadium's ring of lights will again illuminate the city's skyline. City officials have decided the energy-saving measure that put the lights out is no longer necessary.

Wallace M. Power, city utilities director, advised Cincinnati City Council Wednesday that he will resume the practice of turning on the lights for six hours nightly.

The city ordered the lights out a year ago. Power said there have been many complaints about darkness in the riverfront area.

Radio communication between ground and aircraft was virtually nonexistent until 1930, when two-way radio-telephones arrived.

Solons named to assembly housing panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five members of the Ohio House were named Wednesday to serve on a Legislative Service Commission panel to determine if Ohio must complete action on a pending housing bill before the end of the year.

Speaker A.G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, appointed the bill's main sponsor, Rep. Edward Feighan, D-8 Cleveland, along with Reps. Michael Stinziano, D-30 Columbus; John Thompson, D-15 Cleveland; James Luken, D-24 Cincinnati, and Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield.

It will be up to Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-3 Columbus, and Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, to designate senators who will serve on the panel. There were indications the committee will not meet for two weeks.

Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, designated earlier as chairman of the LSC committee, was reported by his office Wednesday to be away on vacation, not planning to return until Oct. 14.

Gov. John J. Gilligan wants Gray and Lancione to call the lawmakers into session to complete action on a House-passed bill to create a new state housing financing agency. The governor said it is needed to take full advantage of the 1974 Federal Housing and Community Development Act.

Gilligan's request received the backing earlier this week of a 23-member ad hoc committee of industry officials and labor leaders who said the law is needed to alleviate a crisis in the state's building industry.

Gray and Lancione both said they wanted the LSC committee to study the federal statute and the pending bill to determine what must be done to make them "dovetail," and if immediate action is called for.

Former county man heading youth rehabilitation center

A former Fayette County resident, who was named by the state Jaycees as one of five "Outstanding Young Men in Ohio" this year, is the new director of the Hollywood Community Center, Franklin.

Wayne Earley, 24, of Trenton, formerly of Fayette County, who had been a counselor at the youth rehabilitation center since June, was recently appointed to serve as the center's director.

HE WAS the choice of the council's executive committee and replaces Martin Lotz, who earlier this year announced he would resign his two-year directorship and leave the center after four years' service to make roon for "new blood."

Earley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robinette, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, is a 1968 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

Last March, the native Fayette Countian was honored by the Jaycees, thus becoming a nominee for the ranks of the 10 Outstanding Young Men in the nation to be named next January.

Earley, who attended Ohio State University for two years and is presently working toward his degree in social welfare at Miami University's Middletown campus, outlined some ideas that cause his new blood to race.

"In the past, the Hollywood Community Center was looked upon as a place for kids to go for recreation in the summer and after school in the winter. . . .The basic idea is pre-delinquency, to give the kids a place to go. I'm not arguing against that. But the thing I want to try to change — I see us as a social agency, for counseling, for programs for the senior citizens to give something for the men to do. I want to get that point across to the people of Franklin and the surrounding area."

Drugs, unwed mothers, venereal disease, legal aid, medical problems — these are some of the areas of possible attention he rattles off.

"I plan to start a crisis intervention phone, a hot line, where people can express their needs, and if we cannot help directly, we can act as a referral agency — welfare, food stamps, Social Security checks, workmen's compensation, runaways, whatever. It's a very important part of our serving."

"I'll invite all the organizations I possibly can, to come here and have their meetings, see what the center is all about from the inside, possibly run some of their programs for youth through here, become a part of the center."

He plans on volunteers, trained with the help of the Warren County counseling service, to man the aforementioned hot line offering advice to runaways, counseling on drugs, and home problems, talking with elderly persons, potential suicides, and anyone needing help and "someone to talk it over with."

"We will certainly not advertise as having all the answers or that we have the final word. Rather, we will operate as a referral and general counseling service," Earley said.

He is sergeant of the Trenton rescue squad, and a member of the Middletown Jaycees. He is vice president of Ohio Jaycees, in charge of all Jaycee chapters in Butler and Warren counties, as well as special consultant to the Jaycees nationally on criminal justice and juvenile delinquency. Jaycees have set the field of corrections as their priority for 1974-76, noted Earley, who was state chairman for prison Jaycee chapters before becoming state vice president.

WSHS seniors commended

Two seniors at Washington Senior High School have been named merit program commended students by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Principal Fred Jones and counselor Don Gibbs announced that Doug Wheat, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Wheat, 220 N. Hinde St., and Jim Vess, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vess, 370 Carolyn Road, have received letters of commendation form the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

These two students are among the 38,000 commended students named on the basis of their high performance of the 1973 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Commended students are in the upper two per cent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1973. Although the commended students ranked high on the PSAT-NMSQT, their scores were just below those of the 15,000 semifinalists who were announced in September by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation; commended students do not continue in the merit scholarship competition.

Edward C. Smith, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, said, "The high standing of commended students in the merit program shows their great promise, and their attainment in this nationwide program deserves public recognition. The commended students should be encouraged to continue their education. Both these students and our nation will benefit from their further educational and personal development."

To increase their scholarship opportunities NMSC reports the commended students' names to the regionally accredited colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the PSAT-NMSQT in October, 1973. The reports include home addresses, test scores, and anticipated college major and career intentions of the commended students.

A $25-million convention center under construction in Kansas City will more than double the city's current $30-million annual convention business volume by 1976, says Mayor Charles Wheeler.

Washington needs to be mentally prepared

Defensive-minded Tigers visit Lions

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

No longer can the team from down U.S. 41 be looked upon lightly. In carrying a 3-1 season record into Gardner Park Stadium this Friday, Greenfield has more than proven itself to be a solid contender for this year's South Central Ohio League crown.

All three of the Tigers' victories have been shutouts. Last week, Greenfield halted Circleville 6-0 on an interception by linebacker Jim Ganger in the fourth quarter. Most oddsmakers had picked Circleville as the eventual SCOL champion prior to the season.

Greenfield's only loss came when Chillicothe scored with 15 seconds remaining to hand the Tigers a 13-12 loss. Washington Court House defeated the same Cavalier unit 8-6.

"With three shutouts, their defense must really be great," remarked Lion coach Maurice Pfeifer. "They are very difficult to run against because of their quick and agile linebackers. Although they play an eightman line on defense, they can also protect very well against the pass. The secret to Greenfield's success has been that they have been playing together as a unit."

Offensively, the Tigers' attack is built around their outstanding tailback Gary Barr, who is 6-foot-1 and weighs 190 pounds. In scoring 26 points, Barr has already carried the ball 123 times yards last year for the most yards by an opponent against the Lions.
opponent against the Lions.

"Barr is a very durable runner," Pfeifer pointed out. "If I had their ball club, I would probably run the same type of offense. When you have a workhorse like Barr, you use him."

"Barr is a strong and consistent runner, but he is not a breakaway threat," Pfeifer added. "Greenfield uses him like Buffalo uses O.J. Simpson. If you run him enough, he will do you some good."

Although Greenfield runs mainly sweeps on offense, the passing of Tiger quarterback Kevin Kensinger could catch the Lions' defenders off guard. Kensinger has already completed 15 of 33 passes for 221 yards.

Except for the Tigers' two big tackles Jack Kinzer, who is 5-foot-10 and weighs 227 pounds, and Chuck Conley, who is 6-foot-2 and weighs 246 pounds, the Tigers and Lions are nearly similar in size. Greenfield's defense out-weighs Washington's offense by four pounds per player. The Tigers' offense holds a 20-pound advantage per player over the Lions' defense.

"Although we defeated them 34-0 last year, we were very impressed by their team," commented Pfeifer, who has only lost once in nine seasons to the Tigers. "Greenfield is in tremendous physical condition and they are well-coached."

"There is no way we can afford to look beyond the Greenfield game," Pfeifer said. "In defeating Unioto 31-13, the boys learned they have to be mentally prepared. We were not mentally prepared for the Shermans and they took advantage of it on their first touchdown."

The highlight of the game with Unioto was the improvement of the Lions' offense. Gradually, the offensive unit continues to improve with each game. The line is starting to open up holes, but Washington still can not afford to run the same play back to back.

Offensive tackle Dan Dean, a 6-foot, 181-pound junior, was named the offensive lineman of the week from the Unioto contest. It was mainly behind the blocking of Dean that the Lions finally got their off-tackle play working this season.

Backup quarterback Greg Marti, who is a 5-foot-8, 144-pound junior, was named the offensive back of the week. Marti, who played the entire second half after regular quarterback Jeff Brown was injured, completed three of four passes for 62 yards. One of his passes was a 51-yard scoring pass to Mark Lamberson. He also kicked the extra point following the touchdown and received a grade of 100 per cent on his offensive efficiency.

It is still not known whether or not Brown will be playing this week. He received a back injury while scrambling with a bad snap from center on a punt. Brown has completed 16 of 32 passes for 241 yards this year.

In the first three games, the Lions' defense looked very sharp. However, in the Unioto contest, there were several occasions when the defense appeared quite sluggish.

Although a defensive lineman of the week was not chosen defensive halfback Jim Vess was selected as the team's defensive back of the week. In receiving an 80 per cent efficiency rating, Vess knocked down five passes and had two individual tackles while playing the entire game on a severely sprained ankle.

"Offensively, we have a few surprises in store for Greenfield," added Pfeifer. "However, this has to be our best defensive effort of the season."

"By playing younger kids in the lineup, a team tends to lose its mental edge. The big question is whether we can be mentally prepared to play week after week."

Computer grid ratings released

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Middletown Fenwick has a much better chance of defending its Ohio high school football playoff title than do Youngstown Mooney and Cleveland Benedictine.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association weekly computerized ratings, released for the first time Wednesday, showed the Middletown power as one of the Class A leaders.

Fenwick compiled 25.50 points to lead Region 12. The other Class A leaders were Windham 26.00 in Region 9, Montpelier 18.50 in Region 10 and Johnstown Northridge 14.00 in Region 11.

Fenwick grabbed the 1973 Class A playoff crown by thumping Montpelier 27-7 in the title game. The Falcons were 11-1 last year and are 3-0-1 in 1974.

Youngstown Mooney, the 1973 Class AAA playoff champion, was tied for sixth in its own region and Cleveland Benedictine, the winner in Class AA, was deadlocked for 4th in its region.

Aaron ponders return for '75 baseball season

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, has the option of retiring in style, after belting another one on his final at-bat of the 1974 season.

There are, however, strong indications from the 40-year-old slugger that he is seriously considering playing another season in another uniform, because he said Wednesday, "I am sure it is my last day in a Brave uniform."

"I'm hoping that's not my last home run," Aaron said after smashing the 733rd of his illustrious 21-year career off rookie reliever Rawly Eastwick in Atlanta's 13-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. "I might hit my last one against Cleveland or in Chicago or somewhere."

Aaron thus ended the year just as he began, by homering. It was in Cincinnati last April 4 that Aaron cracked No. 714 to tie Babe Ruth's record on his first cut of the season. Wednesday's blast, his 20th this year, came on his final trip in the seventh inning on a 1-0 inside fastball that he just barely managed to get over the 330-foot marker down the left field line.

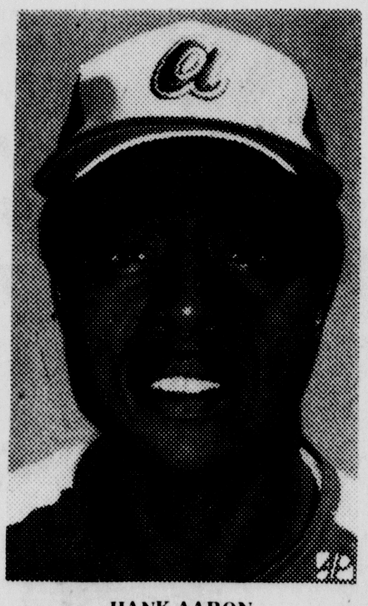
"I planned it that way," Aaron said, joking with a cluster of newsmen gathered around his locker after the game. "No," he added, in case some took him seriously, "it just happened to happen."

It was on his first swing in Atlanta Stadium this year that he drilled a pitch from Al Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers over the fence to move ahead of Ruth last April 8.

Aaron said he won't decide for another 10 days or so whether he will retire or consider playing somewhere else.

"I'm planning to think over a lot of things," he said. "No one else is going to do the thinking for me."

He said any future records he might add to the 18 major league and 27 National League marks he already holds "doesn't enter into it at all."



HANK AARON

Then, talking of his 21-year association with the Braves, including the last nine in Atlanta, Aaron said, "I enjoyed playing here and I'm going to miss it tremendously. You get to a point where you get to be 40 years old and the youth movement catches you.

"I'm sure it's going to be my last game in Atlanta. I can't see where I could probably came back another year. I don't have a contract. That's all."

"The Braves haven't talked to me about playing next year. They have a youth movement under way and I don't want to stand in their way. On the other hand, I do not want them to stand in mine."

Robinson in, Mileti out with tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson was to make major league baseball's biggest breakthrough today since Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in 1947.

Frank Robinson, one of the game's greatest stars, was expected to be named manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first black manager in the major leagues.

Robinson's choice to pilot Cleveland was to coincide with a front office shakeup that included the removal of club president Nick Miletti.

The Indians had scheduled a news conference for 10 a.m. (EDT), but they refused to officially confirm that Robinson, the 39-year-old superstar, would be named to replace the fired Ken Aspromonte.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail attended the news conference.

Robinson, the only person to be named Most Valuable Player in both leagues, smashed the 574th home run of his career in Cleveland's season finale at Boston Wednesday. He stands fourth on the all-time home run list behind Hank Aaron, Babe Ruth and Willie Mays.

He left the team in Boston, flew to New York to meet with his agent, Ed Keating, and then both flew to Cleveland, arriving late Wednesday night.

"The odds are in favor that I will be there," Robinson said when asked if he would be in attendance at the news conference. Like the others, he refused to confirm that he would become the new Cleveland manager.

Passed ball aids Bucs' victory

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

"I really think the Lord had something to do with this ball game," said Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. "I just thank God we were able to do it."

The Lord may have helped but Chicago catcher Steve Swisher didn't hurt either as the Pirates clinched the National League East Division championship Wednesday night with a wild 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Cubs.

Chicago had the game won with two out and a man on third in the bottom of the ninth. Cubs' right-hander Rick Reuschel struck out pinch hitter Bob Robertson for what would have been the final out but Swisher let the pitch get away from him for a passed ball and Sanguillen raced home from third to send the game into overtime.

One inning later Sanguillen drove in the winning run with a bases-loaded infield single and the Bucs were on their way to the National League playoffs. They wind up 1½ games ahead of the runnerup St. Louis Cardinals who were rained out at Montreal. That game will not be made up.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles edged Houston 5-4 in 10 innings; Atlanta bombed Cincinnati 13-0; Philadelphia shaded New York 3-2 in 10 innings and San Diego dumped San Francisco 9-5.

Chicago unloaded on Pirate starter Jim Rooker for four runs in the first and the Bucs spent the rest of the night playing catch-up.

Robertson, who celebrated his 28th birthday Wednesday by turning in the game's big play — the clutch ninth-inning strikeout — drenched Manager Danny Murtaugh, a non-drinker, with a gallon of milk.

Braves 13, Reds 0

Hank Aaron closed out his eventful season with his 20th homer, No. 733 lifetime, but refused to say it was his last game. He said earlier in the season this would be his last campaign, but has been having second thoughts lately.

Dodgers 5, Astros 4, 10 innings

John Hale singled and Lee Lacy doubled him home in the 10th to give reliever Charlie Hough, 9-4, the win.

Phillies 3, Mets 2, 10 innings

Padres 9, Giants 5

No fear by Brown

CINCINNATI (AP)—Buoyed by the performance of subs in last week's 21-3 victory over San Francisco, Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown looks without fear at this week's game with the Washington Redskins.

"There is more depth on this team than any we've had so far," said Brown of the franchise he started in 1968.

"We haven't gone to pieces with devastating injuries as we used to do . . . its the depth thing."

Brown relied heavily on Stan Walters, who missed all of last season with hepatitis, to replace offensive tackle stalwart Vernon Holland last week. Holland suffered a broken leg the week before.

Brown went with more reserves on defense against the 49ers and gave up only three points. They included Ken Johnson at defensive end, Doug Adams at center linebacker and Bernard Jackson at strong safety.

Brown said defensive end Royce Berry and reserve linebacker Ken Avery will be back this week as will safety Lyle Blackwood, probably.

But Cincinnati is not out of the woods yet. Running back Essex Johnson, who hasn't played because of his off season knee surgery, is not ready yet and linebackers Jim LeClair and Even Jolitz remain on the injured list.

Schedule changed

Because of this week's benefit game between the Washington Offsides and the Paint Creek No-Stars, the Pony League football games will begin at 5 p.m. In the first game, the Dividends will play the Interns and the second game will pit the Big Boys against the Marksmen.

Cards, Pats picked to win

By BEN THOMAS
AP Sports Writer

Aw, c'mon now! This can't be correct. It must be a misprint in the National Football League standings!

St. Louis and New England leading their respective divisions, both with 3-0 records?

And what's more, the Cardinals are very likely to still be first in the National Conference East and the Patriots No. 1 in the American Conference East after the fourth weekend of NFL action.

Of course the fact that the Cards and Pats are leading hasn't helped the old Pro Pigskin Picker's average. Last week, however, the picks climbed to 9-4 — most respectable showing so far this season. Over-all, it's now 23-15-1 and the average is .605.

And on to this weekend:

St. Louis (3-0) at San Francisco (2-1): The oddmakers like St. Louis by a field goal, but Coach Don Coryell should do better, so ... CARDINALS 24, 49ERS 17.

Baltimore (0-3) at New England (3-0): This was one of the few games the Patriots were expected to win in the preseason guessing ... PATRIOTS 31, COLTS 14.

Minnesota (3-0) at Dallas (12): The Vikings are favored by a mere two points in this replay of the 1973 NFC Championship game ... VIKINGS 17, COWBOYS 14.

Washington (2-1) at Cincinnati (2-1): The Bengals are favored by 4½ but the Redskins are No. 1 in the NFC in total defense and No. 2 in total offense. Let's call for a mild upset ... REDSKINS 19, BENGALS 17.

Buffalo (2-1) at Green Bay (2-1): The oddsmakers like Buffalo, but only by four points. Look for O.J. Simpson to handle the situation with ease. BILLS 24, PACKERS 17.

Denver (0-2-1) at Kansas City (2-1): The odds favor Denver by 1½ points, and the Chiefs are getting old. BRONCOS 17, CHIEFS 12.

Oakland (2-1) at Cleveland (1-2): Oakland hasn't given up a point in the first quarter for nine games ... RAIDERS 27, BROWNS 13.

Detroit (0-3) at Los Angeles (2-1): This game features the oddsmakers' biggest spread of the weekend, 15 points. But the 15 points could be worthwhile ... RAMS 27, LIONS 14.

Pittsburgh (1-1-1) at Houston (1-2): Another big-spread game — 14 points. But against Houston, the Steelers should roll to the tune of ... STEELERS 30, OILERS 10.

Philadelphia (2-1) at San Diego (1-2): The odds say Philadelphia will win by five points. It should be more. EAGLES 28, CHARGERS 7.

New Orleans (1-2) at Chicago (1-2): The Bears have lost some close ones and should win this one, close. BEARS 21, SAINTS 17.

Atlanta (0-3) vs. New York Giants (1-2) at New Haven: The Giants are favored by four points and that's really not too surprising when you consider how the Falcons have played lately ... GIANTS 21, FALCONS 12.

New York Jets (1-2) at Miami (2-1): Remember when Broadway Joe led the Jets to a Super Bowl triumph? Well, this isn't the Super Bowl and besides, the Dolphins are favored by 13 points ... DOLPHINS 27, JETS 14.

Southmen batter Jacksonville, 47-19

J.J. Jennings of the Memphis Southmen broke the World Football League's 1,000-yard rushing barrier, but running mate Willie Spencer shattered the Jacksonville Sharks with five touchdowns.

Memphis, winning its ninth straight game, crushed the visiting Sharks 47-19 Wednesday night with its two explosive rookies.

Elsewhere, Shreveport beat Detroit 14-11, Southern California edged Portland 26-22, Florida defeated Philadelphia 30-7 and the Hawaiians downed Birmingham 14-8. In the nationally televised WFL game tonight, Charlotte plays at Chicago.

"It was just a matter of time," said Jennings, who became the WFL's first 1,000-yard runner, gaining 80 yards in 18 carries to boost his season total to 1,036.

Spencer ran 21 times for 141 yards, scoring on four short bursts — three in the first half — and a 19-yard fourth-quarter blast. He

The Memphis defense had a big hero, too. A pair of Spencer's first half touchdowns were set up by tackle William Stevenson's two fumble recoveries. His key interception also stopped a Sharks' drive.

Steamer 14, Wheels 11

A hometown crowd of 22,012 watched Shreveport snap a five-game losing streak — started when the franchise was known as the Houston Texans — with its first victory since arriving in Louisiana.

Reserve quarterback David Mays fired a decisive eightyard touchdown pass to Willie Frazier late in the fourth quarter, capping an 11-play, 78-yard drive for the winning points.

Blazers 30, Bell 17

The Blazers, with their pay checks two weeks overdue, traveled to Philadelphia and made the Bell pay for the financial woes.

Blazer Tommy Reamon scored touchdowns on a fouryard run and a 10-yard pass from Bob Davis, who also threw to Matt Maslowski for another Florida touchdown.

Sun 26, Storm 22

With 1:56 left in the game, quarterback Tony Adams hit receiver Keith Denson on a 36-yard scoring pass for the Suns' victory.

The late scoring pass overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Portland's Rufus Ferguson, who tallied on runs of six, three and five yards in the first half for the Storm.

Hawaiians 14, Americans 8

Randy Johnson, released last month by the New York Giants of the National Football League, guided the Hawaiians on 95-and 39-yard touchdown marches to avenge a 39-0 setback to the Americans earlier this season.

Phillies win golf title

In defeating the Indians 12½-3½, the Phillies captured the Wednesday Night Golf League title. L.A., which finished second in the league, beat the Pirates 12-4 and the Reds stopped the Cardinals 9½-6½.

The player turning in the best score in each group was awarded a prize last night. Robert Rine of the Reds carded a 41 to take honors for the first man golfers on each team. Second man honors went to S.E. Vaughn of the Phillies, who turned in a 46. Gordon McCarty of the Phillies fired a 46 to take third man low score. Fourth man honors went to Lindy Sharrett of the Phillies with a round of 47.

Three other special events were held on the final day. Rine hit his drive 255 yards for the longest drive on the third hole. Ralph Hyer's drive on the eighth hole came the closest to the cup. On the ninth green, Paul Metzger sank the longest putt.

Few turn out for AL finales

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The fans said goodbye.

They said goodbye to Al Kaline, finishing 22 illustrious seasons. And they booed ferociously when the goodbye came prematurely.

They said goodbye to Ken Aspromonte, about to be replaced by Frank Robinson, major league baseball's first black manager.

And they said goodbye to the season.

There were 24,812 fans on hand. Not a bad crowd for a baseball game. The only problem was, it was the crowd that showed up for the entire American League Wednesday.

But then, that's what happens when everything's tied up in a couple of neat little bundles, when nothing counts — except for the record books, the drives for the post-season awards, the pushes for next year's salary boost ... and for those hardcore fans.

Orioles 5, Tigers 4

Enos Cabell, whose two-run, tie-breaking double in the seventh inning enabled the Orioles to conclude the regular-season with their ninth consecutive triumph.

Kaline was happy to see his career concluded. "I'm glad it's over. I really am. I don't think I'll miss it."

He got ovations in the first and third innings when he batted. In the fifth, the crowd started booing loudly. They had spotted Ben Oglivie in the ondeck circle instead of Kaline.

It turned out that Kaline's shoulder was bothering him. "I didn't know if I should play or not ... Everybody wanted to have me hit my 400th home run, but no way could I swing hard enough to hit a home run. I could have played but I could only punch the ball."

Angels 3, A's 2

California's Denny Doyle singled with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning, capping a two-run burst that finished Oakland's season on a low note.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

"I think either Jim Hunter, Mike Cuellar or I will win the Cy Young Award," Ferguson Jenkins said after finishing the season with a 25-12 record by winning 18 of his last 24 decisions. "I'd like to win it, sure, but those other guys certainly deserve it too.

Indians 8, Red Sox 6

Cleveland will break a racial barrier once again with Robinson's appointment. It was the Indians who, in 1947, had the American League's first black player, Larry Doby.

Robinson said goodbye to his 1974 playing days with a bang, driving in two runs, one of them with his 22nd homer of the year and 574th of his career.

But it was Rusty Torres' homer, opening a two-run ninth, that enabled Gaylord Perry to finish at 21-13.

Yankees 2, Brewers 1

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Chicago scored a run in the 12th inning without a hit, Kansas City reliever Bruce Dal Canton wild-pitching in the winning run.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

A plan of play that offers declarer a 75 per cent chance of success is of course not as good a plan as one that offers a 100 per cent chance.

Consider this deal where South won the club lead with the ace, drew three rounds of trumps, ruffed a club, cashed the king of diamonds and continued with a diamond to the ace. West showing out, South was faced with the problem of trying to avoid the loss of a spade as well as a diamond.

So, rather than stake the outcome on simply a spade finesse, South cashed a third round of diamonds and put East on lead with a fourth diamond.

East was now forced to return a spade and South of course followed low. This method of play would have been delightfully successful had East held the ten or the queen, but with the spades divided as they were, South finished down one.

Actually, the odds were 3 to 1 in favor of East's having the ten or queen, and from that standpoint South's line of play had much to recommend it. But the fact is that his course of play was incorrect because he failed to spot a 100 per cent chance for the slam.

After leading the king of diamonds, South should have played the A-K and another spade. This would have made the contract certain regardless of how the spades or diamonds were divided.

It could not matter which defender held the queen of spades, for that player would be forced to return a diamond or yield a ruff and discard. Either play was sure to eliminate the potential diamond loser and thus hand South his twelfth trick.

The Wonders of the Eyes

Can you explain the difference between nearsightedness and farsightedness?

Miss D.L.K., N.J.

Dear Miss K.:

I'll try, but first I want to emphasize that the mechanism by which we see reflects the perfection of one of the great wonders of the body.

Rays of light enter the eye from all directions. As they pass through the opening of the lens an image is formed on the retina. The retina is a highly sensitive inner lining of the back of the eyeball.

When these light waves land on the retina they are converted into electrical waves and carried to the brain. Here, by experience, the person recognizes the image and learns to differentiate between a house, a human, an animal, or any of the myriad images we see daily.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, results when the eyeball becomes less round and more oval. Now the light rays strike in front of the retina rather than directly on it. This causes disturbance of vision.

In nearsightedness, vision is better for near objects than for distant objects.

Farsightedness, or hyperopia, is a condition in which the eyeball is shorter than normal. The result is that the light rays passing through the lens hit beyond the normal retina.

With this disorder, vision is better for distant images than it is for near ones.

Is it always necessary to remove impacted teeth?

Mr. H.H., Va.

Dear Mr. H.:

If impacted teeth are a source of infection, or if they impinge on nerves and cause distress, the dentist gives consideration to their removal.

If, however, impacted teeth do not cause any symptoms there seems to be no reason for undertaking the removal of the impacted teeth only because they are there.

When impacted teeth interfere with the growth structure of the jaw or affect the normal bite, dentists, afer careful evaluation, may come to the conclusion that they should be removed.

Surgical removal is not a routine decision. Rather it is suggested only after all factors have been thoroughly investigated.

Watergate trial moves slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors have linked one new name and may add others to the conspiracy case that has brought five Nixon loyalists to trial on Watergate-related criminal charges.

The claim of "newly discovered evidence" was made to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who was engaged for the third straight day today in the painstaking procedure of trying to select an unbiased jury for the months of trial to come.

The five defendants, John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman, John N. Mitchell, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian, appeared to take the snail's pace in stride.

With the jury selection process not half completed, it appeared that the first testimony in the trial will not come until the middle of next week at the earliest.

Richard M. Nixon's lawyers were expected to ask Sirica to excuse the former president from testifying at the trial on grounds that his health will not permit it.

And Ehrlichman posed a new problem for the judge: a claim that trial for conspiracy and obstruction of justice will place him in double jeopardy since Ehrlichman already stands convicted in the plumbers case.

The prosecutors' memorandum said the new evidence made it necessary to add one co-conspirator to the list drawn up by the Watergate grand jury. It did not name the person.

But a source close to the case confirmed the man is Richard A. Moore, the former special counsel to Nixon, who testified at the Senate Watergate hearings that he urged John W. Dean III to tell the cover-up story to the president.

Moore, who had been a holdover in the Ford administration, resigned Wednesday. The prosecutor's office had included Moore on its list of 44 prospective witnesses, largely because he was involved in some of the taped conversations that will be introduced into evidence.

At the time of his Senate appearance in July a year ago, the white-haired Moore was represented by Herbert J. Miller, retained by Nixon after his resignation.

The addition brought the number of unindicted co-conspirators to 20, according to sources. The only name that has surfaced officially is Nixon's.

The prosecutors indicated the list may be extended further, saying:

"The government may prove at trial that individuals other than those named as defendants or identified as co-conspirators by the grand jury were in fact members of the conspiracy charged in the indictment."

By the end of Wednesday's court day, Sirica had finished preliminary questioning of 315 prospective jurors, in public and private, and had excused 171 who said they could not be sequestered for the 3 to 4 months the trial might take.

The remaining 144 were to undergo more thorough, private questioning in the coming days. If a sufficient number survive questioning for possible bias, lawyers will have a chance to eliminate a specified number until 12 jurors and 6 alternates are seated.

Eastern half of nation in icebox

By The Associated Press

The eastern half of the nation shivered under a record-breaking blanket of early cold and snow today.

Milwaukee, Wis., set an Oct. 3 record with a low predawn temperature of 27 degrees. New lows for the date also were recorded in Indianapolis, Ind.; Buffalo, N.Y., and Birmingham, Ala.

An Oct. 3, 1886, low of 32 degrees was surpassed in Chicago, marking the third straight day of record low temperatures there.

Pittsburgh, Pa., had its earliest snowfall in a century along with record cold for the date.

An inch of snow whitened Syracuse, N.Y., and there were scattered snowfalls in the lower Great Lakes region, the upper Ohio Valley and the northern Appalachians.

Oct. 2 cold records were broken Wednesday in Charleston, W.Va.; Binghamton, N.Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich., and South Bend, Ind.

Thundershowers that dumped an inch of rain on Bakersfield, Calif., Wednesday, moved eastward.

The northern corners of both coasts were cloudy.

Black snake makes home in cruiser

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A four-foot black snake which spent three weeks in the trunk of a police cruiser and a briefer stint in the home of a 10-year-old is destined to return to the wild.

"He's sorta mean," said Adam Chacksfield, son of a suburban Norwood police executive. "He's been sleeping with my king snake but my mom says she doesn't want him around the house."

Evendale Patrolman Harold Vonderhaar put the snake in his cruiser trunk Sept. 17 after capturing it in a resident's yard. Vonderhaar finally got it out three weeks later with the help of a local exterminator using bug spray.

Before that police tried a varity of "snake removers" including gasoline, tear gas and loud noises.

Vandalism, theft reports probed

An incident of vandalism was reported by the Washington C.H. Police Department and a larceny is under investigation by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Some one threw a soft drink can from a blue Chevrolet and struck the windshield of a car owned by Charles Wilson, 816 John St., which was parked in front of his residence between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Four two-way radios valued at $2,600 were stolen from the Basic Construction Materials Co., 933 Old Chillicothe Rd., sometime between 5 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported. The radios were removed from four different company trucks and an investigation is in progress.

Deputies file shoplift charge

A 39-year-old New Holland man has been arrested and charged with petty theft by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department for an alleged shoplifting incident at Seaway, CCC Highway-W, which occurred at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies reported Lawrence A. Snyder, attempted to leave the store with an auto thermostat and gasket valued at $1.43, concealed in his clothing.

Snyder is presently incarcerated in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.
